PAT TEN RAMMED PERSEUS; EXCURSIONISTS IN PANIC

Collision Occurred in a Fog Near Robbins Reef, But No Life Was Lost.

ONLY ONE MAN WAS INJURED.

Municipal Ferryboat Bronx Finally Took All Passengers to the Battery.

While the steamer Perseus, belonging to the Iron Steamboat Company, was feeling her way through the thick fog off Robbins Reef, bound for Coney Island, last evening, the steamer Thomas Patten, returning from Long Island, stove a hole in her port bow, just forward of the paddle wheel. The Patten buried her nose into the side of the Perseus. The noise of crashing timbers and the shock of the collision at once created a panic among the 1,500 passengers aboard the two boats.

There was a concerted rush for life preservers that resulted in dangerous confusion. Women screamed and knelt on the decks and prayed while the members of the crews and the calmest of the men passengers tried in vain to assure them that there was no immediate danger.

To the shrieks of the frightened passengers were added the hoarse blasts of the distress signals. The Patten was in the lagoon in the port side of the Perseus, and the captains were unable to extricate their vessels. When the passengers aboard the Perseus found that the Patten had been damaged but little, many of them climbed to the decks of the Long Branch boat, which was already crowded with persons homeward bound.

After what seemed an age to the frightened women and children, the Commodore, a tiny excursion boat, loaded herself to the rails with members and friends of the Master Carpenters' Association of Newark, returning from a day's outing, steamed alongside. The excursionists aboard her shouted all kinds of good advice to the imperiled Perseus, and then took aboard as many women and children from the Patten and Perseus as could be squeezed aboard.

When the Commodore was steaming toward Pier A, the ferryboat, where she discharged all her passengers, the Commodore, sister ship of the Perseus, also out of her forward engine by the whistle of the Patten. Her decks were crowded almost to the limit with persons returning from Coney Island, but she made fast to the starboard side of her sister ship. Then most of the passengers of the Perseus climbed aboard with many of those of the Patten. When the Commodore took no more she backed into midstream, but stood by the Municipal Ferryboat, which had been waiting for her.

The Bronx took the remaining passengers from the Patten and the Perseus, and relieved the Commodore of her dangerous overwork. She landed the rescued at the Battery.

Although the excitement at times almost reached the panic stage, nobody was hurt except Dr. Claude McInerney, of 116 Mercer street, Jersey City, whose ribs were said to have been fractured, by it. It is believed, the impact of the boats coming together.

At Coney Island, great crowds collected on the Iron Steamboat landing and fumed and fretted at the delay caused by the collision. They were given car tickets.

The Perseus is now laid up at Erie Basin for repairs. The Patten lies at her dock at the foot of Blooming street. A little tinkering will put her in shape to travel to Long Branch soon.

Members of Crandall Chapter and Their Guests Had a Good Time at Rockaway.

The annual outing and beach party of Crandall Chapter, No. 102, Order of the Eastern Star, was held at the Rainbow, the Iron Pier at Seaside, Rockaway Beach, yesterday, and the affair was a big success, financially and otherwise, and was attended by many sisters of the fraternity. The first ones arrived as early as 10 o'clock, and after that each train brought down more, until by 3 o'clock the pier was comfortably filled with the merry party. To visit his mother at the old family home in Elgin, Scotland. The postal was 2 feet by 3 feet, of heavy cardboard, and was sent by Mr. Forsyth's fellow employees. It took 41 cents to send it through the mail. On one side was a small picture of a boat with "Aunt" and "Uncle" standing in the bow. Below was the address. On the other side was a "Welcome home" card, the remainder of the entire side being covered by signatures and good wishes. Mr. Forsyth said he was going to have it framed.

Romanian J. F. Stober and Paulmann Jacob J. Mangel and George Seitz, of the Kelpa Avenue station, are enjoying their annual vacations.

Sergeant Mes Fleming, of the Ralph Avenue station, did not take part in the Civil War—he was born too late for that—but his veins are filled with patriotic blood, nevertheless. This spirit of patriotism asserts itself in many ways. Sometimes by the use of red ink on white paper when making out official documents. And these are gems, for the sergeant is an artist with a pen.

Karl Weller, a popular young man of the Bedford section, is spending across the Atlantic on one of the big liners, bound for Kiel. There he will greet his mother, and he has not seen her for several years, and then according to Dame Rumor, may take unto himself as a bride a pretty young heiress. Mr. Weller said when about to leave that he will remain on the other side of the water, but his friends—and he has many—declare that they expect to see him back in Brooklyn in less than six months.

The funeral of Colonel Samuel Richards on Sunday was a sad one. Once wealthy, an office holder with a large following, for a number of years, and one of the hands of a large military organization, only four men attended the last honors. Four comrades in the Civil War they were: Police Captain Miles O'Reilly, chairman of the Grand Army of the Republic of Kines County; George H. Jackson, secretary of the same committee; John Letch, drummer; and John L. Sackerson, a big preacher. Comrade Sackerson made the prayer in the little undertaking room on Duane street, and Comrade Jackson read the burial service at the graves in the National Cemetery. Sad indeed was this funeral. And what a lesson!

Patrolman William Wagner, of the Ralph Avenue station, went out in Jamaica Bay the other day and showed the wise once how to catch fish. Sergeant Louis Sharkey and other professional knights of the rod had pointed out many stories about their catches that Wagner declared he'd "show 'em" Sharkey smiled and so did the others. But Wagner went down to Coney Island, hired a first hand staff, rowed out into the channel, he does not know yet just where, baited his hook with clams and tossed his line overboard. The row back to the wharf in an hour and he had a five-pound weakfish, two large bluefish, and a half dozen "professionals" returned that night in a $500 luxury boat from "away off the inlet," and all that their finger ribs with shad, crabs, blood worms and other expensive bait yielded were two flukes. Wagner tells the fish stories in the station house now.

Silas C. McFarland, American consul at Reichenberg, Austria, and the Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes, Jr., of New Haven, Conn., were passengers on the steamship Patricia, which arrived here to-day from Europe.

A jolly party of Borough Park girls, members of the social organization known as the Naechrae, went on an outing yesterday to Midland Beach, where they took in all the shows of that place. They were chaperoned by Mrs. Howard Allen and Mrs. C. Plumridge, members of the Ladies Aid Society of St. Jude's Episcopal church. Among those on the outing were the Misses Linda Allen, Florence Cozzens, Marguerite Orr, Blanche Plumridge, Edwina Plumridge, Bessie Stewart, Carrie Stewart, Marion Wilson and Mrs. Kay.

Sergeant Coleman, attached to the Herbert street station, has returned with his family from Rockaway, where he spent his ten days' vacation.

Sergeant Holloran, of the Herbert street station, is spending his vacation at Shohola Glen, Pa.

The Misses Bossert, of Richmond Hill, have returned from a visit to Catskill, N. Y.

Dudley Burner, of Quincy street, is visiting in the Catskills.

Mr. and Mrs. William McQuillan have returned from a two weeks' stay in Sullivan County.

A local newspaper advertising solicitor, who recently came into the Greenpoint section of the borough, thought everyone must know who he was, and strove to make his name known. He called on the other day with the assurance of youth and freshness.

"What have you got for me this morning," said the ambitious solicitor. The restaurant man replied that he was busy, but would see him in a few moments. The young man waited for a while until the restaurant keeper found time to attend to him. He repeated his question: "What have you got for me this morning?"

"Well, nothing just now, except a dishwasher's place at $15 per month. The 'solicitor' didn't himself tell the story.

Miss Margaret Costello and Miss Nellie Donohue, of Java street, are making preparations to spend their two weeks' vacation at the Atlantic Highlands, yachting and fishing. They are adepts in both sports.

Policeman Wrightman and Ferguson, of the Bedford avenue station, are known to their fellow officers as the "Gold Dust Twins." They are good workers.

Michael Toohy, widely known in the Eastern District, who at his country home, Pine Grove House, Shrub Oak, Westchester County, N. Y., met with a regrettable accident recently. While driving a young grey horse the animal bolted and Mr. Toohy was thrown into the road. Though no bones were broken he was so badly shaken up that he was confined to his bed. He has so far recovered that he will be able to return to business in a few days.

Bishop James H. Darlington, of Harrisburg, Pa., is expected to be a visitor during the week among some of his former parishioners of Christ Church, Bedford avenue. He also visited his successor, Canon Chase.

"Pop" Allen, as he is familiarly known among the patrons of the Lee Avenue Theatre, will resume the active management of the playhouse next season. Mr. Allen has been with Mr. Payton for years, and the latter would rather lose his right hand than the services of his affable and capable manager.

The choir boys of St. Paul's Church, Glen Cove, in charge of the rector, the Rev. J. W. Gammon, expect to open their camp at Lloyds Neck on Monday next. Two or three campers go to-day to prepare the camp for the reception of the others. There is usually a large party in the camp, and this is augmented every day by visitors who drive over from Glen Cove or go by water to see their friends. On one of the camping days last year about the number of campers was that the campers were going to have a clam bake there were sixty people at the camp.

The annual outing and games of the Republican clubs of the Sixth Assembly District, Lincoln Republican Club, George Wright Republican Association and William H. Allen Republican Association, will be held at Daur's Park, Jamaica avenue and Ward street, Richmond Hill, on Sunday, July 22. There will be dancing, prize boxing, baseball and other attractions.

The programme for the Even Seventy-first Regiment band concert this afternoon and evening at the Hotel Biscaya, Brighton Beach, includes these numbers: March, "Benedictus"; Ethen selection, "Robin Hood"; DeKoven, coronation march from "Prophet"; Meyerbeer, gems from "Florencia"; Stuart.

One of the most enjoyable events of the season was the annual trotting party of the Michael P. Murphy Association of the New Eleventh Assembly District in North Beach, L. I., last evening. The club is the largest organization in the district and the clubhouse is on the corner of Atlantic and Franklin avenues, where its members assembled and with a brass band marched to the cars in waiting. Mr. Murphy is one of the oldest and most prominent citizens in the district, and he was received with cheers when he appeared at the clubhouse. When North Beach was a bad supper was served, after which J. Scott, James Sloan, Minor C. Eastman, Peter Thompson, Harry Fisher, and Michael P. Murphy were roared, dined or made speeches. School Superintendent John Griffin also spoke of the success of the club and deemed it an honor to be a member.

The officers of the club are: President, Frank J. Kelly, vice president, James Sloan; secretary, J. C. Lathan; financial secretary, E. Urban Henderson; treasurer, "Big" Murphy; president of arms, Peter Thompson; committee of arrangements—Minor C. Eastman, chairman; and Absolute Cleanliness and Purity in Potted Meats for Your Table—What is it Worth to You?

ARE you willing to pay a little more and know what you are eating? The difference in price is just the added cost of selecting the solid choice parts (and nothing else) of prime chicken, turkey, ham and tongue, plus the price of scrupulous care in the preparation.

Richardson & Robbins' tinned delicacies, potted chicken, turkey, ham, tongue and luncheon meats have been prepared with the same integrity for fifty years. They have been specified in the victualing of yachts, used at officers' mess in the United States Navy, found on the tables of millionaires, but most purveyors have considered them too good for the general public because they cost a few cents more a can.

Do you think a few cents too much to pay for absolute cleanliness and purity?

Every step in the production of Richardson & Robbins' tinned meats is under the direct personal supervision of the firm. Every nook and corner of the plant is open to the public, and as clean as a new pin.

One would be willing to eat from any utensil used in the work. Even the floors are as clean as your own kitchen table. Every meat is tinned in a special sanitary can that opens with a key. Every can is sterilized before it is filled and afterward.

The Providence Bulletin, in an editorial commenting on the report of the Massachusetts State Board of Health, says:

"The firm of Richardson & Robbins, of Dover, Delaware, is entitled to the publication of the fact that all its samples analyzed were found to be of excellent quality."

Ask your dealer for Richardson & Robbins' potted chicken, turkey, ham, tongue, curried fowl, boned chicken and luncheon meats. Insist on the label "R. & R." It is your safeguard.
