

TUBERCULAR CATTLE DEBATED IN SENATE

Straus and Downing Lead Fight Against Reorganization of Farm Council.

MEASURE PASSED, 33 TO 13

Only "Bunking the Farmer,"
Says Senator Walker.

(Special to The Standard Union.)

ALBANY, Feb. 21.—There was a bitter fight in the Senate last night over the bill of Senator Ferris reorganizing the State Farm and Markets Council, substituting a commission and deputies instead of three commissioners as at present. It also recodified the law. The battle against the measure was led by Senators Bernard M. Downing of the East Side of New York, Nathan Straus, Jr., and Minority Leader James J. Walker, also of Manhattan. The debate was started by Senator Downing, who also began the fight last week when the bill was up for advancement.

The defense of the bill was made by Senators Lusk, Hewitt, Robinson and Ferris. The things roll called showed the city Democrats and one Brooklyn Republican, Charles C. Lockwood, voting against the measure. Senator Burlingame was not in the chamber when the vote was taken. Simpson, Harris and Katlin voted for the bill.

Senator Walker attacked the bill in vigorous terms and insisted the Republican majority was "bunking the farmer" by not providing for the payment at once of tubercular cattle slaughtered by the State. He insisted provision should be made now in the appropriation for the bureau to pay for the cattle.

"How do you know the Democratic Legislature of 1923 will make the appropriation for the diseased cattle that will be killed this year?" exclaimed Senator Walker. "The signs are there will be a Democratic Legislature in 1923."

This prediction was applauded by Democrats and ridiculed by the Republican members, who termed it "bull."

Sensor Downing, who insisted a hearing should be held in New York City on the measure and who fought it at every stage thus far, turned over the debate to Senator Nathan Straus, Jr., who made the main speech on the measure. Incidentally Senator Straus made one of the most effective speeches of his career in the Senate.

Sensor Straus made four distinct points against the measure, insisting that tuberculosis was growing by leaps and bounds among the cattle of the State. This was the first time he had been challenged by Republican Senator Lusk, who demanded proof. Senator Straus quoted Dr. Kierman of the tubercular extinction division of the Federal Bureau of Animal Industry to the effect that there was an alarming increase in the disease. Sensor Straus then insisted that one who subjected to the tuberculin test, and no complete data was available to provide adequate records. Sensor Straus insisted the only way to detect the disease was through the tuberculin test.

Sensor Lusk questioned the authority which Senator Straus quoted, and the latter said Dr. Kierman was one of the most eminent authorities in the world. Sensor Lusk said that the Federal records could not be accurate, as "we have a vast number of cattle in the State which had not been subjected to the tuberculin test," and no complete data was available to provide adequate records.

Sensor Straus insisted the only way to detect the disease was through the tuberculin test. He commented upon the admission of Senator Lusk and then pointed out other important sections, which he said were serious defects. Among other things, he said Straus said that the law permitted owners of cattle killed because of disease to dispose of the meat as they wished. He also added that "no other civilized government, or very few of them, permitted this course."

Sensor Straus also attacked a provision which, he said, permitted farmers to feed milk from tubercular cattle to other cattle. If the cattle was butchered "under supervision of the department."

Sensors Lusk and Robinson attacked this section and Senator Straus held to his point and insisted that the section should be amended, because such supervision was impossible by a department that admittedly was unable to make thorough tuberculin tests.

Sensor Straus argued for delay, but the bill went through by a vote of 33 yeas to 13 nays.

HINTS TO CORPORATIONS FOR INCOME TAX REPORT

Forms 1,120 for reporting net income of corporations for 1921 are available at the offices of collectors of internal revenue and deputy collectors.

The Federal tax on income of corporations is divided into two parts, income tax and excess profits tax. The income tax on corporations for 1921 is the rate of one per cent. of the net income subject to tax. For 1922 and subsequent years, as provided by the revenue act of 1921, the income tax is 12 1/2 per cent.

In ascertaining net income subject to the income (normal) tax, the corporation is allowed certain specific credits, which include (1) the amount of war and excess profits tax imposed by the United States for the same taxable year, and (2) interest received upon obligations of the United States and bonds of the War Finance Corporation which has been included in gross income.

A specific credit of $2,000 is also allowed corporation whose net income for 1921 was $25,000 or less. Under the revenue act of 1918, this exemption was allowed all corporations regardless of the amount of net income. The act provides that if the net income is more than $25,000, the normal tax shall not exceed the tax which would be payable if the $2,000 credit was allowed, plus the amount of the net income in excess of $25,000.
