"STAND AND DELIVER!"

The Latest Order Issued to Republican Officeholders.

All the Men Who Draw Salaries From the Government Have Received a Copy of a Document Which Has a Threatening Look—What Some of the Recipients, Especially the Democratic Ones, Have to Say.

Notwithstanding all that has been said about the plethoric purse at the disposal of the Republican state committee and the several barrels that were broached at the Fifth avenue headquarters, the confession is openly made to-day that there is not enough for the "legitimate expenses" of the campaign, and the federal employes in the two cities have been called upon to help fill the coffers. The circular which is printed below has been sent to every man in the city of Brooklyn who draws a salary from the United States government, and one of them, who is a Democrat and who has earned an honorable promotion in the postal service by years of faithful work, handed the copy he received to an EAGLE reporter this morning. Here it is:

REPUBLICAN STATE COMMITTEE, FIFTH AVENUE HOTEL.
WILLIAM BROOKFIELD, chairman.
CHARLES W. HACKETT, chairman executive committee.
SAMUEL THOMAS, treasurer.
JOHN S. KENYON, secretary.
REUBEN L. FOX, chief clerk.
Mr. ——:

DEAR SIR—The Republican state committee respectfully invites from you such contribution as you may be willing to make toward defraying the legitimate and necessary expenses of the important campaign now in progress in this state.

The clear and explicit platform unanimously adopted at Minneapolis and the worthy and unexceptionable candidates placed in nomination fairly represent all that is sound and good in the political life of our nation and, it may be confidently assumed, meet the cordial approval of the Republicans of the country.

To retain the benefits of the Republican policy gained by the great victory of 1888 it will be necessary to put forth all our strength. Defeat in 1892 means the reversal of the policy which has brought prosperity and the loss of all that was achieved in the contest four years ago.

Financial aid is needed to perfect organization, circulate sound political doctrines and to secure competent speakers. Checks may be drawn to the order of the treasurer and transmitted in the inclosed envelope. Very truly yours,

SAMUEL THOMAS, treasurer.

"Well, what are you going to do about it?" asked the reporter.

"I don't propose to do anything about it. I told Superintendent Smith of the letter carriers, department, who handed it to me, with the suggestion that a prompt reply would be in order, that I was a Democrat and that I had contributed to the Democratic campaign fund and that I should positively refuse to give a dollar to help the Republican cause. He hinted to me that I was making a great mistake and that, after thinking the matter over, I would come to the conclusion that the Republican candidates had claims on me which it would be very dangerous for me to ignore. I told Mr. Smith point blank that no such threat, as implied in his verbal interpretation of the 'stand and deliver' order issued by Treasurer Thomas had any terrors for me. I told him I had won the place I hold by virtue of the civil service laws enacted by a Democratic congress, and that I asked the Republican administration for no favors. I am a veteran who saw four years' service in the war and left a good chunk of a bone out of my right arm on the battle field of the Wilderness, and if I can't hold a position under the federal government without being taxed to support a party whose principles I believe to be wrong, then I am willing to resign."

But not all the letter carriers have the back bone of this one and out of the 500 employes in the post office and the other 1,000 employed in other capacities under the United States government in this city a large majority may be bulldozed into subscribing to the Republican campaign fund. It is understood that the contribution expected from the letter carriers is $10 a man and that the amount levied on the other federal employes has been graded according to the salaries they received.

"Have you received any request for a contribution to the Republican campaign fund?" another employe, who is a Republican was asked and he said: "I know what you mean. You refer to that circular that was sent out from the state headquarters. Well, now, do you suppose that any of the fellows will be fools enough to disregard it? Not much. I'm a Republican and do as much as any other Republican to support my party, but I want to be allowed do do it voluntarily and not to have a pistol held at my head. I told Superintendent Smith very plainly that it was a great mistake, and that as I had done all I thought I could be expected to do for the party I should have to decline to reply to Treasurer Thomas. He seemed surprised and intimated that he had hoped to raise a fund that would foot up a good, respectable figure to forward to Mr. Thomas as the contribution of the post office employes, but that he had so many replies like mine that he feared the thing would be a fizzle."

It is also said that copies of the above circular have mysteriously found their way to a great many of the cigar manufacturers and others who have occasion to transact business in Collector Nathan's office and that some of the more illiterate of them have been visitors at the federal building to find out what the thing meant and how much was the ante. At all events there is a very warm feeling on the subject of the circular in the federal building and it may be made very warm for certain parties who have acted as collectors before the thing is over.

An EAGLE reporter tried to interview Walter A. Smith, superintendent of carriers, as to the above circular and the report that he was the collecting agency for the Brooklyn post office in the matter. Mr. Smith was not in, and, after a considerable wait for his return, his assistant, Mr. Young, spoke for him: "I learn," Mr. Young said, "that such a circular has been received by some of the employes. But it was sent through the mails in the regular way. Neither Mr. Smith nor any of the rest of us has been distributing any such circular. We are too old birds in the business to get caught at any such game as that. Any employe," Mr. Young continued, "who chooses to contribute to a campaign fund has a perfect right to do so, and I hold that a man who lives off the government ought to help support it. That's where I stand. At the same time none of us has any business to ask or to hint for the payment of a cent and we're not doing it."

Being asked if Mr. Smith was collecting agent for such Republican employes as choose to give, Mr. Young said: "No, sir, he is not. He has not collected and will not collect any campaign funds whatever."

The reporter then asked Postmaster Collins about the circular, and the postmaster replied: "Such circulars come from outside and we handle them just like any other business circular. But nothing of the kind emanates from this office. If anybody says that campaign collection circulars have been distributed by anybody in this office, or any money has been or will be collected by anybody in this office, he says what is unqualifiedly false."

AN ABNORMALLY HAPPY POLICEMAN.

Policeman John O'Kane of the Twelfth precinct has been suspended, pending the trial of charges against him. It is alleged he was found drunk on post at the corner of Fulton street and Brooklyn avenue yesterday. His roundsman took him to the Atlantic avenue police station, and Captain Dyer sent him to bed. O'Kane had a merry load and laughed all the way to the station and uproariously as he was suspended.

"Ash all righ'. cap" was the laughing burden of his remarks.

MAY BE TREATED AS HE DESERVES.

LONDON, October 28—The appeal of Charley Mitchell the prize fighter, who on October 7, was sentenced to two months' hard labor for brutally assaulting George Salvage, an aged lodging house keeper, will be heard in January. Judge Sir Peter Edlin, before whom the appeal will be heard, has gained a reputation for the severity with which he deals with lawbreakers. He recently confirmed with promptness a sentence imposed by a police magistrate on the pugilist Pritchard, and this fact does not augur well for Mitchell.

STEVENSON AND EWING ON THE SITUATION.

The Outlook Good in Connecticut and in Illinois.

General Adlai E. Stevenson, accompanied by General James S. Ewing of Illinois, called at the Democratic national headquarters in New York at 11 o'clock this morning. They met Chairman Harrity, Colonel B. B. Smalley and Josiah Quincey of Massachusetts and conversed for full an hour. General Stevenson expressed himself as encouraged by the outlook to an Associated press representative.

"I spoke in Stamford, Conn., last night," he said, "and the outlook for success in that state for the Democrats is good. I leave at 5 o'clock this afternoon for Charlestown, W. Va., where I speak to-morrow afternoon. My last night's speech was the fifty-seventh I have delivered so far, not counting the impromptu addresses from railroad trains and from now on until after election I do not expect to have a day's rest. Concerning my letter of acceptance I cannot make any definite statement at this interview."

General Stevenson was asked his opinion of the remarkably heavy registration in Chicago.

"I consider it very favorable for the Democrats," he replied, "but General Ewing can speak more fully on that subject."

General Ewing expressed himself briefly on the subject.

"The heavy registration in Chicago," he said, "in my opinion augurs well for the Democrats. About twenty thousand new citizens have been nautralized and I think that the Democrats will get 75 per cent. of these. As a a rule the Democrats get the Italians and Germans, while the Republicans get the Scandinavians. Perhaps one cause of the heavy registration may be due to the fact that so many people have been drawn to Chicago by the world fair."

STABBED FOR AN INSURANCE POLICY.

Singular Ending to a Quarrel Between a Colored Couple

Margaret A. Davis, a colored woman, 41 years old, who lives on the top floor at 214 East Ninety-eighth street, New York, was stabbed in the left side and over the left eye this morning by Edward Gage, a young colored man of 20 Sixth avenue. The row, which was followed by the cutting, happened at the home of the Davis woman. She is now in the Presbyterian hospital and may recover. Gage is at large and the police are looking for him.

The people of the house know little about the affair. Mrs. Davis has been a widow for some time and Gage was a frequent visitor at her house. He went to the house early last night and the couple were drinking together. The quarrel arose over some insurance policy which Mrs. Davis had in her possession and which Gage wanted. Her refusal led to hot words and Gage tried to steal the paper. Mrs. Davis is a large sized women and was too much for Gage in a hand to hand encounter, so the latter drew a large pocket knife and stabbed the woman.

The people in the tenement had already been aroused by the scuffle and Mrs. Davis' yells brought half of them on a rush to her apartment. They were just in time to see Gage run up the stairway to the roof. They found Mrs. Davis lying on the floor bleeding and yelling. Gage ran along the roofs of the houses and then fled down some fire escape.

Policeman Angelem was summoned and the woman was sent to the Presbyterian hospital.

THE BURKHALTER BANK LOAN.

What a Representative of the Firm Says About It.

At the office of Dill, Chandler & Seymour, 31 Nassau street, New York, it was said this morning that while the matter of asking the supreme court to set aside the assignment of Burkhalter & Co. had been discussed, no positive decision had been arrived at. The attorneys mentioned represent a number of New England banking houses who hold paper of the bankrupt grocery firm and yesterday secured seventeen attachments, amounting to $93,000.

There is still great anxiety among the creditors because of the firm's seemingly peculiar methods, and the persons who called at the Hudson street store this morning, as representatives of creditors, were not backward in expressing their opinions. Neither John H. nor Charles Burkhalter could be seen this morning, but a person who said he was authorized to speak for them, although he declined to give his name, said that the firm's motives were misunderstood. He declared that at the time of the failure Burkhalter & Co. were indebted to the Irving National bank to the extent of $60,000. This was for loans extending over a long period. The bank held good collateral for this amount, so there was nothing strange in the fact of its name not appearing in the list of preferred creditors. The stock that was removed from the store on October 18, the informant continued, was not to secure the Irving National bank, but to secure a loan of $5,000, made by Mr. Matland, who was connected with the bank as director. The assignment was not recorded until October 20, but was actually made on the 19th. This stock is now in the storehouse of Dean & Co., at 302 Greenwich street.

THE JUDGMENT GREW WITH YEARS.

It Was $40 Once, but Now Crowell Will Have to Meet $92.76.

Over fifteen years ago Alfred F. Cross and Henry E. Beguelin, jewelry dealers in Maiden lane, New York, obtained a judgment of $40 in New Jersey against Frank J. Crowell, then doing business at Morristown. This morning the case came up before Judge Osborne of the city court on a motion for the appointment of a receiver. The judgment has now climbed up to $92.76.

Simon Sutton, for the firm, said that Crowell had moved to Brooklyn about six months ago and opened a store at 737 Fulton street. The judgment was revived here, and counsel claimed that as soon as the defendant learned of this he sold this stock to his next door neighbor, one C. M. Picard, for $1. Picard then turned about and sold the things to the defendant's wife for a like consideration.

Judge Osborne said he would appoint a receiver, and bond was fixed in the sum of $250.

SUCCESSFUL SALE OF BONDS.

A successful sale of permanent water loan registered bonds and registered tax certificates was made to-day in the controller's office, and the following awards were made of the water loan bonds. D. A. Moran, $50,000 at 101.68; W. J. Quintard, $100,000 at 101.55, and E. Morrison, $50,000 at 109.525. The award of the tax certificates was as follows: Williamsburgh Savings bank, $200,000 at 101.15; Dry Dock Savings bank, $700,000 in lots of $100,000, the prices ranging as follows: 100.13, 100.16, 100.19, 100.21, 100.24; 100.27, and 100.31. Dime Savings bank of Williamsburgh, $50,000 at 100.50; Kings County Savings bank at 100.125.

A QUESTION OF ELITENESS.

Jacob Baehr and his wife Mina, of 139 Ewen street, were prisoners in the Lee avenue police court this morning. They were charged by Frederick Heins with assault. He said they beat him with a potato masher. Jacob and his wife denied the charges and said Heins brought the suit because he was envious. Heins, on the other hand, alleges that Baehr and his wife beat him because he said that their family had no tone and that they were common people. The case was adjourned for trial.

LARGE FIRE IN BROCTON, MASS.

BROCTON, Mass., October 28—Brocton was visited last night by a $70,000 fire. About 7:30 the entire department was called to the factories of the Brocton Last company, on Crescent and Perkins streets, the largest in the United States. The fire destroyed valuable molds for last making, which are hard to replace. There was also about $3,000 worth of finished product owned by manufacturers. The company's loss is about $60,000. Some other manufacturers will sustain losses. It was one of the hardest fires the department ever faced, and the men worked four hours before the flames were subdued.

FIRE IN A BOARDING HOUSE.

ORANGE, Mass., October 28—Mrs. Boyd's large boarding house was destroyed by fire last night. Several of the inmates barely escaped with their lives. A waitress was taken from the burning building unconscious. The loss is $5,000, partly insured.

VERY SMALL POTATOES,

These Economical Ideas Regarding Sick Teachers' Pay.

Indications of a Lively Fight Over the Proposed Amendment to the Rules—What Some Influential Citizens Think of It—Nearly All Talk in Favor of the School "Marms."

The proposed amendment to the rules and regulations of the public schools, whereby the pay of teachers will be cut off for time lost through sickness, as explained in yesterday's EAGLE, has created much discussion. It appears that affirmative action on the measure by the board at next Tuesday's meeting will establish it as part of the code for the governance of the schools, and the liveliest kind of a fight to prevent this is confidently expected. The teachers headed, it is said, by Principal William M. Jelliffe of Grammar school No. 45, are making strenuous efforts to convince a majority of members of the board of the injustice that would be wrought by the amendment. The members of the board to a man possess positive opinions on the question, but pending the action of the board decline to talk for publication.

Mayor Boody did not wish to say anything on the subject until he had investigated the matter thoroughly. He thought that there was some reason for the proposed change, and would not express an opinion until he knew what that was.

Stephen M. Hoye, the president of the First ward Democratic club, can talk feelingly upon the subject, as his mother was a teacher for twenty-eight years, both before her marriage and after her husband's death.

"My mother was a teacher in Boston for many years," said Mr. Hoye, "and I know that teachers are not overpaid for the work they have to do. I am decidedly opposed to the change. No one knows of the privation that teachers have to undergo, especially those who have sick parents to support. I know of a case where in addition to supporting herself out of a pittance of eight hundred a year, the teacher gave three hundred of it to the poor people whose children she taught. There are politicians supported by the city who draw thousands from the treasury and do not give one-quarter of the work that any teacher does. Not only do the latter do their duty in the class room, but they have to prepare the lessons for the next day, this consuming the afternoons and evenings. For this they get no pay, and yet there are people who would not pay them in case of sickness. They are underpaid and I should think that a rich city like Brooklyn would be ashamed to do so small a thing as to refuse to pay them during a case of genuine illness, when expenses are at their highest."

Father Ward was emphatically in favor of the salaries being paid and said:

"Not only should they be paid, but an annuity should be given them when too old to work. We have very few lay teachers, most of the labor in this direction being done by members of religious orders. Our purse is not as large as the city's and beside we have to pay taxes as well as to support our own schools."

General C. T. Christensen thought that the proposed change, should it become a reality, would be eminently unfair.

"We pay our employes if they are ill and so did Drexel, Morgan & Co. when I was there. I think that the city should do likewise. When I engage a man I first look at his physical condition, even before examining his credentials. I find that we can get better work out of well than out of sick men. I think that teachers should be examined physically. Sailors and soldiers and policemen are, and I do not see why teachers should not be. This would do away with a great deal of sickness. Then, if they are taken sick, I would pay them. The city can better afford to pay them than not to do so."

"I am strongly opposed to anything that will tend to reduce teachers' salaries," said Dr. Lyman Abbott, "as I think them underpaid as it is. If any commercial concern proposed to deduct wages for time lost in illness, the matter would be thought very small indeed. As regards the physical examination, I agree fully with General Christensen."

William H. Hazard, president of the Fulton bank, had this to say: "I believe that teachers should be treated as, for instance, are the clerks in this bank. They should have fair pay and if taken sick should not be deprived of their salary. If one of the clerks here should be kept away on account of illness his wages would go on just the same for one month or six, but I should not expect to keep him on the pay roll if he should become a chronic invalid. So with teachers. There is none of them who would not quit teaching for something else, if it was possible to better his or her condition. If they are really sick for a reasonable length of time, which fifteen days certainly seems to me to be, they should not lose a cent. I am certainly opposed to anything that savors of pensioning teachers, for if that was done all city employes could with equal justice demand the same thing. So far as firemen and policemen are concerned they deserve a pension, because their duty is extra hazardous. But this matter of paying city employes should be managed as in private business, on business principles. There must be an end to the increase of taxation some time, and unnecessary expenditure of public money must stop."

Justice Pratt was trying a case in the circuit court when the reporter called to see him, but he stopped long enough to glance over the EAGLE story of yesterday and say:

"It would be pretty hard lines, it seems to me, to deprive teachers of their pay because they were kept away from school on account of sickness. I do not believe in doing anything of that kind."

Ex-Judge Reynolds was found in his office in the Phenix building.

"I have not read anything about the matter," said he, "and so am hardly in a position to give an opinion, but on general principles I can safely say this: Teachers are none too well paid now, and I believe should lose nothing for absence on account of sickness, provided, of course, that they are not away an unreasonable number of days. I do not consider that fifteen days for such absence is any too much, considering the fact that they are obliged to do work under conditions that are certainly calculated to overtax their physical strength."

Ex-Congressman Felix Campbell, president of the People's trust company, was found in the office of the company on Montague street. Said he, "I really do not care to express an opinion upon the subject, except to say, that we cannot be too kind to the people who devote their lives to the education of our youth. I have always done what I could for them, for the reason that I thoroughly appreciate their great value to the community."

RAN AWAY FROM A CONVENT.

A Sister of Mercy Says She Was Badly Treated—Said to Be Insane.

YANKTON, S. D., October 28—Agnes Crosser, a member of the Order of the Sisters of Mercy, who conduct the Sacred Heart convent in this city, has appealed to the King's Daughters, a charitable organization, for assistance. She claims to have been driven from the convent by the cruelty of the priests and another superior of that institution and is destitute and without friends. She has been a member of this order for four years and for a year past has been too ill to work. The convent authorities, she says, sought to compel her to assist in the labors about the establishment and when she declined they locked her in her room and it is said fed her bread and water. She appears half starved and is reluctant about telling her stories.

The convent people say she is demented and deny her charges of cruelty. She left the establishment stealthily on Thursday morning last during the hour for prayers and found a temporary home with a neighbor.

PAPAL DISPENSATION FOR A WEDDING.

ROME, October 28—The pope has granted a dispensation for the marriage of Princess Marie, eldest daughter of the Duke of Edinburgh, and Prince Ferdinand, crown prince of Roumania. The princess is a Protestant and the prince a Catholic. The dispensation does not depart from the absolute condition that all the children of the marriage shall be baptized in the Catholic faith and educated as Catholics.

FREIGHT TRAINS IN COLLISION.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., October 28—At 7 o'clock this morning two freight trains on the Big Four road came together with a fearful crash on the bridge over the Wabash river, near this city, and both engines and a dozen cars went to the bottom of the river, over one hundred feet below. It is believed several persons are killed.

TREASURER ADAMS' MODEST REQUEST.

Wants the Twenty-sixth Ward League to Withdraw Mr. Cox.

There will be a very lively meeting to-night of the Twenty-sixth Ward Independent Democratic league at its headquarters, on Bradford street, near Atlantic avenue. Then an answer will be given to County Treasurer Harry Adams to a request made by him to have their candidate for supervisor, Daniel J. Cox, withdraw in favor of William Doran, the regular Democratic nominee.

A meeting of the league was held last night, with Daniel J. Cox presiding and Secretary Peter J. Collins recording. The meeting had just adopted resolutions of sympathy for the family of the late Peter Sutter when County Treasurer Adams, Frank R. Maier, ex-Judge Emil Schiellein and Louis L. Happ walked into the room. Mr. Adams requested an audience, which was granted. He stated that they came there as a committee from the regular association to request a conference with a like committee from the league in order to see if the existing differences could not be amicably settled. Patrick Dobbins, Thomas W. Sherlock, Peter J. Collins and James Howard were appointed as such committee and the eight men retired to the Howard house, where the twenty-six district captains of the league were in session. County Treasurer Adams was asked in what way the differences could be settled.

"Well, I know that you are all Democrats," replied Mr. Adams, "and that you wish to see the Democratic ticket successful. Then, why not withdraw Mr. Cox in the contest for supervisor? By voting for him you will elect Mr. Wolfert, the Republican nominee."

The leaguers promised to give Mr. Adams an answer to-night. The county treasurer and his friends then left.

Then there was a meeting of the twenty-six captains and the committee of four. Patrick Dobbins was selected as chairman. After a long discussion it was resolved to demand the return of Captain Henry French to the Seventeenth precinct, the withdrawal of William Doran, the candidate for supervisor, and George C. Palmer, candidate for constable, and that all the members of the league be admitted in a body to the ward association.

FINNEGAN HAD LOTS OF FUN.

He Pelted Oysters at Diners in a Fulton Street Restaurant.

Justice Walsh to-day sent Patrick Finnegan of 50 Gold street to jail for two days on a charge of intoxication. Mr. Finnegan dined in Ernest Rober's restaurant, at 66 Fulton street, last night and refused to pay for his meal. He was noisy and a waiter unceremoniously put him out of the place. Then he picked up a box of oysters that stood on the sidewalk and amused himself for a while by shying them at the diners who were in the restaurant. He tired of this and threw the box and what remained of the oysters into the diningroom. Then he closed the performance by smashing the $50 window with a cobble stone.

Mr. Finnegan's recollection of all this little affair was very vague this morning, and if he erred he thinks he erred on the right side, for he pleaded not guilty. The charge against him now is one of malicious mischief.

A BROOKLYN MAN ASSAULTED.

He is Found Bleeding in the Streets of New York.

Heyman Hefety, 30 years old, of 55 Seigel street, this city, was found unconscious and bleeding at the ears early this morning, at the corner of Ludlow and Canal streets, New York. He was taken to Gouverneur hospital and may have a fractured skull. He had been out drinking with a friend last night and about midnight went into A. Gold's restaurant at 21 Orchard street. He left there in company with a man about 1 o'clock and the two had a row at Ludlow and Canal streets.

Hefety was struck on the head and fell to the pavement, his head striking heavily on the stone. A soda water man, with a stand near the spot, says that Hefety's companion resembles Gold, the restaurant proprietor. Policeman Werner went to find Gold, but the restaurant was locked up.

HENRY M. BISCHOFF'S MIND.

A Commission Will Determine Whether it is Affected or Not.

Levi A. Fuller, H. A. Wheeler and Dr. C. M. Bellows have been appointed a commission to inquire into the mental condition of Henry M. Bischoff of 80 Hewes street. The petitioner in the proceedings is Hattie A. Bischoff, wife of the patient. She deposes that her husband, who is 36 years old, for several months past has been unfit to govern his own affairs, owing to mental trouble.

On September 17 last Justice Pratt, on application, committed Mr. Bischoff to Sanford hall, at Flushing, for treatment. On August 15, 1888, the patient made a will bequeathing all his property to his wife and child. This consists of real estate, stocks, bonds and an interest in the firm of Henry M. Bischoff & Co., Wallabout market, in all valued at $90,000.

MEETING OF STEAMSHIP REPRESENTATIVES.

COLOGNE, October 28—A meeting was held here to-day of representatives of the North German Lloyd, Hamburg American, the Netherlands America and the Red Star steamship companies. It was agreed to work the east bound steerage traffic on the pool system, the same as the existing system governing the west bound steerage traffic. Measures were also adopted that will facilitate travel to Chicago during the Chicago Columbian exhibition, but the representatives of the companies are not yet willing to make public the passenger rates they agreed upon.

MR. HAYDEN'S LETTER A GENERAL ORDER.

The letter sent by Commissioner Hayden to Police Superintendent Campbell thanking the "superintendent, inspectors, captains, sergeants, roundsmen and patrolmen" for effective work and a fine display during the Columbian celebration, was to-day forwarded to the force in the form of a general order. Mr. Hayden says that the deportment of the men was highly commendable and "from superintendent to patrolmen every member of the force proved himself worthy of the favorable consideration of our citizens."

FOUGHT ON THE FERRYBOAT.

Miss Lizzie Mahoney, who lives at 607 Driggs avenue, in the Lee avenue police court charged Joseph Meehan of Jackson and Monroe streets and Mrs. Maggie Bender of 101 Grand street with brutally assaulting her on a Grand street ferryboat last Wednesday night. Miss Mahoney says she was returning from New York and was seated in the forward cabin of the ferryboat, when Mrs. Bender struck her. Meehan holding her hands so she could not strike back. She and Mrs. Bender were fast friends, but they had a falling out. The case was adjourned for trial.

BOAT UPSET AND ELEVEN PERSONS DROWNED.

LISBON, October 28—A most deplorable accident is reported from Sinfaes. While a ferryboat was crossing the River Douro near that place it capsized and all the people on the decks were thrown into the water. The accident was seen from the shore and many boats put out to the rescue of the people who were struggling for their lives in the current. Many of them were saved, but eleven persons went down before assistance could reach them. Among the drowned were seven school children.

ON TRIAL FOR CONSPIRACY.

The case of Frederick C. Dilthey, Henry A. Lotz, Elisha McCarthen and John Sackkert, well known residents of Rockville Center, charged with conspiracy, is on trial in the Queens county court of sessions in Long Island City. Dilthey sought to obtain a divorce from his wife some time ago and it is alleged hired the other defendants to obtain the necessary evidence.

District Attorney Fleming of Queens county quashed the indictment against John Fackkert and Elisha McCarthen this afternoon as he intends to use the two men as witnesses for the state.

LADY RANDOLPH CHURCHILL IS BETTER.

LONDON, October 28—Lady Randolph Churchill, who has been seriously ill, has so far recovered that Lord Randolph, who has been in constant attendance upon her, thinks it safe to leave her in the hands of her relatives here. He has accordingly gone off on a salmon fishing trip to the Tweed.

NATHAN BADLY RATTLED.

An Affidavit Used for a Campaign Document.

Baldwin and Oltrogge at His Suggestion Swear Before Judge Pratt That the Assembly Convention Was No Snap—Will Cuttlefish Join the Democracy?—Reynolds Has His Opponent Wagner on the Run.

Ernst Nathan has been thinking hard within the past few days. Reynolds, the independent candidate, is making such a hustling canvass in the Sixteenth district that Nathan is compelled to do much thinking and not a little work. Last evening, with David A. Baldwin, his lieutenant, and John F. Oltrogge, he sat down and drew up the following affidavit, which Baldwin and Oltrogge signed. This morning the latter proceeded to Judge Pratt of the supreme court and took an oath that the statement was true. It runs thus:

STATE OF NEW YORK, KINGS COUNTY, } S. S.

David A. Baldwin and John F. Oltrogge, being severally duly sworn on their solemn oaths, depose and say: That the Sixteenth district assembly convention, composed of thirty-two delegates from the Twenty-third ward and sixteen delegates elected from the Twenty-fifth ward, were directed by the Republican general committee of Kings county to assemble in convention at the wigwam, Gates avenue, October 12, 1892, at 8 o'clock P. M., and select a candidate for such district, David A. Baldwin being selected to call such body to order. That on October 12 deponents attended at the place named and waited until 8 o'clock and then, in accordance with the request of said committee (the decision of the court of appeals not having been rendered on Tuesday, as expected, on the question of the gerrymander of the state), adjourned the convention over until the next evening, October 13, at 7 o'clock sharp, informing the delegates that they must attend promptly the next evening, as a lecture was to be given on the tariff, with illustrations, at 8 o'clock. That we remained in the wigwam until near 9 o'clock informing all such delegates of such adjournment, which adjournment was published in the newspapers on the 13th. On the evening of the 13th of October at 7:15 the meeting was called to order by the chairman, who was elected permanent chairman and John F. Oltrogge secretary, the women and men having commenced to fill up the place to hear the lecture to be delivered by Mr. Harriman. The roll of delegates was called, those from the Twenty-fifth ward from a printed slip; no one responded from the Twenty-fifth ward. The chairman asked if there was a single delegate from the Twenty-fifth ward present; if so, he would be allowed to fill the entire delegation. No one responded. Mr. A. H. Leech then put in nomination Mr. Arnold H. Wagner, making a complimentary speech, which nomination was seconded by D. W. Northup in a speech; a motion was then made that Mr. Wagner be nominated by acclamation, which was unanimously carried; a committee of three was then appointed to bring Mr. Wagner before the convention. They left the room and in a short time returned with him. He made his speech of acceptance and Mr. Baldwin again asked: "Are there any delegates from the Twenty-fifth ward present?" No one answered. At that time it was nearly 7:45. The convention then adjourned. DAVID A. BALDWIN, Chairman.
JOHN F. OLTROGGE, Secretary.

The document was immediately wafted to the printer, who set it up in clear face type and put a storm cloud head on it that ran, "Be Not Deceived." The head is one of the few fruits of the continuous thinking that Nathan has been doing. This morning, when an EAGLE reporter called upon him, he saw the otherwise placid countenance disturbed by a faint smile. Mr. Nathan held the document tenderly in his hand and inquired if it could be printed to-day. He prefaced the statement, however, with the blind that it would first be necessary to get Mr. Wagner's consent to the publication. If the state is an earnest one, it looks very strongly as if Wagner had something to do with his own campaign. Such a view local political leaders have not heretofore entertained. Wagner finally entered the office and gave his consent. He must have intued the contents of the document, or else had the most implicit confidence in Mr. Nathan, for without reading it (and the presumption in Mr. Nathan's statement was that he had never seen it) he immediately stated that he was in favor of its publication. Then with a swish of his arms and a rub of his palms he made a few quick turns, and exclaimed, "Oh, I'm getting along very well. The rather plaintive note that pervaded the utterance suggested to the reporter's mind, the story of the mourner who cracked jokes at a wake to relieve the sorrow of his brethren. After the reporter had scanned the document, he asked Mr. Nathan if the taking of the oath before Judge Pratt was done with the intention of adding strength to it. Mr. Nathan practically admitted this, remarking at the same time, that perhaps the ordinary notary would have done just as well. The reason for swearing before Judge Pratt is as plain as the nose on one's face. Judge Pratt is a justice of the supreme court, and a man generally known and generally respected. Baldwin's name, which in Republican politics is synonymous with that of Nathan, looks more inviting to the average citizen with that of Judge Pratt beside it. To bother a supreme court justice, who is overrun with weighty cases, to take the oath of two men in a little assembly district fight, needs no explanation. The ordinary citizen will hardly pay attention to it, so politicians think, and it will have absolutely no value as a campaign document. In certain quarters it is ridiculed, just as was Mr. Nathan's action in securing the names of a dozen negroes, who had signed Mr. Reynold's certificate of nomination, and afterward had appended their names to a paper gotten up by Mr. Nathan, alleging that they were good Republicans, and intended voting the straight Republican ticket. These negroes are a peculiar element when signatures are required, and, according to the testimony of a prominent Twenty-fifth warder to-day, are now on the scent for some prohibition leader who has a paper for which he wants a score of names.

According to Mr. Nathan, the Sumner club, which contains a good many of the negroes alluded to in the preceding paragraph, indorsed Mr. Wagner last night. To a campaign headquarters lobbyist, who works invariably for Mr. Nathan, the story was told by a reporter. Said he: "The indorsement amounts to nothing. Their indorsement of Reynolds is as good as their indorsement of Wagner. If he wants those fellows to vote for Wagner he had better do as a local statesman named Cox once did, and that is to get a big barn and lock them all up in it the night before election and then march them out to the polls the next morning."

A Statement was published in the New York Sun a few days ago to the effect that there were rumors spreading that Ernst Nathan was thinking of going over to the Democratic party. This topic divides interest to-day with that of the assembly contest in the Sixteenth district. Said a politician in speaking of the matter to-day: "There is some appearance of truth in what the Sun stated. Mr. Nathan and Mr. Harrison are not fast friends, as every Republican knows. His conduct when Harrison was a candidate in the convention is very generally known, and, if it weren't for the fact that he holds a place under the administration, I think he would have a great many readable things to say about the President. But we never hear anything from him about Harrison in this campaign. It's all Wagner. Now, I don't live in the district and I'm only a little interested in this fight, but I do want to see some shouting and hard work for the Presidential ticket on the part of the man who aspires to lead the Republican forces in this county. Again, if the Democratic party paid him to wipe out Republicanism, he couldn't do it more effectually than he is doing it now. How ridiculous! A contest among Republicans in the only sure assembly district in the county. This fight, I think, means Nathan's doom. Wait until December and Nathan will merely be a memory." Said Clarence A. Borrow, who has recently come into politics: "That division of the Twenty-fifth ward was a great shame and I think Nathan is getting the punishment now."

Patrick Egan, who was minister to Chili, will speak at the Clermont avenue rink next week. Major William McKinley will make his bow on Monday night, and to-morrow evening Whitelaw Reid, William M. Evarts and Congressman Wise will help entertain the big audience that is expected to turn out to hear them. Egan, it was stated jocosely in Republican headquarters, will speak under the auspices of the oratorical ex-Judge Rooney.

Harlan P. Halsey, an active Republican and one of the most influential members of the party in this city, was approached by S. B. Chittenden, treasurer of the campaign committee, recently and asked for a contribution to help elect Harrison. Mr. Halsey responded that he had nothing to gain by Harrison's election and would give nothing. Halsey, by the way, is one of Nathan's lieutenants.

THE STAGE WAS OVERTURNED.

A Mishap at East Rockaway That Might Have Been Serious.

What came very near being a fatal accident occurred yesterday evening at East Rockaway and for the time caused considerable excitement among the residents of the place. One woman received serious injuries. The one horse stage which is run to meet the 6:30 P. M. train at the depot was passing Washington Abrams' place, when the horse shied at an object at the side of the road and started to run. In the attempt of the driver to check the animal the vehicle was upset, throwing to the ground its occupants. The screams of the women brought to the rescue several neighbors, who assisted in extricating the injured persons from the overturned stage. Mrs. Floyd Williams was taken out first. She was severely bruised about the body and her head was gashed in several places. Mrs. Wilson was found to be in a fainting condition when removed to her home. She remained unconscious during the night and serious results were for a time feared by her friends. Colonel Garrett, Lester Rogers and the driver of the stage were shaken up considerably and their clothing torn. As soon as the wagon was overturned the horse began struggling for liberty and, breaking away, went down the road on a run. The animal was caught, however, before any further damage was done. Local physicians attended to the injured travelers, who are suffering no little inconvenience as a result of the accident.

WAS A BOGUS DIPLOMAT.

An Ex-Convict Masquerades as a Salvadorian Minister.

BERNE, October 28—The Swiss government has canceled the mission of the new minister from the Republic of Salvador, in Central America. This action has been taken in view of an astounding discovery to the effect that the minister is an ex-convict who has been in prison in Paris and whose measurement, from the thumb to toe nail, is now in the possession of the Parisian police. This ex-convict diplomatist is a Sicilian adventurer who, finding the field for brigandage in that island not sufficiently profitable, or perhaps too dangerous, changed the scene of his operations to the French capital and there came to grief. The description of him taken by the French police before he had his head shaved preparatory to a course of prison diet and compulsory exercise leaves no doubt as to identity, and the Swiss government is satisfied that the man is a fraud and a swindler. It appears that he presented forged papers to the Swiss government, the papers having the seal of the government of Salvador, and bearing every appearance of having been issued by the government of that republic. The bogus minister was duly accredited on the 9th of March last and his arrival was hailed as a pleasant token of friendship on the part of one of the young republics of America for the oldest republic in Europe. The adventurer succeeded, it is said, in hoodwinking the Salvador legation in London and, according to latest reports, he is believed to be in that city; probably utilizing his pretended dignity in contriving new swindles.

THE WYOMING MAN APPEALS.

White Carries His Case To the United States Supreme Court.

If Charles A. White does not succeed in securing his release from the clutches of Deputy Sheriff Kelley of Laramie county, Wyoming, he at least intends to spend a large slice of the $150,000 he is accused of stealing from his wife, in the effort to prevent extradition. The case came up again this morning before Judge Wallace, in New York, on an adjourned hearing for a writ of habeas corpus to prevent the removal of White from this state, on requisition papers granted by Governor Flower on Wednesday. White's counsel contended that the affidavit subscribed to by the counsel of Laramie county, Wy., was insufficient, inasmuch as the man who made it did not know if the facts set forth were true or not.

After hearing arguments on the case yesterday Judge Wallace adjourned the case until this morning, when he dismissed the writ of habeas corpus. Mr. Safford was apparently prepared for this, for he at once submitted a type written document, giving notice of an appeal to the supreme court of the United States.

Judge Wallace said: "The law gives you power to appeal, no matter how trivial or frivolous the pretext. I must grant it."

Mr. Safford then made an application to the court to allow White the privilege of supporting himself and enjoying reasonable privileges during the pending of the appeal.

Mr. McManus said: "You want him to be allowed to eat up our money."

Mr. Safford said that since the arrest White had been kept in solitary confinement and was nearly murdered.

White looked pale and nervous when the case was decided against him. He was demanded in the custody of Deputy Sheriff Kelley.

RAPELYEA SKIPPED WITH THE CASH.

Now Wyckoff is Suing for a Dissolution of the Copartnership.

Justice Pratt of the supreme court has granted permission to make service by publication upon the defendant in the suit of Abraham V. Wyckoff against William W. Rapelyea. The parties to the action kept a general store at Hempstead, L. I. The plaintiff says that on October 19 last the defendant skipped out after borrowing and appropriating all the money he could get hold of.

Mr. Wyckoff says that his partner, before going, drew $5,000 of the firm's money from the bank. He also, it is said, borrowed $872 from Leonard C. Smith. From a telegram received by one Gertrude Wood, a friend of the defendant, the plaintiff says he believes Rapelyea is now in St. Louis.

The assets of the firm are given as $9,000, with liabilities of $6,000. The suit is for a receiver and dissolution of the copartnership.

STEWART POPPED IN FUN,

But the Little Joke Will Cost Him $5,600.

Miss Leonora Aldis, the New York Police Captain's Daughter, Wins Her Breach of Promise Suit, and in Connection Therewith Chief Justice Sedgwick Lays Down the Law to Trifling Bachelors.

Miss Leonora Aldis, daughter of a well known police captain of New York, now dead, was given a verdict of $5,600 this morning, in her suit for breach of promise against George Stewart, by jury in the superior court before Chief Judge Sedgwick. She sued for $20,000 and the case after continuing for several days was given to the jury at 11 o'clock. The judge in charging the jury said a number of things that will make many bachelors pause before they give utterance to sentiments of esteem or affection. In dwelling on this particular case he declared that even if the young man said in a joking way that it would not be a bad idea for the young woman and himself to go off and get married such a statement was a declaration of love and a proposal of marriage.

The judge further said that proposal in fun was just as binding as one in dead earnest which, caused a profound sensation in court. At the request of plaintiff's counsel he said that the jury must consider the physical suffering of the petitioner in deciding on a verdict.

Miss Aldis was present in court accompanied by her sister and a number of friends. She appeared to be in excellent spirits and wore a look of self confidence. She glanced scornfully at her old time but faithless lover who sat as far away from the plaintiff as the dimension of the court room would permit. He occupied a seat in the corner and was almost hidden from view by a spectator whose bald head was offset by his profuseness of whiskers.

Both parties to the suit manifested considerable interest in the proceedings and the defendant had somewhat of the "crushed tragedian" air when the verdict was announced.

FREIGHT TRAINS IN COLLISION.

A Disastrous Wreck in the Railway Yards at Reading.

READING, Pa., October 28—Near Birdsboro', Pa., this morning while a Philadelphia and Reading engine was shifting some coal cars, a long freight train came along and dashed into them just as they were going on to the siding. The freight locomotive was upset and Fireman Henry Kinzel and Engineer Eli Miller were severely injured. The fireman was pinned fast in the wreck and it required several hours to get him out. It is claimed that the trainmen neglected to send one of their number ahead, for shortly after another freight train came along and dashed into the wreck. The first wreck was a serious affair of itself, both engines being badly smashed and many cars wrecked. When the second freight struck the debris the locomotive plowed into the broken cars and was badly damaged.

The train it was drawing was piled up in several places and the tracks were torn up. This was the most disastrous freight wreck on the Reading road for years and it will take all day to clear up the debris. The passenger train due here before 7 A. M. was three hours late.

EXPERIMENTAL BALLOON OBSERVATIONS.

Went Up Ten Thousand Feet to See About the Weather.

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 28—The first of a series of experimental balloon ascensions to be conducted by the agricultural department was made yesterday. A large balloon was sent up from Fort Myer, across the Potomac, carrying Professor H. A. Hazen of the weather bureau and John T. Ellis of the agricultural department, who had charge of the rainfall experiments in Texas last year.

The object of the ascent was to test the relative humidity of the air strata at different heights, and the trip was successful. The balloon was up three hours, attaining a height of 10,000 feet and landing seven miles from the starting point. The cloud strata stood at 14 degrees and was frozen, and even the surrounding clear air was completely saturated, though the upper region was found to be very dry. The difference of 40 degrees in temperature between the highest elevation and the surface of the earth was very unusual.

VESPUCIUS NOT A FRAUD.

There is a Fair Show of Evidence of It, Says Dr. E. G. Porter.

But the Controversy as to Who Discovered America Must Go On Because Markham Still Holds to the Theory That Columbus' Rival Concocted Voyage—Lecture at the Brooklyn Institute.

Members and friends of the department o political science of the Brooklyn Institute of arts and sciences listened to an interesting lecture at Association hall, Fulton and Bond streets, last evening, by Dr. Edward G. Porter of Amherst, Mass. The lecture was the fourth in the course on "The Discovery of America," the subject being "Americus Vespucius and the Early Books About America." Dr. Porter said, in part:

Never before in our history have we had such a popular celebration of the discovery of America as that which we have been witnessing during this beautiful month of October. One hundred years ago hardly any attention was given to the subject. The Tammany society in New York and the Massachusetts Historical society in Boston, had appropriate literary exercises, but the general public took no notice of the event. Now, however, we have seen our whole country profoundly moved by the stirring sentiment of the hour, while Canada, Central and South America, Spain and Italy, have eagerly joined in the Columbian chorus. Columbus deserves much of the honor which is bestowed so lavishly upon him. It will always be true that he first found the new world and that is glory enough for any man. But we must remember that he lived in an age of discovery. The air was full of it. During the four years that followed before the century closed many bold and enterprising navigators were pushing their way across the Atlantic. Among them was the man who will always be conspicuous in our history, because this whole western hemisphere bears his name. We are anxious to know all that can possibly be learned about him. Hitherto, it must be confessed, his name has been associated with an unsavory suspicion. He has been regarded as a usurper, seeking to defraud Columbus of his honors, and many of our countrymen would gladly have exchanged the name America for Columbia. But time and the careful study of documents are bringing about an entire change of opinion regarding Vespucius. It is now well known that he never attempted to give his name to the new world, that he was in no way responsible for the suggestion and that he died without any conception of such a country as South America. And not only is he now relieved of the old charge, but, it is claimed, with a fair show of evidence, that he landed upon the continent more than a year before Columbus did, and so, as between the two, his name is not unworthy to be attached to it. Amerigo Vespucci was born in Florence, in 1451, of a well known patrician family, several members of which had held important offices of state. His education was directed by a learned uncle, Antonio Vespucci, friar of San Marco, whose school was attended by many young Florentines of distinction. Amerigo was specially fond of cosmography, astronomy and nautical science and availed himself of early opportunies to embark in commercial affairs under the patronage of the powerful house of Medici. At the age of 40 we find him at Seville, fitting out ships for an Italian merchant, who had contracts with the Spanish government. Columbus returned about this time from his first voyage and when the preparations were made for another, Vespucci rendered valuable aid in the equipment of the fleet. There is no proof that he ever sailed with Columbus, although they were good friends and assisted each other on several occasions. Vespucci is said to have made four voyages, of which he wrote a full account. In a letter to Pier Soderini, the gonfaloniere of Florence, his old friend and school mate, he describes the first voyage very fully, saying that he sailed from Cadiz May 10, 1497, with four vessels and called at the Canaries and then crossed "the great gulf of the ocean sea" in thirty-seven days, and reached a land which they "deemed to be a continent [probably Honduras] a thousand leagues west of the Canaries." He gives a minute description of the country and of the people, their appearance, customs, dwellings, food, laws and religion. He then cruised apparently along the coast of Yucatan and Mexico and came to the Province of Lariab (perhaps Tampico) where they tarried about a month, and then continued their course, he says, along the shore for 870 leagues. This would have taken them around the Gulf of Mexico and Florida and up on our coast as far as Hatteras, to a point where, he says, they reached "a harbor, the best in the world" (Hampton Roads), where they found a friendly people who assisted them in repairing and restocking the ships. On the homeward voyage they visited (100 leagues out in the ocean) a group of islands (Bermudas) one of which was called Iti. They there took in a cargo of slaves and sailed for Cadiz, where they landed October 15, 1498. The authenticity of this letter has been doubted by many, but Humboldt, Varnhagon and Fiske accept it and seek to relieve Vespucci of the odium which he has borne so long. Much turns upon the word "Lariab" which in the Latin version was changed into "Parias," whereby Vespucci seemed to be claiming to have found the pearl coast which Columbus discovered the next year. Markham still holds to the old theory that Vespucci concocted an imaginary voyage based on events which took place when he sailed with Ojeda two years later. So the controversy must still go on. Mr. Fiske, however, stoutly holds his ground, and it is hoped that his explanation of the vexatious puzzle, may yet be clearly established, for it is in accord with the supposed character of Vespucci as an unobtrusive, artless and straightforward man. His letters seem to be singularly transparent and truthful, as written to a private friend and not for the public gaze, or by one who was posing for posterity. He wrote readily, more so, perhaps, than any contemporary navigator, and it is to this fact that we can trace the circumstance of the naming of America, although he himself knew nothing of it. A letter of his addressed to Rene II., Duke of Lorraine, fell into the hands of a German scholar, Waldseemuller, at St. Die, when writing a work upon cosmography, and being deeply interested in the narrative, he suggested, in his admiration for the man, that the newly discovered world, quarta orbis pars, should be called after him, America. So it happened, as such things are apt to happen. Thus many a town and many a state has received its name by haphazard and not by formal or official decree. Vespucci afterward discovered a portion of Brazil, and gave the names to Bahia and Rio Janeiro. In 1508 he was made pilot major of Spain. He died in 1512 before his name had appeared on any map of the new world.

Mr. Porter closed with a description of some of the early books relating to America.

The next lecture, the fifth in the course on "The Discovery of America," will be by Charles F. Levermore on next Thursday evening.

REPORTS ON KINDERGARTEN WORK

Made to the Department of Pedagogy at the Institute.

The Department of Pedagogy of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences met yesterday afternoon at 4 P. M. in the French room of the Young Men's Christian Association building, for the purpose of hearing the reports of the special committees on kindergarten work. Mr. W. B. Gunnison was chairman and Mrs. George E. Orton acted as secretary. The committees on the following sections then read their reports: Brooklyn and New York, Mrs. E. B. Battle; New England states, Mr. W. L. Fitzgibbons; Middle states, Miss Hannah Mowry; Southern states, Miss Emma Hotchkiss; Central and North Central states, Miss Marie C. Hornby; Rocky Mountain and Pacific states, Miss E. Moriarity. The chairman of the committee on foreign states was not in attendance, and as there was only one member of the committee present, there was no report.

The reports were all referred back to the chairmen of the various committees to be compiled for the publishing committees.

The report showed that the New England states, the Middle states and the Rocky mountain section had made the most progress in kindergarten work. The attitude of the educational authorities in all sections was favorable to the work.

At the next meeting, which will be held on the fourth Monday in November, Miss Mowry of Pratt Institute will open the discussion on "How Can Suitable Kindergartens be Provided for the Public Schools if the Work Should be Adopted by the School Authorities."

After discussing a number of minor subjects, the meeting adjourned.

CONSPICUOUS BY THEIR ABSENCE.

To the Editor of the Brooklyn Eagle:

While viewing the school division of the grand parade of last Friday one thing struck me as being somewhat remarkable.

While the public schools showed well, both in numbers and discipline, equal in every respect to that of the public schools of New York on the 10th inst., I looked in vain for the private schools. Besides a few denominational schools the only secular school that I observed was the Bedford heights institute. These cadets in their neat uniforms, and followed by a tally ho, made a fine appearance; but how do you account for the absence of the Polytechnic institute, the Adelphi and other institutions with which Brooklyn is so liberally supplied and of which she is so justly proud? Would not this have been a proper occasion to show their enthusiasm and patriotism, even if it had involved some labor?

THE MUSEUM BUILDING.

Suggestion for Modifying the Architectural Competition.

To the Editor of the Brooklyn Eagle:

Permit me to point out what I consider glaring defects in the conditions governing the architectural competition for the Baooklyn institute building. I am informed that those eligible to compete are such architects as are members of of the advisory board of the department of architecture only. Here I consider a great injustice is being done to the younger and as yet unknown members of the profession. Why should they be thus debarred? Is it that they might be found formidable competitors? Nevertheless, this guarding of the competition for the benefit of a few does not prevent anyone sending in sketches, as the names of the authors are not, I understand, to be made known till after the award is made and after being on public exhibition. Should, therefore, a design sent in by an outsider be among those adjudged best I imagine the people of Brooklyn will see to it that justice is done the author. I am also informed, but this I can scarcely credit, that five architects are to be chosen and invited to send in sketches, and these with the authors of the three best ideas from those not specially invited to be paid a certain sum each and form the short heat for the final competition. It may be well to pay certain architects to get them to compete, but here priveleges should end. And should any of the ideas of those invited be inferior in merit to others, let them be substituted by such even if all for final competition had to be taken from the uninvited ones. Let merit of preliminary sketches alone govern for final competition. I would also suggest that three architects only be chosen whose sketches with the five best from the field be paid for. WILLIAM MILLAR.

FUNNY,

isn't it? Can you understand a man putting off buying his Winter Overcoat because once in a while we get a sample of the Indian Summer? Out of every seven days just now at least four are cold enough for Winter clothing.

Of course, if a man prefers to pay doctors' bills to buying an Overcoat which will be both neat and serviceable, why, let him do it.

Our Overcoats for Men are in every style, in the latest patterns, and cut with an elegance not surpassed by any custom tailor. Prices, $15.00 to $35.00.

REGISTRATION OF VOTERS.

Friday........................October 28
Saturday......................October 29
Hours: 7 A. M. to 10 P. M. each day.

When and Where to Register.

Two days more are set apart for the registration of voters in Brooklyn this year. They are to-day, October 28, and Saturday, October 29. The boundaries of the districts and the locations of the polling places, as arranged by the board of elections, are to-day published in the EAGLE and will be on succeeding days. The hours are from 7 A. M. to 10 P. M. on each one of the two days named.

The EAGLE advises its readers in no partisan spirit to register. As its constituency includes all men of all parties resident here it would have them qualified, without exception, to express their opinions at the ballot box. Whether they are Democrats and independents who intend to vote for Cleveland, Republicans anxious for the re-election of Harrison, populists who prefer the choice of Weaver, or prohibitionists who would seek solace in the triumph of Biddle is immaterial so long as their names are down. Enrolled they are vital factors in the political life of the community. Unenrolled they can exercise no influence on electoral results.

Everybody who can, unless he has done so, register, accordingly, on to-day or to-morrow. The places will be open until 10 in the evening.

Hill and MacVeagh.

Wayne MacVeagh has made the Republican quota of the professional Irishmen very mad; unnecessarily done so in the EAGLE's opinion. Senator Hill is positionally and personally aware of the equal capacity of the Democratic quota of the professional Irishmen to get mad. He, therefore, agrees with the EAGLE (for once) in regarding MacVeagh's acerbity as injudicious and in thinking that he could well have renounced his old party—with a little more regret and with a little less reproachfulness, even if he had to feign the one and choke down the other.

On this account, Senator Hill in Tammany hall and in an interview with the Herald said some very sharp things about MacVeagh. We think they had been better unsaid, if only because they were too MacVeaghey, so to speak. It is better to weep over an errorist than to club him. It conserves dignity and energy to do so. The errorist is more readily righted.

The actual ire of the Republican professional Irishmen and the possible ire of the Democratic professional Irishmen need not disturb Senator Hill. The professional Irishmen in both parties are to the sensible Irish Americans not as one to ten. The Irish Americans are the great body of men of Celtic birth or descent. They are Democratic on principle.

They are ashamed but not afraid of professional Irishmen in either party. They are undisturbed. Senator Hill should be. Mr. MacVeagh can do and is doing good service, despite his "break" which Senator Hill should have taken logically, like the EAGLE, not hotly, as he did.

The Damage Shark.

The Dalton gang did not have a reputation for villainy without good reason. Its desperate fight when the people of Coffeyville resisted its attentions was so recent that it has not been forgotten. It will be remembered that the outlaws proposed to carry away all the money which could be found in the banks of the Kansas town and that they were prepared to kill everyone who hindered them. Several of the outlaws themselves were killed, however, after a hot fight in which several of the people who were defending their property were murdered. Some of the robbers who were too badly wounded to escape were arrested and turned over to the surgeons, who were instructed to take the shot out of them, so that they might be tried for their crimes and hanged. Emmet Dalton was one of these unfortunates and he is said to be on a fair road to recovery and the gallows. His brother, William, was not in the fracas and is consequently free. He has gone to Coffeyville and announced his intention of suing the town for $10,000 damages because $900 was taken from the pockets of the dead bandits. This seems to be a financial transaction purely, and it will tax the mathematical ingenuity of the damage lawyer who is said to be responsible for the proposed suit to explain how any dead man can suffer injuries worth $10,000 because of the loss of less than one-tenth of that amount. The case should be tried in the town where the outrages were committed, before a jury of citizens whose lives were endangered by the desperadoes. The verdict would probably be a just one, though it might not suit the plaintiff. His audacity is startling and the avidity of the lawyer is characteristic of his class. No one but a professional damage shark would think of taking such a case. The folly of attempting to offset the loss of $900 against the slaughter of innocent citizens, and the insolence of the demand for $10,000 to boot, so that the exchange might be a fair one, are things of which only such men are capable. The Kansas attorney is a man who attemps by legal process to commit the robbery which the Daltons would do by force of arms. The latter process is the more honorable. While the disrupted gang had descended to depths of villainy, the lawyer in question had sunk still lower.

Cleveland and German Americans.

That was a notable demonstration in Cooper Union last night. The German American citizens of the metropolis, who engaged in it, showed that they are heartily enlisted in support of the Democratic candidates. With men of such sterling reputation and ability as Carl Schurz, Oswald Ottendorfer and William Steinway among the prominent speakers there could be no doubt of the thoroughly representative character of the assemblage. Mr. Schurz's appearance on the rostrum, notwithstanding his sadly impaired health, is in itself a gratifying and inspiring event. It emphasizes the strong and straightforward counsel conveyed by him in a letter to Brooklyn friends earlier in the canvass. His speech proves that physical ailments have neither beclouded his intellect nor moved him from the broad integrity of purpose which characterizes his treatment of public questions. His words of warning and advocacy ring out like trumpet notes for the cause of the plain people. They will touch a responsive chord not only in the vast multitude to whom they were addressed, but in the minds of thoughtful voters throughout the republic. Mr. Ottendorfer and Mr. Steinway supplemented the address of Mr. Schurz with practical reasons why the general welfare will be promoted by the election of Cleveland and Stevenson.

But Mr. Cleveland's part in the demonstration was the most striking feature of the night. His speech was one of the best contributions made to the Democratic canvass. After delicately but not effusively complimenting his hearers and paying a handsome tribute to the virtues of their race, he discussed candidly and cogently the broader issues before the public. Our citizenship, he argued, grows out of our allegiance and devotion to the government which claims our patriotic support; but we can hardly be accused of straining the meaning of words when we insist that if we are to be fellows in our citizenship this fellowship is only realized when we enjoy in an equal and just manner the advantages of our citizenship. Mr. Cleveland, in continuing, said:

Whether this is our actual condition is at this time a subject of anxious popular inquiry. We find a political party soliciting the suffrages of our people in support of the doctrine that this fellowship in our citizenship is secured when the prosperity of certain especial interests is favored in the making and execution of our laws, and is made a direct charge upon the industry of those not within the circle of governmental partiality. As a result of the successful assertion of this doctrine we find enormous unearned fortunes in the hands of a few individuals, while those who, in an unequal race, patiently rely upon personal thrift and sturdy individual effort are far in the rear. Inequalities of fortune furnish no ground for discontent when they are due to differences in enterprise, legitimate opportunity or natural endowment. When, however, they are traceable to governmental interference in behalf of a small minority of our people, at the expense of the remainder, nothing but the deception or partisan blindness of those who suffer can prevent them from challenging this injustice and demanding the consideration due them by virtue of their fellowship in American citizenship.

Against the violation of their rights in this fellowship, Mr. Cleveland finds his German American fellow citizens protesting with all the vigor that is everywhere distinguishing supporters of the Democratic party and its candidates. Their protests he interprets as a revolt from the mockery of calling those our fellow citizens who are deprived of an equal participation in the advantages promised under free institutions. "Let us always remember," said Mr. Cleveland in conclusion, "that unjust conditions are not due to any infirmity in the principles upon which our government is founded. They are sufficient for us in all our needs. Injustice is born of their perversion. We are led, therefore, directly to the conclusion that the remedy for unfair inequalities in the distribution of the benefits of our American citizenship is in the hands of the voters of the land, and that if there has been a departure from the lights which should guide the operations of our government it is for the people to demand a return to safe channels."

Mr. Cleveland's direct and patriotic utterances appeal with irresistible force to the ready common sense of the people. Their effectiveness is not confined to citizens of German birth or descent. Nevertheless, they apply with peculiar fitness to the great body of men in whose veins flows Teutonic blood. These men, formerly divided in political opinion, are now affiliated in overwhelming numbers with the Democratic party. Few movements in modern American politics have been fraught with graver consequences than the increasing tendency of German American voters to sustain Democratic positions on public questions. Many of those who formerly associated with Republicanism because they regarded it as an instrument for the extinction of human slavery have severed the association because they believe that party has become a source of industrial oppression, class distinction and sumptuary legislation. They have seen the Republican organization conspicuous in assaults on personal liberty. They have seen the Democratic party as steadfast in its defense of individual rights. The former, after benefiting by their support, has fooled with or flouted them. The latter, true to its historic traditions, has steadfastly sustained and vindicated the prerogatives of common manhood. Conversions of former German Republicans to Democracy have been numbered not by hundreds but by tens of thousands. They find in Grover Cleveland an ideal candidate. They are, as he is, in favor of an equitable system of taxation, of an honest currency, of respecting the rights of the states and their inhabitants under the constitution and of judicious economy combined with thorough efficiency in the administration of public affairs. Their support, enthusiastic and unwavering, should give Mr. Cleveland a very large preponderance of the popular vote. It ought to be markedly potential in the debatable states where the German immigration has largely found lodgment. In none of these should it carry greater weight than in the state of New York, admittedly the decisive point in the pending contest for ascendency in the nation.

DeWitt C. Littlejohn.

DeWitt C. Littlejohn died yesterday in Oswego. His name was once familiar in the active political and legislative affairs of the state. At first a Whig, he naturally fell into the Republican line, maintaining his regularity in its ranks, with an apostasy, along with Chauncey M. Depew, Whitelaw Reid and others, in the direction of Horace Greeley, in 1872. His vagrant disposition continued until 1882, when he returned to the fold. He was many years a member of the assembly and was elected and re-elected speaker again and again. In length of Albany service he stands next to the late Mr. Husted. He was an industrious member, a good parliamentarian and presided skillfully and effectively.

Register!

At the head of this page the EAGLE carries an earnest appeal to register.

The appeal has been reiterated several days before the date of each time set for registration as well as on each day of registration.

That practice will be continued until the registration closes.

No further appeal is thought to be or should be necessary.

The EAGLE's duty is accomplished when it reminds citizens of their duty.

Their registration is their business. It is not the EAGLE's business.

For the EAGLE statedly and earnestly to remind them of the fact should—and certainly must—suffice.

This paper does not propose to turn itself inside out to get men to do what they know they ought to do and what nobody else can do for them.

How Many Men Is a Man?

There was a Republican mass meeting in New York city, in Wall street, last week. There was a Democratic mass meeting in Wall street, on Thursday. Both were largely attended. At both, political addresses appropriate and acceptable to the persons present were made. The EAGLE is aware that both occasions were called in advance and at the time of them, and have been called since, "business men's meetings," but the EAGLE sees nothing which makes those gatherings differ from assemblages in Cooper Union or Tammany hall, over the river, or in the Academy of Music or the rink here, except the time and place. Republicans came out to the one. Democrats came out to the other. Politicians addressed both.

We note these facts as applicable to other features of the campaign, on both sides. The sub division of men by politics is easy. The further division of them within such political classification is artificial and misleading. A Democrat or a Republican is an intelligible characterization. Beyond that whether he is a preacher or a gambler, a "business man" or a "laboring man," a "printer" or a "veteran" should, politically, be of no more consequence than whether he is a Roman Catholic or a Protestant, a blonde or a brunette, a tall man or a short man. Consideration of him as a white man or a negro, as a native or an adopted citizen, may be in order, for the purpose of determining the drift of sentiment by race divisions; but to align men by their vocation is as irrelevant as it would be to align them by their creed or stature. "A man is a man for all that" and a voter is but one voter either inclusive or in spite of "all that."

There is no especial harm in this manifold and artificial sub classification, but there is a great deal of humbug in it. It is a humbug too plain easily or much to deceive anybody. To be pursued at all it should be carried further. "Democratic bankers" should be followed by "Republican brokers," while "prohibition shoemakers" and "populist apothecaries" "wheel into line." It is American to keep business and religion "out of politics." It is a cant of hypocrisy for sundry people to say that "one should be able to carry his religion anywhere." Perhaps so, but, if he carries it too visibly on his sleeve or too prominently, like a quid, in his mouth, he is likely to be endowed with all the qualities which make an excellent stranger. In the same way the confounding of the buying and selling of goods with the advocacy of political principles breeds a proscription, an arrogance and a false pretense which is bad for business and poisonous to politics.

Aside from this, the EAGLE is glad to say that the Democratic mass meeting in Wall street on Thursday was well attended. The speeches and resolutions were ably prepared and well presented. The ardor of the Democrats in the cause was increased, and this morning they were to be found at the same old stands as willing as ever to do business with or for Republicans or Democrats, or prohibitionists or populists on cash or credit terms.

Gladstone's Helper.

The health of Mr. Gladstone has been an object of as much solicitude to the English people as that of Mr. Blaine to the Americans, though in a somewhat different way. It used often to be said that, for the present at least, Mr. Blaine's health was gone. Nobody could venture at any particular time to say that of Mr. Gladstone's. His activity in tree chopping, in sporting with the difficulties of interpretation and significance of Homer, in moving rapidly from place to place, making speeches that filled several columns of the newspapers, in floating various magazines with articles on a great variety of topics, these and other industrious employments made any such valetudinarian anxieties in his behalf impracticable. Concern took another turn. Was his health not in danger of failing by and by?

It was predicted that his strength never would permit him, years ago, to lead the parliamentary opposition in the campaign for home rule. But it did permit him to do this very thing. It was more than adequate; so much so that, finding time hanging heavy on his hands, he became restless for something to do and filled the intervals between house of commons fights with mountain climbing and discussing British women's rights and other equally not immediately pressing subjects. Later, when Salisbury made up his mind to retire or somebody made it up for him, it was pronounced absurd for Gladstone to lead the liberal party in the popular elections and it was freely predicted that he would break down. But he did not physically or intellectually fail, carrying the campaign to a satisfactory conclusion.

So now that the opening of parliament is approaching and the practical work of government is certain to increase, nobody says that the premier's health is impaired, but suggests, in order that he shall not be overtaxed, that an assistant be provided for him. As sometimes a pastoral helper is appointed—as happened in the case of Mr. Beecher and Mr. Halliday—because of the multiplication of the details of business, so a ministerial helper is proposed, in the person of Sir William Vernon Harcourt, to be designated to aid Mr. Gladstone. His duties will be specifically those of deputy in the leadership of the house.

Oddly enough, no sooner does this movement take shape than reports of the impairment of Sir William's own health are renewed, and it is even intimated that he is less robust even than his chief. Nevertheless as the designation of deputy suggests a precedence in the line of succession to the liberal leadership, the members of the government party are asking themselves whether the chancellor of the exchequer is exactly the man they want, and some of them scarcely disguise the truth that Harcourt is scarcely such a man. If the situation could be paralleled in this country, it is much as if Mr. Hill should be brought forward as assistant and probable successor to Mr. Cleveland in the administration of affairs.

Other liberals console themselves with the reflection that until Mr. Gladstone is actually constrained by disability to retire his indefatigable energy will save his nominal deputy, Harcourt, or anybody else, from the necessity of relieving him from duty or responsibility to any great extent.

"Issues of the Campaign."

The EAGLE advises every voter into whose hands this paper comes to read an article on page 5, entitled "Issues of the Campaign." It treats of "wages," "prices," "silver and currency." They may be said to comprise all the economic "issues of the campaign."

The article referred to is the clearest, most fair and most convincing which the EAGLE has seen in print any where, since the present questions before the country for solution arose in 1837. The author, as will be seen by readers, is Howard Cowperthwait of this city. He is one of the ablest writers who address the public. His reputation for ability does not rest on pomposity, obscurity or dogmatism. It is based on the qualities of thinking, seeing and saying which make Green's history of the English people or MacMaster's history of the American people attractive, instructive and convincing.

The article referred to is not long. It can be read in a few minutes. It could, however, well be studied and restudied, until it is thoroughly mastered. There is the making of a score of editorials in it and of an hundred speeches so true, thorough and right it is. No endeavor is made in it to twist facts for a theory or to handle propositions so as to create or sustain a case. The article has that excellent feature about it which avoids partisanship, and which simply compels the reader to accept its conclusions, because no other can be formed.

Had the truth required him to sustain the Republican contention, Mr. Cowperthwait would have done so. The fact that the Democratic contention is sustained does not indicate what the purpose of the article in advance was. It indicates the result reached after all the evidence was considered, not an object intended before the testimony was examined. This is an indication of the author's candor. It is a great tribute to the strength of the Democratic cause. It is a great contribution to that strength.

The EAGLE accomplishes a marked service to clear thinking and just judgment in presenting this fine product of both to public attention. The confidence of Democratic victory is increased when one reflects that the arguments which have occurred to Mr. Cowperthwait must have occurred to many other minds which brought disinterested motives to the examination of "the issues of the campaign."

A Serious Situation.

The local Republican conflict is attracting state attention. Collector Nathan, leader of the party organization, finds that his pathway is not strewn with roses. Ever since, with the direct assistance of the regular machine Democracy, he secured control of the Sixteenth assembly district, he has been pricked by the thorns of independent Republican resentment. As Mr. A. H. Wagner, the regular Republican candidate in the district, owes his nomination to the combined power of the Republican and Democratic machines the anti machine Republicans have engaged in a movement of energetic resistance. Their candidate, Mr. William H. Reynolds, is waging an active and aggressive campaign. He is opposed to Mr. Wagner not as the nominee of a faction but as a leader of voters hostile to machine deals and the interference and domination in Republicanism of what they regard as petty bossism. Mr. Reynolds claims to be a better Republican than Mr. Wagner, for the reason that he is under no obligations to Collector Nathan or to the Democratic politicians in the boards of aldermen and supervisors. In the belief that professional politicians never give something for nothing Mr. Reynolds and his supporters are anxious to know what return Collector Nathan is to make to the Democrats for their kindness in insuring, in the rearrangement of ward lines, his managerial supremacy in the Republican stronghold of Kings county.

For the Republican politicians the situation is serious. It is the most grievous complication that has beset them since Mr. Nathan, by nominating Mr. Heeg to the assembly in the old Eleventh district, unintentionally brought about the election of Alfred C. Chapin to the assembly from a constituency heavily Republican. It is even worse than the trouble occasioned by the nomination through Mr. Nathan of Mr. Kissel and the consequent loss of another Republican district and a Republican United States senatorship. Charges are loudly made that Mr. Nathan, in order to control his "home" district, has lost interest in the Republican electoral ticket. These charges, if well founded, would naturally carry consternation into the Republican camp. What foundation, if any, there is for them is not yet disclosed. Mr. Nathan, it will be remembered, opposed aggressively the renomination of President Harrison. With the assistance of his "workers" he delivered three delegates against the President in the Minneapolis convention. One of these delegates, as a member of the credentials committee, labored zealously to unseat Harrison men and to seat anti Harrison contestants. Whether Mr. Nathan will carry to the polls his hostility to the administration which appointed him is problematical; but if he should, the result would inevitably be to reduce the vote here for Harrison and Reid. Mr. Nathan's friends are in full control of the party machinery. They were not more friendly to the President before the nominating convention than he was. Their reconciliation will be measured by the sincerity of his placation.

Under these painful circumstances it is no wonder that the local Republicans are disturbed. When they are united they are naturally in a minority. What, then, must be their plight if they are divided at a vital point? There is plenty of room for the "harmonizing" process which Mr. David Martin of Philadelphia promised to import. Unless something is done at once the storm center may assume calamitous proportions. It is high time, if Mr. Nathan has not lost his "pull," for him to invoke the intervention of the state committee or to withdraw his candidate and show where he stands as a factor in the presidential contest. Is he for Harrison and Wagner, or for Wagner and Harrison, or for Wagner and Nathan, or for Nathan and Wagner, or only for just plain Nathan? That appears to be the principal conundrum this year among our always esteemed Republican fellow citizens.

The Funeral.

The funeral services for Mrs. Harrison at the President's house in Washington yesterday were brief but suitable, tasteful and impressive. The customary speech of eulogy was with excellent judgment omitted, and the ceremonies consisted solely of prayers, hymns and the reading of the Bible. The flowers were abundant and beautiful. Within half an hour the procession moved down the avenue and then the railroad ride to Indianapolis began. At every stage of the journey unobtrusive manifestations of respect and sympathy were observed.

Gresham and the Tribune.

Judge Gresham, to whom the EAGLE has persistently ascribed but one vote, has seen fit to confirm the report that he will vote the Democratic ticket. When he confirmed it, the esteemed Tribune, in substance, declared that his intention impeached his judgment and showed that no one ought to adopt his estimates of character, action and tendencies, especially his estimates of public men. That paper advanced many other unpleasant remarks about Gresham, but those indicated will serve just now.

Later, Wayne MacVeagh, who was attorney general under President Garfield, also came out for the Democrats. The Tribune likewise frescoed him with disagreeable words. Mr. MacVeagh took the stump with the effect of showing that the Tribune had, on a time, said very unhandsome things about Patrick Egan which it had not taken back. He tried to get the Tribune to reiterate or retract what it had said. That newspaper simply ignored the effort, but unhesitatingly said that MacVeagh's reading of its own files to an audience was an attack on Egan because Egan was an Irishman! This brilliant assertion exhausted the Tribune into subsequent quietness on the subject.

A day or two ago the Republican national committee, smarting under MacVeagh's speeches, issued an opinion of Judge Gresham in a case which he decided against MacVeagh. The opinion contained a few words colorably construable into an attack on some positions taken in Mr. MacVeagh's brief. Thereupon the Tribune turned itself wrong side out in the effort to show that, inasmuch as Gresham criticised MacVeagh, MacVeagh's criticism of the Republican party was utterly worthless.

Well, well; so Gresham, who is utterly worthless (according to the Tribune) as a critic of the Republican party, is absolutely infallible as a critic of MacVeagh! The Tribune distrusts Gresham wholly as a critic of Republicanism. It adopts him sectionally as a critic of MacVeagh. As an anti Republican, Gresham is, as it were, a liar and a horse thief. As an anti MacVeagh man, Gresham is a jurist and a flowering ornament of the human species!

The Tribune is unconsciously more solemn than Punch and funnier than Puck.

Little Magician.

It is stated that Mr. Quay has had no attack of vertigo since he came to New York and that his general health is good. The news will be a source of great comfort to the party everywhere. Assuming that Mr. Quay is in full possession of all his physical and mental powers unimpaired, there can be no doubt that the conduct of the Republican campaign, from now until election, will be such as to inspire the rank and file with all the hope they are entitled to feel.

Mr. Quay's leadership during the canvass of 1888 afforded ample proof of his genius. It is no exaggerated praise to say that to it General Harrison owed his victory. In this state particularly his peculiar gifts were of vital and decisive service. Democrats and Republicans agree in the testimony that the methods which he employed here during the closing days of the contest settled the result. It is enough to recall the fact, without mentioning particularly what those methods were. When circumstances over which he was not without control decreed that the management of the campaign of 1892 should pass into other hands, they cast no reflection upon Mr. Quay's ability. Nothing had happened in the interval to disturb the general opinion of his qualifications. The change was made in deference to a state of things which would have made it incongruous and unpleasant for him to conduct a fight under any banner that bore the name of Benjamin Harrison. His reappearance is accordingly to be ascribed to some most urgent cause.

A very little reflection will suffice to enforce the conclusion that notwithstanding the widely advertised confidence of the organs of McKinleyism in the triumph of the grand old party, that end can only be accomplished by a return to the Quay methods. And who so competent to put them in practice again as Quay himself? The handwriting upon the wall has been correctly interpreted: "Protection is a failure. The McKinley humbug won't work. We are in danger of sinking. Send for Quay." That is the legend and that is why the little magician resumes his wand.

McDonald's Boast.

A great many Democratic papers make no efforts to conceal the hopes they have founded on the accession of such distinguished Republicans as Walter Q. Gresham, Thomas M. Cooley and Wayne MacVeagh. No intelligent person will begrudge them a reasonable measure of pride and satisfaction in this evidence of the strength of the appeal which Democracy makes to the patriotism and common sense of voters. But the enthusiasm so begotten should not render them careless of the possible consequences of the fact that men who have heretofore acted with the Democratic party have deserted its standard in this struggle and gone over to the enemy.

One of them is Mr. Michael McDonald of Chicago, a personage conspicuous in the local politics of that breezy and hustling community. The fame of his talents and enterprise needed but the opportunity offered by the present emergency to become national. He is sometimes called the "knight of the green table" from his exploits at the game commonly known to the initiated as faro. But his chief "pull" is political, and that it may mean a great deal at the coming election he himself darkly hints. One day last week an admiring scribe interviewed Mr. McDonald, and, in the course of the conversation, observed that his conversion to Republicanism was a set off to the Republican loss of Judge Gresham. To which he significantly replied: "I guess not, young feller. I can take five votes with me where Judge Gresham or any of them dudes can't take one. See?"

We trust our exuberant Democratic contemporaries will not fail to "see." Mr. McDonald is no dreamer or illusionist. Within the last four years Chicago has gained 100,000 new voters. Their preferences, so far as the general public knows, have not been revealed. Can it be confidently asserted that Mr. McDonald is equally ignorant? May he not have a "pull" on them sufficiently strong to justify his boast? His virtual challenge to Judge Gresham "or any of them dudes" in Illinois will intensify the curiosity with which the whole country awaits the result of the election in that state.

No man is ever more attractive when he is right than David B. Hill. No man is more apt to surprise with unexpected outbursts for the right more frequently than the senator. His words for free speech in the South, for Weaver, at Lynchburg on Thursday were needed, and admirable.

JOHNSON TALKED POLITICS TO HIS SORROW.

Charles Johnson, a German, who lives at 24 First street, had a drink with a friend shortly after 7 o'clock last night in Pat Flannagan's saloon at 305 Atlantic avenue. Johnson and his friends talked politics and made some remarks that were not complimentary to the local Democratic candidates. As they were leaving the saloon Flannagan struck Johnson's companion. Johnson resented it, but passed out to the street. As he was walking away the burly saloon keeper gave him a blow in the back of the neck which sent him sprawling on the sidewalk. Flannagan was arrested. Johnson appeared in court before Justice Walsh this morning. Hearing was adjourned until November 3, and Justice Walsh let the prisoner go on a $500 bond furnished last night.

POOR SERVICE BY THE POSTOFFICE.

The Morning Delivery of Mail Is Not Early Enough.

To the Editor of the Brooklyn Eagle:

May I have the privilege through your columns of asking the people, which are many, if it is not about time we had a change in our postoffice officials, from the highest down, even to the Brooklyn representatives of that department? As one of the many I have great cause of complaint in the very slow delivery of letters, especially the morning mail; having to wait from 9 o'clock to 9:45 and even as late as 10 o'clock for the first delivery; and that, too, in the heart of the city, while in other portions of the city and even on the outskirts the first delivery is made as early as 7 and 7:30 o'clock. Important business letters mailed in New York at 12 o'clock, midday, are often not delivered until between 9 and 10 o'clock next morning. Consequently being obliged to go to business at a seasonable hour I cannot receive my letters until I return home at night. Many of my neighbors suffer in the same way. This matter of slow and late delivery has been brought to the notice of the postmaster and his assistants and very indifferently noticed by them, sometimes by saying they could not help it, and again by saying that I had better go to Washington and have some men sent on to do the work. The question arises, why should the non business portions of the city be served better than those living within ten minutes walk of the general post office in Brooklyn or Washington? or is it because we are not all Republicans? INQUIRER.

BOND STREET, October 24, 1892.

REPUBLICAN FALLACY.

To the Editor of the Brooklyn Eagle:

Where are our debating societies these political times and why don't they refute or dispute the following bit of an (empty nutshell) political trick posted everywhere, which is very misleading? "Republican platform protection to American industries." Question, therefore, now asked is who gave the American industries to the Republican party? Our people certainly did not. Therefore, it being an open industrial and commercial question for all the people, the Republican platform can't have it, even to elect a President with. The Democratic platform speaks the whole truth, leaving industries and commerce in the hands of our people, saying "Tariff for revenue only." The government should ask for no more. NOT A RED CENT.

BROOKLYN, October 24, 1892.

MR. HARRISON FEARS ANOTHER WAR.

To the Editor of the Brooklyn Eagle:

I am under the impression that we are upon the verge of another gigantic civil war, which I implore you to endeavor to prevent if possible, it being this time organized educated labor against capital, seeking to rule a splendid country like ours, which if only properly governed, and neither panics, riots nor strikes allowed to exist, would be a perfect paradise for both the rich and poor to enjoy. JOSHUA HARRISON.

150 HARMAN STREET, October 24, 1892.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

IT IS SIMPLY A QUESTION OF WAGES.

The Democratic Platform denounces Republican protection as a fraud, declares the Republican tariff which protects you from European competition unconstitutional, and demands a tariff for revenue only.

Without protection, goods used here will of course be made where wages are lowest—that is, in Europe—or if made here, wages will have to be reduced to the level of wages abroad. If you are in favor of this vote the Democratic ticket.

If you want protection to home industries and American wages vote the Republican ticket.

The public is invited, with or without intention to purchase, to inspect in a leisurely manner the unprecedently large and choice collection now exhibited by the Messrs. Ovington Brothers in their new and spacious Building, 38 and 40 Flatbush Avenue.

TECHNICALLY A SMUGGLER.

Robert Hickey, captain of the canal boat D. B. Fitzgerald, was arrested Tuesday and arraigned before United States Commissioner Benedict on a technical charge of smuggling a load of lumber from Canada into the United States. He was released on $500 bail for examination.

FUNERAL OF WILLIAM M. EVANS.

The funeral of William Martin Evans took place last evening at the family residence, 399 Jefferson avenue, and the interment took place this morning. Mr. Evans was but 39 years of age, but his kindliness and strength of character had endeared him to a large circle of friends, who deeply regret his death. He was a member of the firm of Cummins & Evans, and a successful business career seemed in store for him, when he was called to eternal rest.

MASS MEETING AT KNICKERBOCKER HALL.

At Knickerbocker hall, Clymer street, near Bedford avenue, a Democratic mass meeting was held last night. The hall was decorated with flags and bunting. A brass band played patriotic airs and there was a display of fireworks before the meeting, which was called to order by ex-County Clerk Ranken. He gave an interesting summary of the issues of the campaign. General E. B. Barnum delivered the first address. Alfred J. Wolf, candidate for assemblyman in the Fifth district, was the next speaker. Corporation Counsel A. F. Jenks and Assistant District Attorney John U. Shorter also made addresses.

PATRICK FORD'S EXPLANATION.

Father Ward Neglected to Acknowledge His Invitation.

To the Editor of the Brooklyn Eagle:

A card in your paper to-day, and signed by the Rev. Thomas F. Ward, affirms with emphasis that the statement that he was present at the reception given to Minister Egan at my house the other evening was literally untrue. There was no special reference made to the reverend gentleman. His name simply appeared in a list of persons invited to attended, most of whom were present, and he was absent. I regret the error as it seems to have hurt his feelings, but it certainly was not intentional. It was a consequence of a kindly disposition to facilitate the work of the newspaper men who were there to report the affair and to this end the list of the men invited were printed and proof sheets were given to the reporters. Every reporter will realize the irksomeness of the labor of going through, with note book and pencil in hand, a hundred or more persons, asking each in turn for his name, how he spells his name and what is his calling or profession. The reception hours, as stated in the invitation notes, were from 8 until 11 P. M., and the stream of callers kept up until the last. The reporters hurried back to their respective offices at a comparatively early hour. When they were going away they knew, of course, that every one on the list they took with them was not present at that time. Most of the guests came later on and a few failed to appear at all and sent apologies. Certainly none were invited by me to that reception save those whom I thought would be pleased to greet a man who, as a sterling patriot in his motherland and as a faithful and efficient servant of this republic, has done honor to his race and credit to his American citizenship. Some names, personally unknown to me, were sent invitations at the suggestion of others. Father Ward was one of such names. Between the invitation and the reception a full week intervened. The reverend gentleman during that time might have written to say he would not come, but he made no acknowledgment and, like some others who came, although they sent no notification, it was, of course, not known but he would respond to the invitation. In his card to the EAGLE the only reason Father Ward intimates why he did not care to go to the reception is that he is "a Democrat, and all this implies." That's all right; but the reception at my house was not a Republican meeting. The whole affair was entirely informal and non partisan. There was no address presented to Minister Egan and, consequently, there was no response from him. There were no speeches made of any kind by anyone. There were no campaign songs. There were no party symbols. There were no mottoes, nor did there in the whole course of the evening a word drop suggestive of partisan politics. The one and the only symbol displayed on the occasion was the American flag, whose rights and honor Minister Egan well defended in a foreign land, and the music discoursed was the strains of the "Star Spangled Banner," which to all present, priests and laymen, Republicans and Democrats, was not distasteful.

HELD HAUPT FOR THE MURDER.

This morning Coroner John S. Corrie of College Point, L. I., committed Frederick Haupt, a Pole, who killed George Siefferts during a drunken quarrel at Bayside, on September 1 last, to the Queens county jail to await the action of the grand jury. Haupt was given a hearing before Coroner Corrie at the town hall, Flushing, last night and the jury rendered a verdict that Sieffert came to his death at the hands of Haupt. The two men worked together on the farm of Isaac Porbell at Bayside and they engaged in a quarrel, during which Haupt struck Sieffert with a heavy plank, which felled him to the ground. Sieffert was taken to the Flushing hospital, where he subsequently died. Haupt was arrested Wednesday in New York city by Officers James W. Smith and Edward Slavin of Flushing and was locked up in the cells here.

LOST IN THE WILDERNESS

Has All of Billy West's Wedding Party Got Home?

Amusing Adventures of the Guests Who Attended the Reception at the House of the Minstrel in Bensonhurst Last Evening and This Morning—They Left for Brooklyn in a Stage, but the Horses Gave Out After Traveling a Mile, and the Long Headed Ones Took the Electric Car for the City—What Has Become of the Remainder?

Well, Billy West is married after all. Although the very fates seemed against him, throwing all possible obstacles in his way, the merry minstrel fought hard and at last succeeded in getting united in the holy bonds of matrimony to the woman of his heart. As told in yesterday's EAGLE, he had great difficulty in getting a clergyman to perform the ceremony, and it was not until 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon that he succeeded in obtaining one. Even then he did so at the risk of his life, and had it not been for the presence of mind of his horse there would have been a funeral instead of a wedding to chronicle. At the hour mentioned he drove to Unionville to get the Rev. Mr. Christopher's consent to perform the ceremony and on his return the light buggy in which he was driving collapsed and threw him to the ground. His hands were entangled in the reins and had the horse not stood still there would have been a serious accident.

The wedding itself took place a few minutes after 5, and proved to be one of the prettiest affairs of its kind that has ever taken place in Bensonhurst. The orchestra of the Primrose and West minstrels was present to furnish the music and played Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," while the bride and groom walked to where the minister stood under an arch of American beauty roses, suspended between the two parlors. Those present were the mother of the bride, Mrs. Hanley, Miss Mary Hanley, the bridesmaid; Mrs. John Donnelly, Mr. and Mrs. Primrose, Mr. and Mrs. John West, Miss Kitty Peabody, Mr. Janson, C. W. Williams, Miss Smith of Hartford and Mrs. Fred Oakley. Dinner was served immediately after the ceremony.

While the afternoon ceremony passed off quietly, the evening reception made up for the enforced sedateness and fun reigned supreme. Mr. West, contrary to the expectations of many, did not put in an appearance at the Amphion at the performance, remaining at home to play the host at the dinner. Shortly after the show was over the entire company, consisting of Messrs. Janson, Garland, Dooley, Fielding, Oakland, Thompson, Riano, Bentley, Natus, Abachi, Masaud, Dale, Van, Cronin, Johnson, Tom Brown of the "Trip to Chinatown" company, and Edward Le Hay of the Francis Wilson company, accompanied by an EAGLE reporter, started in a four horse stage for Bensonhurst. The route was up Bedford avenue to the park, to Eighteenth avenue, to Cropsey avenue, to the house. It was a long and cold trip, and had it not been for the witty quips of the minstrels and for the jokes that were bandied it would have been decidedly wearisome. Every few minutes Mr. Dooley would inquire anxiously whether the destination was in sight and every time "It's only five blocks further" would be wafted through the chilly night air to him. Every time he asked the question the distance still to be travelled was increased, until it assumed enormous proportions. During all this time the quartet practiced serenely as if traveling cross country in a stage without springs was an every night affair. At 12:30 the desired haven hove in view and, walking two by two, the company marched up the lane leading to the house, singing the appropriate ditty "For he's going to marry Yum Yum." All the guests were assembled on the piazza and the weary travelers were soon made comfortable.

After they had paid their compliments to the groom and bride and had wished them all possible happiness, refreshments were served and good cheer prevailed. There was absolutely no ceremony, the reception being entirely informal. The musical portion of the reception was exceptionally fine and every one participating had to respond to one or more encores. J. H. Garland sang his own composition, "A Soldier and a Man"; Joseph Natus, "The Shady Woodland"; F. W. Oakland, "Mollie and I and the Baby" and, as an encore, Sullivan's "Once Again"; William Thompson, "The Lost Chord," and Tom Brown whistled airs from "The Carnival of Venice," "The Mocking Bird" and "The Nightingale."

At 3:30 this morning a start was made for home, everyone being in the best of spirits. As the lateness of the hour precluded the idea of obtaining a train, all hands were hustled into the stage. This vehicle was built some time during the revolution and was meant to accommodate about twenty-four, and when forty attempted to enter room was at a premium. At least five had to sit on the bottom of the stage, while several of the girls were compelled to sit on the laps of their escorts. However, all went smoothly until Eighty-sixth street was reached, when the horses gave out and a part of the load had to be transhipped to the electric car which happened along most opportunely. The ones who took the car arrived at the city hall before breakfast, but up to the time of going to press nothing had been heard of the others and the advisability of organizing searching parties was being considered.

Among those present were Dr. and Miss Voorhees, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Truss, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Thomas Reilly, J. A. ISSUES OF THE CAMPAIGN.

By the Author of Money, Silver and Finance.

To the Editor of the Brooklyn Eagle:

We frequently see in the newspapers columns of figures, arranged to show that there has been industrial growth under the McKinley law, and I presume that they make Republican voters of some of the people who do not know that this country is, naturally, a growing country. There are no figures obtainable which would show ante McKinley stagnation, and if many columns were placed, side by side, each under its proper year, the only inference which fairly could be drawn would be that the growth of this country has not been seriously interrupted by the increase in taxation. And whoever knows this country well must know that it can stand almost anything. Wages are said to be higher now than they were before the McKinley bill was passed, but wages all over the world have moved pretty steadily upward for many years. Some prices are said to be lower now than they were before the McKinley bill was passed, but prices everywhere have shown a downward tendency for about twenty years. In all progressive countries, protected or not, wages move upward, prices move downward, and the industries necessarily keep pace with other growths, and we shall have to look long and carefully to discover a connecting link between protection and prosperity.

Wages—In this country we have protection and high wages. Cause and effect, says Dr. Depew. In England they have free trade and low wages: Cause and effect, again. In France, Germany, Italy they have protection and still lower wages. Cause and effect again, doctor? In Russia and Turkey we find the highest taxation and the lowest wages. Cause and effect again? And has protection the power to make wages high in America and low in continental Europe; or are we driven to a reductio ad absurdum? In this country wages are higher in some states than in others; higher in the North, for instance, than in the South; higher in the West than in the East, and with no protection by any state against the others. Is it protection that makes the disparity? Immigrants have been coming to this country to better their condition for hundreds of years; but, latterly, it is protection which starts them from the protected countries of Europe, lands them in protected America and directs them Westward, to no better protected, but distant parts of our country! Without a line in a protective tariff about the rate of wages to be paid by protected manufacturers; without a scrap of evidence to prove that they pay higher wages than other manufacturers; and with statistics showing that less than one-fourteenth of our workmen are employed in protected industries, it is yet boldly asserted that protection advances the average of all wages in America. Wages are higher in this country than in Europe, because we have a vast area with free trade among all its parts; because we have unmatched resources, which loudly demand development and the employing of workmen; because this country is dominated by the most industrious and most inventive of the progressive Anglo Saxon race; because our climate induces energy; because we excel in the application of machinery and therefore in multiplying the industrial value of individual men; because our time is not devoted to drilling and marching and because we have no warlike neighbors to divert our attention from industrial improvement. Compared with the great causes of high wages in America protection sinks to insignificance, or may, indeed, be called a hindrance.

Prices—Wages being higer in this country than in Europe it is claimed that we need protection, so that manufacturers can obtain correspondingly high prices for their goods, nothing being said about the very large number of manufacturers who, in the nature of things, cannot be troubled by foreign competition, their kind of goods never being imported. It is often shown that the rate of wages, per day, in this country is very high, but it is never shown that the outturn of work is not correspondingly great. In a far Western farm the rate of wages may be $4 per day in harvest time and in Europe, the rate may be $1 per day, but, nevertheless, the American wheat is carried all the way to Europe to be sold there, in competition not only with European wheat, but with wheat from India and from Egypt, where the rate of wages is only a few cents a day, and last year our great wheat producers were paying off mortgages with their surplus profits. Beside this, we beat the world in the manufacture of flour, and in spite of high wages at every step, in spite, also, of our own growth in population, we send to Europe an ever increasing supply of food. High wages are no barrier to this movement, for in this country high wages are only high wages per day; and, neither in wheat raising nor in flour manufacturing, can it be shown that wages are high in proportion to the work accomplished. The machinery that is used on the wheat farm and the machinery that is used in the flour mill multiply the value of every man employed, and it is no hardship to an American employer to pay in dollars, per day, per workman, many times as much as the foreign employer has to pay. It would be a hardship if the American employer were obliged to pay, in proportion to results, more money for labor than his foreign competitor pays, but nobody tries to show this—protectionists stop at the day's rate, a matter of no consequence to the employer. Inventive genius, in its application of machines to all industries, while making each laborer worth more, reduces the cost of production and of manufacturing and carries the average of prices surely downward, and no other country in the world is so prolific in great inventions as our country. To say that McKinley has not put prices up is only to say that he has been overmatched by natural tendencies, but it is true that but for the McKinley law we should be nearer the goal of producing a vastly greater quantity of goods for the world's consumption than we now produce. It is a truism that in this country prices should move downward faster than anywhere else, that machinery should be more generously adopted, that day's wages should move upward faster than anywhere else and that, if we could see the viciousness of the so called protective principle, we should, in due time, take our natural place as the world's industrial leader. Whoever in our land of unequaled advantages demands more protection than that which he would get from a revenue tariff and the cost of ocean transportation on foreign goods, should be asked to emigrate. Let him try his luck where protection is very high and day's wages are very low!

Silver and currency—The Democratic platform makes a recommendation which is so far in advance of the time that misconstruction is easy. Let us see if there be a foundation for the wild-cat banking charge. There are now about $800,000,000 of government paper money afloat; and, available for the purpose of redemption, there are in the treasury about $120,000,000 in gold. Under the operation of the Sherman silver law by which silver is purchased at the rate of 4,500,000 ounces per month, paper money being issued in payment, the difference between the large quantity of paper afloat and the small quantity of gold in the treasury must constantly widen. The treasury now holds a useless mass of $450,000,000 worth of silver, or, say, really worth whatever sum you may guess if you are a good guesser. The policy of hoarding silver and of issuing paper money in payment has caused incalculable damage to our credit abroad and has brought us perilously near the silver basis, but the Republican platform is silent on the question of repealing the law, perhaps because it is a Republican law, perhaps because the silver states have as good claim to protection for silver miners as Pennsylvania, for instance, has for protection to coal miners. That platform also ignores the fact that the national bank notes (not included in the $800,000,000 named) are being canceled because their basis of bonds is being cut away by the redemption of bonds. During the past twenty years, the circulating medium has been about doubled, and during the next decade the circulating medium must be increased, for the country is sure to grow in every way. How shall we meet the requirement? Surely not by continuing to purchase silver and by continuing to issue paper money, in payment, and yet we may look in vain, in the Republican platform, for any other way. That platform expresses a belief in bimetallism, one of the most certainly dead of all isms, and leaves us to infer that the policy of issuing paper money, against silver purchases, will be continued. Therefore in that platform there was no need to speak of any other issuing of paper. If we continue buying silver, there will surely be in circulation plenty of paper.

On the other hand the Democratic platform denounces the silver law and demands that it be repealed; and the taking of this bold position makes it necessary to recommend some other paper money, for when the purchasing of silver shall have been stopped for awhile, the growing country will miss the monthly supply of paper money. Now what kind of money can we get? In England, France and Germany, the great bank of each country issues the paper money for each country; for it was long ago found out, in Europe, that government paper is apt to go into discredit, and that financial machinery is too delicate for a legislative body to be constantly interfering with. In this country the greenbacks were discredited for fourteen years after the close of the war, and we have learned that our paper money ought to have a sound foundation and that the volume of money ought not to be subject to congressional whims and notions. It is true that we have no bank that corresponds in character to the bank of England, for instance, but, for the supplying of paper money, we have institutions that are quite suitable. The banks of our business centers are aggregated into clearinghouse associations, and if the prohibitory tax upon state bank issues were removed and authority given to aggregations of banks to issue paper money, under government supervision, and under a law which should strictly define the securities to be held against such issues, I believe that better money than we have ever had would be issued. There are objections to every kind of paper money that man has ever conceived; but paper money we will have. With all the power of the government behind the greenbacks, they were long in bad repute; and with this power behind the present issues of paper and, in addition, the circumstance that these issues pay for solid silver and only at the market price at the time of purchase, our latest kind of paper money threatens us with disaster. Out of our immediate trouble the Republicans show us no way and leave us to imagine that we shall get further in. But the Democrats show us a way out and however carefully the way may need to be guarded, it is a way which is already approved of by eminent financiers. Bank notes, kept within reasonable bounds by the issuers' dread of failure, by compulsion to hold a certain percentage in gold, by the government's holding of ample security, by the bank examiner's frequent visits, might prove to be an absolutely safe currency for this country; and ought to have the element of elasticity, the capacity to expand and to contract with business changes and crop movements; that good character in a currency not possible in a government currency, "wild cat banking," went with the stage coaches and the slow mails and cannot come back in our era of railways, telegraphs and financial knowledge. Circumstances will force upon us a new kind of paper money, not to take the place of all the paper money now circulating, but in addition to what we now have and to meet the rapid growth of the country. If we are willing to profit by European experience that money will be bank money, issued under strict laws and governmental supervision; but whatever bill may be offered in congress we have ample assurance that no cheap or unsound money will ever be sanctioned by Grover Cleveland.

SOME EXCURSIONS TO WASHINGTON.

The Pennsylvania railroad announces a series of Washington tours for the fall and winter. They are so timed as to give visitors an excellent opportunity to see the national government in active operation. The second trip of this series will leave New York in a special train of Pennsylvania standard coaches on November 10, and the round trip rate of $13 will cover transportation in both directions as well as include hotel accommodations at the principal hotels in Washington. Other excursions are scheduled for November 24, December 15 and December 29.

EMBERS OF DISCONTENT

Which Are Smoldering in the Thirteenth Regiment.

Some of Captain Luscomb's Friends Do Not Take Kindly to Captain Cochran's Election as Major—The Charge That the Latter's Success Was Obtained by Displacing Opponents With Friends From the Thirty-second—Lieutenant Roe Resigns.

Notwithstanding the fact that Captain George G. Cochran of I was chosen major of the Thirteenth regiment Tuesday night by the handsome vote of 16 to 11, and this with two of his supporters absent, there seems to be more or less hard feeling over the result. The friends of Captain Charles H. Luscomb do not take his defeat so philosophically as they seemed disposed to do on the night of the election. In several companies last evening there were loud murmurings of discontent in regard to the matter. The enlisted men, who, of course, had no voice in the selection of the major, except in so far as their officers could be said to represent the company sentiment, did not hesitate to express their feelings. In Company G, where it was believed that Second Lieutenant Harry Williams voted for Captain Cochran, despite his pledge to support the other man, the talk was most bitter.

"Lieutenant Williams, "said one of the non coms, "knew that sentiment in this company was for Luscomb and if he cast his ballot for Cochran, as we think he did, he certainly misrepresented us in a shameful manner. Now that the election is over, the only thing for us to do is to make the best of the situation, but we have long memories and we shall not forget Tuesday night's work for some time to come." The officers who had been numbered among Captain Luscomb's adherents had little to say, but it may be assumed that they did a great deal of thinking. The first to act was Lieutenant W. C. Roe of B, who placed his resignation in the hands of Colonel Austen. Mr. Roe voted for Captain Luscomb, but that he resigned because his candidate was defeated no one would assume the responsibility of saying.

Lieutenant Roe has been saying for some months that he intended to leave the regiment. Captain F. R. Wiswell of A and his lieutenants, J. W. Stewart and Samuel L. Johnson, were three men who voted for Captain Luscomb. Since the day of the Columbus parade in New York, Lieutenant Stewart's heart has beaten none too warmly for Colonel Austen and the newly made major of the regiment. It was quite natural that Captain Wiswell should come to share his officer's feeling, especially when both he and Lieutenant Stewart were in the camp of the opposition. Rumor has it that the two men will resign. Events of last night give color to the report. Late in the evening a special meeting of A was called. Previous to this Lieutenant Stewart, being asked if he intended to resign, said: "I shall probably do as the captain does."

The meeting lasted about an hour. Then Captain Wiswell was asked point blank if he was going to resign. He refused to talk, declaring: "I prefer not to have anything to say concerning the matter at present."

It is a fact that his resignation had not been placed in Adjutant Clayton's hands at 11 o'clock last evening. The feeling among Captain Luscomb's friends was concisely stated by one man who said:

"The truth in a nutshell is this: Captain Cochran was elected major of the Thirteenth regiment by officers from the disbanded Thirty-second brought on here for that purpose. Were the officers the same as when Major Sanger retired, Captain Luscomb and not Captain Cochran would have been chosen his successor. The whole thing was beautifully managed from start to finish. Captain Cochran is a capable officer and will make a good major, but none of Captain Luscomb's friends likes the way his defeat was brought about. What do I mean? Just this. The vote was 16 to 11 in favor of Captain Cochran. Two of his men are away, so we will reckon his strength at eighteen. Now, this eighteen is supposed to comprise the following. Let us take them by companies: B, First Lieutenant John T. Jennings; C, Captain George D. Russell, Lieutenants John A. Anderson and W. S. Buyers; D, Captain F. G. Peoble, Second Lieutenant G. W. Hunt; E, Captain James H. Russell, Lieutenants George Cochran, Broom and J. F. Carroll; F, Captain A. L. Earle, jr.; First Lieutenant J. R. K. Barlow; G, Second Lieutenant H. S. Williams; H, Captain W. E. C. Mayer; First Lieutenant B. T. Clayton; I, Captain Cochran, Lieutenants W. I. Taylor and A. C. Snyder and Colonel Austen. Now the eleven votes which Captain Luscomb received are supposed to have been cast by these men: A, Captain F. R. Wiswell, Lieutenants J. W. Stewart and Samuel L. Johnson; B, Captain C. A. Denike, First Lieutenant W. C. Roe; F, Second Lieutenant G. W. Cowen; G, Captain W. W. Hanold; K, Captain Luscomb, Lieutenants G. W. Rodgers and T. J. Hooley, Lieutenant Colonel Watson. You notice that I have named Lieutenant Williams as a Cochran man and Lieutenant Cowen as a Luscomb supporter, although according to general understanding Williams was pledged to Luscomb and Cowen to Cochran. The reasons for believing that they did not vote as it was supposed they would, or the motives which may have impelled either to change his mind at the last moment, there is no use going into here. It is said, however, that William, dined with Captain Cochran and his known supporters at the Crescent club before coming to the armory Tuesday night. Now, in regard to the Thirty-second regiment's influence in effecting the election of Captain Cochran. Two companies of the Thirty-second, F and K, were transferred to the Thirteenth. To make room for them, two companies of the Thirteenth had to be consolidated with other companies in the Thirteenth. E was merged in D, H in I. F and K then took, respectively, the vacant letters E and H. This consolidation brought into the regiment from the Thirty-second Captains James H. Russell and Mayer, Lieutenants Buyers, Carroll and Snyder, all Cochran men, and made places in the new companies for Lieutenants Broome and Clayton, also Cochran men. Now, the advent of so much new material required that a number of old officers of the regiment should get out and five were placed upon the supernumerary list, Captains Dressel and Kerby, Lieutenants Brown, Smock and Rich, all except Captain Kerby known to favor the election of Captain Luscomb. What does it all mean? Let us get down to figures. Captain Cochran controlled 18 votes at the election. Of these 7 came into the organization as the result of the Thirty-second regiment transfer. Eighteen less 7 is 11. Captain Luscomb controlled 11 votes at the election. Owing to the transfer of the Thirty-second regiment companies he sustained a net loss of 3. Eleven plus 3 is 14. Cochran, 11, Luscomb, 14. Did or did not the Thirty-second regiment elect the major of the Thirteenth?"

The checks in payment for the Buffalo service of the regiment, amounting in all to $8,339.50 were received last night. The field, staff and N. C. S. were given theirs at once and those for the companies were sent to the several captains, but not turned over to the men. Major Elect Cochran will pay his command to-night. Other companies will get their checks on regular drill nights. In the case of men who are in arrears for company or other dues the amount of indebtedness is to be retained from their pay.

Company D will shoot a match with B of the Forty-seventh on the range at the Marcy avenue armory Monday evening.

Second Lieutenant George Willis Hunt of this company will resign shortly as he is to move to Connecticut. Mr. Hunt began his service in the Thirteenth regiment November 14, 1883. Captain Peoble has appointed Corporal G. R. Pierson a sergeant. Private Edward H. Kirby has received an honorable discharge.

Company B will hold a meeting Monday night and ask Lieutenant Roe to withdraw his resignation. Mr. Roe entered the guard as a private in Company D, Seventh regiment, October 31, 1884; was made first lieutenant of D, Forty-seventh, June 11, 1886; transferred to Company E June 14, 1887; first lieutenant Company B, Thirteenth, April 18, 1889.

Private F. W. Bunting of E has been made a corporal.

First Sergeant A. J. McCarty of G is in receipt of a letter from Sergeant E. C. Blaneck of G, Sixty-fifth regiment, Buffalo, which is decidedly interesting. During the strike Sergeant McCarty lost his roll book. Sergeant Blaneck says that while in a saloon recently he saw the book displayed by a man who refused to surrender it until the Buffalo guardsman paid him 75 cents. "Send me that sum," writes Sergeant Blaneck, "and you can have the book." He will get the money and probably his captain will receive a copy of his letter. Sergeant T. G. Austin and Private John H. Kitching have asked for their discharges. Sergeant Austin has been in the company many years. At Creedmoor this season he qualified as a sharpshooter by the highest possible score, 50. Nearly all the companies in the regiment have taken in one or more recruits within a week.

The delinquency court is to be revived, with Lieutenant Anderson as its head. Lieutenant Colonel Watson, who formerly tried delinquents, has assumed the duties of financial secretary of the regiment and has had to be relieved, therefore, from the other duty. Said Colonel Austen, last night, in regard to men who do not pay their fines:

"A delinquency court will enable me to publish the names of those men who do not pay their debts to the regiment, and discharge them after forty days. I propose to see how many men we have who prefer rather to go to jail than to settle, and when I find out who they are I shall send them there. I shall immediately release them and order their companies to expel them at once."

To-morrow being the last day of practice at Creedmoor, a number of Thirteenth regiment riflemen will try to qualify on the state range.

TWENTY-THIRD WARD DEMOCRATS.

Speeches From Old Campaigners and an Appeal From Mr. Durack.

The Twenty-third ward Democratic club held a meeting last night in its hall on Fulton street, near Utica avenue. A large gathering was there to listen to an expounding of Democratic doctrine by such war horses as Judge Neu, Register Kenna and Counselor Walter L. Durack. The last mentioned, as the candidate for assembly in the Sixteenth district, is attempting the herculean task of overcoming a Republican majority of about three thousand.

There was not a vacant seat in the house when John L. Shea, the president of the club, called the meeting to order, and Rufus L. Scott was made chairman of the meeting. The first speaker he introduced was Walter L. Durack. In his address he alluded to the strain on the Republican machine in the district by the independent canvass which is being made by W. H. Reynolds. The speaker said in part:

"The Democratic party has been the truest friend of labor, while the tendency of the Republicans is to accumulate large sums of money among the few. They ask for a strong centralized government, while the policy of the Democratic party is to ask as little from the people as possible and to collect just sufficient taxes to run the government economically. Seven years ago the state of New York was $7,000,000 in debt, and now, through the able administration of a Democratic executive, though the legislature was not altogether Democratic, the debt has been reduced to nothing, and to-day New York state owes no man a dollar. Last year we had the first Democratic legislature in a long time and we enjoyed the additional blessing of having a governor with a solid and unswerving nerve in the person of Governor Flower. That legislature levied a lower tax on the state for state purposes than had been levied before for thirty-six years, except one, and beside that it had the moral courage to pass the anti Pinkerton act and the bill for the re-enumeration and the reapportionment of the state, which gives Brooklyn, as she is entitled to, eighteen members of the assembly instead of twelve. If you like the way the public business has been attended to by a Democratic legislature and feel like wanting a continuance of the Democratic policy I would like to have you vote for a man named Walter L. Durack, and this is the place for me to say that, if elected, I will faithfully and conscientiously discharge the trust you repose in me. Your duty now is to register, so that you may vote on November 8, and your duty then is to vote and to see that all your Democratic friends cast their ballots, too."

Mr. Durack gave way to Register Kenna, who said in part:

It's only a few years ago that I was in business not far from here, in the Gates avenue police court, and I suppose some of you have cause to remember me, at least those of you who had disputes among yourselves that had to be settled in a police court. Therefore most of you know me and I can speak to you not in the voice of a stranger. Now, the past four years have been years of study, of experience and of regret, and these four years have demonstrated to the American people the costly mistake they made in placing the Republicans in power. They called us free traders then and they call us free traders now, but, call us what you please, we, as Democrats, are against monopoly whenever it raises its hydra headed form. I do not wish to weary you with a dreary discussion of the tariff, but when the Republicans say it is simply a question of wages we are as ready to fight them on this issue as on any other. Under the lowest tariff in our history, that which prevailed from 1846 to 1860, the country grew and prospered in a ratio never exceeded or equaled. There were no strikes or lockouts then and there were no trade organizations because they were not necessary, as there were no conflicts between labor and capital. There were no tramps in those days and no armies of Pinkertons. There was none of these curses and wages were about as good as they are to-day, while the cost of living has appreciably increased. The man has not yet been found in America who is willing to state under oath that his wages have been raised on account of the action of the McKinley bill."

Judge Neu made a speech and told some funny stories. The next meeting of the club will be held November 5.

CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW IN WELSH.

His Indorsement of Cleveland Sown Broadcast by Aneurin Jones.

Aneurin Jones, the ex-superintendent of Prospect and Central parks, is a very retiring man living quietly at his home, 76 Monroe street, and being little seen about town. But Mr. Jones is and has been a stanch Democrat, and every four years he resumes, figuratively speaking, his full title, Aneurin Ap Jones, and goes forth to convince his fellow Welshmen of the errors and foolishness of Republicanism. There were four years ago 286,000 Welsh voters in this country, according to the census of the Welsh newspapers, of whom 30,000 were in New York, 29,850 in Wisconsin, 18,635 in Iowa, 15,000 in Michigan, 6,000 in Indiana, 24,620 in Illinois, 65,200 in Pennsylvania and the rest scattered through the country. When one looks at Wales on the map this seems like a pretty big output, but not all the Welshmen come from Wales. There are sixty-nine churches where only Welsh is spoken in Liverpool and smaller numbers in other English cities and all these colonies send us immigrants. Now 90 per cent. or more of the Welshmen in this country are Republicans, the Welsh colonies having been established in war times, the two large Welsh papers, Drych in Utica and Columbia in Chicago, and the three Welsh religious monthlies being Republican. It is from this solid Republican block that Mr. Jones is engaged in sealing off chips, so to speak, for Democracy. It used to be pretty discouraging work when it was considered among Welshmen a stigma to be called a Democrat. But Mr. Jones says that day is over and that the high tariff has had something to do with it, the Welshmen who work in iron mines finding that their wages do not go up under the McKinley bill and wanting to know the reason. Mr. Jones himself, though he doesn't say so, has had something to do with it also, as he has prepared, every presidential year, Democratic documents in Welsh and circulated them in all the Welsh colonies of the country. A document, of which he has sent out 40,000 copies this year, is unusually interesting. There is a good strong, rugged picture of Grover Cleveland on the outside and underneath it a Welsh translation of Chauncey M. Depew's ringing indorsement of the ex-President. Inside is a translation of Wayne McVeagh's letter and extracts from Congressman Thomas L. Bunting's speech on tin plates and the tariff from Senator Hill's speech in Brooklyn, from a document issued by the labor educational bureau in New York, denouncing Whitelaw Reid as "the arch enemy of labor," and from several of Mr. Cleveland's speeches. Ten thousand of these documents have been sent into Wisconsin, 3,000 or 4,000 circulated among Welshmen in New York and Brooklyn and 6,000 copies distributed up the state. The Republicans cultivate the Welsh vote with Welsh speakers, but the proportion of Republicans is so large in Welsh communities that it is difficult to get a good audience for a Democrat. So Mr. Jones' lieutenants distribute the Cleveland document at Republican audiences when they disperse, and they report the effect excellent and call for more documents. Mr. Jones thinks that more than 10 per cent. of the Welsh vote in this state will be cast for Cleveland.

THE GOSSIP OF THE TOWN.

Mechanics' Bank is After G. G. Herman.

Supplementary Proceedings to Be Taken. Two Other Commissioners of the Water Supply Proceedings to Be Pursued in Like Manner for Old Debts—Harlan P. Halsey's Picture—An Old Story Turns Up Again in Real Life.

In the year 1883 Mr. Harlan P. Halsey of the Brooklyn board of education was in Paris. He had stopped at the French capital on his way back to America from an extensive European tour. Among others whom he met at the American exchange was a Chicago millionaire named Daggett, who, also, had been roving widely.

"I am bringing back with me a genuine art treasure," said Mr. Daggett. "I picked it up in Milan."

"Is it a picture?" asked Mr. Halsey.

"Yes, sir; a very great picture. Copy of a celebrated painting and the only copy in existence in the world."

"Is it a picture of the interview between Catharine de Medici and Charles IX, in which Catharine is demanding that Charles shall sign the decree for the massacre of St. Bartholomew's day?"

"How did you know that? Did I tell you about the matter before?"

"No. I don't know what possessed me to guess it. But I have a copy of that picture, too. The original is in Rome. I saw it at the exhibition there which was recently opened by King Umberto. The original really belongs in Milan, where it hangs in the National gallery. But I'll tell you how we will manage it. I will say that I have the only copy of this picture save one which hangs in the house of a millionaire in Chicago."

"And I will say that I have the only copy except that which is owned by Mr. Harlan P. Halsey of Brooklyn."

So the gentlemen separated, each well content with his prize. During the years which have fled they have adhered strictly to their agreement and each has been scrupulously careful to mention the fact that the other had a copy of the celebrated picture. So time sped away and everybody was happy till one day last week, when Mr. Halsey was impelled to visit the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York. He wandered about among the choicest productions of the great minds of past ages, turning over in his mind the materials for his next book, when suddenly his attention was arrested by a painting which appeared strangely familiar and which somehow seemed to remind him of home. Looking at it attentively he perceived that it was another duplicate of the historical painting representing Catharine de Medici making her bloodthirsty demand on Charles. A placard on the picture announced that it was an original painting by an unknown artist, and that it had been bequeathed to the museum by a member of one of the oldest known families of New York.

"Think of the evidence of erudition among our art critics afforded by that incident," said Mr. Halsey, in speaking about the matter to-day. "There was that painting hanging in the gallery in New York for several years, and no one recognized the fact that it was the work of Ficosi, and no one discovered that it was a copy instead of an original. It would be interesting to know how many more mistakes of that character are to be found in the catalogue of the New York Museum of Art."

The even tenor of the way of the commissioners whom Judge Pratt appointed to appraise and condemn the property of the Long Island Water Supply company is about to be interrupted by some legal proceedings of a nature not only surprising to the general public, but totally irrelevant to the work set before the commission on behalf of the public.

The first of these surprising events is the fact that the Mechanics' bank has just begun supplementary proceedings against George G. Herman to compel him to show where his property is. On February 18, 1887, the Mechanics' bank obtained a judgment for $13,445.76 against M Herman, who was then a member of the Hirs & Herman Brewing company. The judgm[illegible] in question has never been satisfied and [illegible] Mr. Herman swore he owned real est[illegible] Mechanics' bank pricked up its ears an[illegible] after him. In order to qualify as a com[illegible] it was necessary for Mr. Herman to [illegible] oath that he is the possessor of [illegible] Rolfe & Snedeker have the matte[illegible] [illegible]d for the bank.

When the writer asked Mr. Snedeker if he had yet obtained the order for the proceedings to be held he composed his handsome countenance and declared he had never heard of the matter before. He said it well, too, but President White of the bank spoiled his game by innocently acknowledging that he had put the matter in Mr. Snedeker's hands.

"I have not heard from him yet and don't know whether or not the order to examine Mr. Herman has yet been obtained," said Mr. White in conclusion.

"I have this straight from a man who undoubtedly knows," said a man who knows what is stirring in the neighborhood of the city hall "Herman has property worth less than $500: it was conveyed to him in order to qualify him as a member of the commission, and I believe that you would find in the pocket of the man who conveyed the property to Mr. Herman a deed of reconveyance. So the property, small as it is, is only his for the purpose of making oath. There are upon that commission two other men who had real estate conveyed to them for the same purpose just to swear to, so that they could qualify as commissioners. There are judgments against these men, too and they will be pushed."

One curious thing about this election is that both parties seem to be getting more confident as the time for the balloting approaches. Three weeks ago the Democrats were silent and hard to interview; they thought Cleveland had a good chance but further than that they would say nothing. They looked for a hard fight. As for the Republicans they also were remarkably cautious in their statements. Both sides were genuinely afraid of the result and that was very plain. Now all this has changed and the most optimistic confidence has taken the place of the former timidity. The Republicans are sure that the country does not want a change from it's present prosperous condition and the Democrats are equally sure that the precepts of Grover Cleveland have fallen on good ground and the nation is about to entrust to him the administration of affairs.

Here is the kind of story that is older than the pyramids:

"A certain man of this good city of Brooklyn had a friend who had a fortune. The fortune of the friend took to itself wings and fled away on a yacht and fast horses and women of rapidity and other attractions such as appeal to a young man with plenty of money and no sense. When the last of the fortune had escaped the certain man had only his friend left, and his friend was in the condition known as 'rocky.' The rocky friend came to the certain man and laid the case before him thus: 'Behold I am become even as a bum. I have no home and my clothes don't fit me. I will go to Justice Walsh and say unto him my Lord. Give me six months that I may eat bread and not die, for I am an hungered.' Then the certain man took pity on the friend and bade him be of good cheer.

"'Know you not that there be in Jersey certain men called farmers who do dig in the ground and toil. Even so it is that they do toil on the land that is mine and you shall be a centurion among them.' And as the certain man said so it was done, and the friend became a centurion.

"Now it came to pass that when six months were gone word came to the certain man saying, 'Behold the centurion whom thou hast appointed hath scattered thy treasure that thou didst give to his hands, and behold he hath taken the money that was given for the fruits of the earth and hath spent it in riotous living.'

"Then came other men, who said: 'This was given me by the centurion whom thou didst put over your affairs,' and they did show divers papers, called drafts and checks, which the centurion had given them and on which they had given him money.

"Then the certain man was very sad and sent and dismissed the centurion and said nought. But the centurion said to such men as met him, 'Behold, I have left old Squeezix. He was too slow for me. He owes me 500 talents of silver and I will fix up that little affair with you when I get the mon.'"

The above story is only old in the sense that stories like it have been in the knowledge of mankind ever since the deluge. The certain man is a well known Brooklyn lawyer and a member of the Brooklyn club and the friend who became a centurion was a Brooklynite who two years ago owned his yacht and belonged to the best clubs in the city. Moral: "Never help a lame dog over a stile."

A meeting of the Nineteenth ward Hickory club was held last evening at its rooms corner of Marcy avenue and Hewes street. Corporation Counsel Almet F. Jenks, ex-Commissioner James D. Bell and I. D. Stapleton made speeches in which they discussed the tariff, the force bill and the currency question.

In the audience were many women who manifested great interest in the speeches. The speakers included William L. Trenholm, controller of the currency, during the Cleveland administration, ex-Postmaster Joseph C. Hendrix, candidate for congress in the Third district and James L. Bennett, president of the Twenty-third ward Democratic association. Shortly after 8 o'clock President Conrad N. Jordan, called the meeting to order and introduced Mr. Trenholm as the first speaker. Mr. Trenholm was warmly received and spoke for twenty minutes. He said in part:

We are now in the midst of one of the most important campaigns in the history of the country. The issues of the campaign are clearly defined and are well understood by all voters. The Democratic party and its candidates stand for tariff reform, that is a tariff for revenue for revenue only, while our opponents, the Republicans, have adopted the policy of alleged protection to American industries. The latter in effect means protection to a few capitalists, who have been large contributors to the Republican campaign funds. Let us see what the so called protective policy has done for the masses since the McKinley law went into force two years ago. Have the wages of the workingmen been increased or have our living expenses been reduced? Not so. I find that on the other hand the wages are lower than they were before the McKinley bill became a law. There are many reasons for this. The chief one is that an excessive tariff has been placed on raw material and upon goods that we need most. Under the unjust law we are compelled, in many cases, to pay double the amount for articles used daily in our households. Take, for instance, the duty on wool. It is excessive and increases the prices of our garments. A suit that can be bought for $25 in Europe costs $50 before it reaches the wearer here. So it is with other goods. This directly affects the masses who are compelled to suffer the burden. The election of Cleveland and Stevenson means a change. It means that only enough duty will be placed on goods to defray the expenses of the government. It is a good sign when we hear so many Republicans declare that they are going to support the Democratic candidates because they are opposed to the McKinley law and believe that the prosperity of the country depends upon its repeal. With that able, careful man, Grover Cleveland, as the leader, a great victory awaits the Democracy.

James L. Bennett, president of the Twenty-third ward Democratic association, was introduced. He made a lengthy address, in which he discussed the tariff issue and the force election bill. Before he concluded ex-Postmaster Joseph C. Hendrix entered and was greeted with cheers. He was introduced by Chairman Jordan and, when the applause ceased, said:

I do not understand my Democracy to mean any of the things ascribed to it by our opponents. I know that I am not a free trader any more than I am a Millerite—one of that sect which puts on long night robes every now and then and goes to a hill top to see the world come to an end. Doubtless the world will come to an end some day, and doubtless freedom of trade and universal disarmament of nations will come in time, but the grandchild of no being yet born is likely to see these things. There is no such thing as free trade with a tariff such as a costly government like ours demands. Our government costs $1,000,000 a day. Behind the high wall of taxation which this great expenditure creates, there is shelter for every laborer who is competing with a foreigner and something more. When we carry the wall higher it becomes an obstruction, an unnatural artifice, an interference. We thus find our difference to be one in degree—the amount of the tariff taxation. The McKinley bill was written by the manufacturers it favored. The very language used is that provided by different members of the council of the favored few called together to help revise the tariff. It raised duties on an average 20 or 25 per cent. and was decorated with bounties and drawbacks and other side door arrangements, the net result of which is to enormously enrich a few at the expense of the many. Do you wonder that Democrats denounce it as the culminating atrocity of class legislation, or that they revert to our fundamental charter as a sheet anchor to hold us against such rude and threatening waves of aggression smiting popular rights? What right has government to so interfere in the natural currents and processes of trade as to divert the earnings of its citizens from public to private uses? Incidental protection and benefit we expect and may endure, when the declared purpose is a tax for public ends, but county privileges and benefaction bestowed upon a few, so boldly as unmistakably this is surely a perversion of power. Is it possible that this germ of special privilege has remained dormant in our constitution through 100 years, to be vitalized by McKinley and Speaker Reed in the Fifty-first congress? Has a new trick been discovered whereby congress may select its beneficiaries and make them rich, as Napoleon selected his new nobility in France? If it can do it with one man why not with another? If it can do it by indirection why not specifically? If it can make grants out of the pockets of the pockets of the people by its interference with the course of trade, why not out of the treasury in a bold vote of millions? The late Justice Miller was a constitutional authority and here is what he said upon the limitations of federal taxing power: "In this country it is everywhere accompanied by the necessity that the tax shall be imposed for a public use. No state goverment nor that of the United States nor any other authority professing a regard for the rights of the people, is at liberty to take money out of their pockets for any other than a public purpose. Whenever it can be discovered that a tax is levied for something that cannot properly be called such, it may be successfully resisted by all the measures that the law allows in courts of justice. It is high time that an appeal is made to the constitution to see if it gives warrant for legislation for private benefit. The clause of the constitution upon which our opponents rely is that giving to congress power "to lay and collect taxes, duties, imports and excises to pay the duties and provide for the common defense and general welfare of the United States." This is called the taxing clause. Mr. Jefferson's opinion was that congress was not to lay taxes ad libitum for any purpose they please, but only to pay the duties or provide for the welfare of the Union. In like manner, they are not to do anything they please to provide for "the general welfare," but only to lay taxes for that purpose. The supreme court of the United States has never yet had occasion to pass upon the concrete question of the right of congress to pervert its powers of taxation from public to private use, but it has given utterance to opinions indicating that its tendencies are to as strict an enforcement of limitations upon the powers of legislatures as the most ardent Democrat could desire. The city of Topeka in Kansas, issued $100,000 in bonds as a gift to a company to establish a factory for making iron bridges. The charter of the city as it was incorporated by the legislature gave power to the city council to encourage the establishment of manufactures and such enterprises as may tend to develop and improve such city, either by direct appropriation from the general fund or by the issuance of bonds of such city in such amount as the council may determine. The constitution of the state, however, provided that "provision shall be made, by general law, for the organization of cities, towns and villages, and their power of taxation, assessment, borrowing money, contracting debts and loaning their credit shall be so restricted as to prevent the abuse of such power." There was default upon the coupons of the bonds, and the city of Topeka, when sued, fell back upon the constitutionality of the law of the Kansas legislature authorizing the issue of the bonds. The supreme court of the United States sustained this contention and declared that the action of the legislature and of the city of Topeka "was a perversion of the right of taxation in order to aid individual interest and personal purposes of profit and gain." It added that "when a tax was purely in aid of private or personal objects, the law authorizing it was beyond the legislative power and was an unauthorized invasion of private rights." "The theory of our governments, state and national," says the court, "is opposed to the deposit of unlimited power anywhere." It adds that without this "implied reservation of individual rights," the social compact could not exist, and that "no court, for instance, would hesitate to declare void a statute which enacted that the wife of A must be the wife of B; that the homestead now owned by A should no longer be his, but should henceforth be the property of B," even although there was no express constitutional prohibition. Decisions were cited showing that, by the supreme judicial court of Maine, it had been held that a town could not "loan their credit to the amount of $10,000 to Hutchinson and Lane if they would invest $12,000 in a steam sawmill, gristmill and box factory, machinery to be built in that town by them," and that the supreme court of Massachusetts had declared unconstitutional a law which authorized Boston to issue its bonds to an amount not exceeding $20,000,000, which bonds were to be loaned, under proper guards, for securing the city from loss to the owners of the ground whose buildings had been destroyed by a great fire in that city to aid those owners in rebuilding. Finally the supreme court at Washington said: "But, in the case before us, in which the towns are authorized to contribute aid by way of taxation to any class of manufactures, there is no difficulty in holding that this is not such a public purpose as we have been considering. If it be said that a benefit results to the local public of a town by establishing manufactures, the same could be said of any other business or pursuit which employs capital or labor. The merchant, the mechanic, the inn keeper, the banker, the builder, the steamboat owner are equal promoters of the public good and equally deserving the aid of the citizens by forced contribution. No line can be drawn in favor of the manufacturer which would not open the coffers of the public treasury to the importunities of two thirds of the business men of the city or town. "Yet the Republicans claim that they cannot only collect tariff duties for the purposes of raising revenue, but they can collect them for the purposes of conferring untold wealth upon some of their number.

WESLEY LEAGUE CONVENTION.

Two Young Primitive Methodists Make Able Addresses.

The convention of the Wesley leagues connected with the Primitive Methodist churches of Brooklyn was held last evening in the Primitive Methodist church on Monroe street, near Stuyvesant avenue. The church was well filled with delegates and a lively interest was taken in the proceedings. The convention was opened by a glee club, which sang the leagues' rallying song, "Onward, Wesley Leaguers." During the exercises Miss Jennie Elliott and Miss Gwendolin Jones gave readings, Mrs. E. J. Curson and Miss Millie Megorney sang the duet, "Lean Sweetly on Jesus," the Park avenue church choir rendered several selections and Mr. George A. Jones sang the solo, "Oh, Saviour, Hear Me."

The pastor, the Rev. John J. Arnaud, delivered a cheery address of welcome, after which Mr. Robert H. Thompson spoke on "What is the Distinctive Object of the Wesley League?" Mr. Arthur Gamblin had as a subject "The Duty of the League in Relation to Temperance and Prohibition." Mr. James Thorn had "The Best Methods of Work for the Recruiting Committee" and Mr. Gerald D. Moll "How to Make the League Prayer Meeting a Success." Both Mr. Thompson and Mr. Gamblin are young men and this was their maiden effort and they acquitted themselves very creditably.

COLUMBIAN CAMPAIGN SUPPER.

At Grace church, corner Conselyea and Lorimer streets, a Columbian campaign supper was given last evening, under the auspices of the women of St. Phebe's guild, a sub organization of the church. The tables were tastily decorated with flowers. After supper had been served to nearly three hundred Mr. A. Sheldrake sang a number of songs and recited and the Rev. G. W. Ivey, pastor of the church, made a brief address. The officers of the guild are Mrs. T. J. Abbott, president; Mrs. R. W. Thompson, treasurer; Mrs. Charles Chinn, vice president, and C. A. Barry, secretary.

M'LAUGHLIN'S AUTHORITY FOR BEGGING.

Daniel J. McLaughlin, the priestly garbed young man who was arrested and arraigned in Justice Tighe's court on a charge of begging, and who was reported to have said that his authority consisted of a permit from a bishop in Ireland to collect money in America, denies this statement. He says his authority for soliciting alms lies in a paper entitled "S. Congregazione de propaganda, Fide, 1693," issued from Rome. This, he claims, gives him permission, so far as the church authorities are concerned, to solicit alms for his own maintenance.

SIX STALWART STUMPERS

Ground Out Cleveland Grist in Masonic Hall.

They Were Judge Goetting, Senator McCarren, Mayor Boody, Congressman Magner, Assessor Patterson and President Gusser of the Cleveland Club, Under the Auspices of Which the Meeting Was Held.

The Grover Cleveland club of Brooklyn held a mass meeting in Masonic hall, corner of Grand and Havemeyer streets, last night. Before the meeting a band played lively music in the street and the club committee sent off fireworks. By 8 o'clock the big hall was packed and many could not make their way into the building. These men occupied seats on the platform: Judge A. H. Goetting, Senator P. H. McCarren, T. McCants Stewart, Congressman Thomas F. Magner, William E. Melody, candidate for assembly; E. J. Murtagh, Charities Commissioner Nolan, Assessor Thomas J. Patterson and William M. Hagerman. The meeting was called to order by President John Gusser of the Grover Cleveland club. Judge A. H. Goetting was then elected permanent chairman. In accepting he spoke as follows:

Fellow citizens—We are assembled here to-night to ratify the nominations made by the national Democratic covention at Chicago—for President, Grover Cleveland, and for vice president, Adlai E. Stevenson. We are also here to-night to ratify the nominations made by the various Democratic conventions in this city and county. But we must bear in mind that ratification means more than simply approval. It is a pledge given to our ticket that we will make our best efforts to secure its election. Grover Cleveland is the tried, true and fearless exponent of Democratic principles and we should, therefore, pledge the ticket our earnest support. The platform adopted at Chicago also embodies the cardinal principles of Democracy, to which every true Democrat should be loyal. Grover Cleveland stands to-day, not only as the candidate of an earnest and aggressive Democracy, but for every man who believes in a genuine reform of the tariff and in an honest and economical administration of the government in the interest of the entire people. With Cleveland as our leader the Democratic party has not only a man whose views on the tariff are unchangeable and incorruptible, but whose personal popularity is in itself a guarantee of success at the polls on the 8th day of November next. If the Republican party succeeds a train of disaster will follow fraught with the direst consequences to the peace and prosperity of our country and its institutions. Arrogant in victory and deeming itself secure during the coming four years in the possession of the government it will seek under the authority of an infamous force bill to perpetuate its power. The canting pretenses of its advocate should not mislead and will not mislead any intelligent voter. A measure so destructive to the happiness of our people, to the political institutions of our country and so infamous in its real purpose was never before urged by any party. Further, should our opponents succeed, then the present unjust class legislation will not only be continued, but larger burdens will be put upon the mass of the people. The Republican party has created the millionaires. It gave them their wealth and they in their turn dominate the party. Separate from the party the influence of the plutocratic class it has created and the party would dissolve. With such momentus issues before us we should make our best efforts and with Grover Cleveland for our leader we must win.

Senator McCarren was then introduced. He was greeted with applause. He said he didn't intend to discuss the ordinary questions of the campaign, but that he would confine his talk to the regular Democracy. "I sincerely hope," said he, "that none of you will be foolish enough to branch off and vote for the independent candidates. I want you all to sustain the reputation of the Fourteenth ward and give the usual majority for our candidates on election day. This is a Democratic community, and all we want is a free expression of our people, and we will win."

Congressman Thomas F. Magner was then introduced. While the audience was cheering Mr. Magner Mayor Boody walked into the hall unexpectedly. He was heartily cheered. Congressman Magner gave way to Mr. Boody, who said he had just come from a meeting on the steps of the sub treasury building to give them the news. Mr. Boody continued:

"When our population was not half as large as it is to-day our flag was known on every sea. To-day we have a very poor apology for a commercial navy. Why is it that our activity has ceased at the water's edge? During recent years our commerce with other nations has almost come to a standstill. This is the result of the so called protection, which benefits about 2 per cent. of the population. Since January, 1891, we have shipped abroad from this country $165,000,000 of gold. We have also shipped some grain. The result of this is that there is slowly rising a financial stringency which is being felt all over the country. The efforts of a few men to control the markets of our country have paralyzed our own trade. The position of the Republican party on the tariff question until a few years ago was precisely the same as that of the Democratic party to-day. Ten years ago Republicans were as much in favor of removing the taxes on the necessities of life as are the Democrats to-day. Property and great wealth escape the tariff tax, but there is not a workingman who escapes it. If you go to a Republican meeting no one talks about the force bill, yet they have not given up the project. They know it is unpopular. The Republican party is now led by a syndicate of monopolists. In this they are repeating history. The party which is now running the machinery of the old Republican party has little resemblance to the Republican party of thirty years ago.

Mayor Boody closed his address by eulogizing Grover Cleveland. Congressman Magner then addressed the meeting. He spoke of the good work which the Grover Cleveland club had done and outlined the principles for which the Democratic candidate stands. He defined what tariff for revenue only means and said that when taxes are levied for any other purpose it is not in accordance with the free government under which we live. He continued by saying that the Republican heroes of twenty years ago would be horrified if they could see to-day the principles which their successors represent. Then Mr. Magner dissected the McKinley bill and endeavored to show that not an American mechanic or workman has been benefited by it. Addresses were also made by T. McCants Stewart and Assessor Thomas Patterson.

DUEL WITH KNIVES FOR A WIDOW.

The Combatants Fatally Hurt and the Woman Wounded.

GOLD HILL, Ida., October 28—George Barker and Henry Paxton fought a duel with knives fifteen miles from here. Both will die, and Maggie Brandt, over whom the men quarreled, will be disfigured for life. Both men are well to do stock raisers, and Mrs. Brandt, who is a prepossessing widow, was employed as housekeeper by a man named Meserve. She bethrothed herself to both of her lovers, and for nearly two months neither of them suspected that anything was wrong. Last Saturday the two men met at Meserve's house. Both drew large knives. They were in a room about fifteen feet square. As the half crazed men circled about the room they upset and broke articles of furniture and at every blow blood flew. Mrs. Brandt stood just outside the door and witnessed the affray. She did not call upon anyone to interfere and it is said she enjoyed the sanguinary scene. After fully ten minutes of desperate fighting, Barker fell from a terrible wound in his throat. Paxton was also badly hurt. A blow from Barker's knife had nearly scalped him. Mrs. Brandt rushed in and attempted to embrace him, when he cut her nose off and put out her eye with a slash.

THE NEW CRUISER OLYMPIA.

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 27—The new protected cruiser Olympia, which will be launched at San Francisco, November 5, will be christened by Miss Anna Bella Dickie, daughter of George W. Dickie of San Francisco. The Olympia will make the fifth ship built on the Pacific coast for the new navy.

THE COAL SUPPLY ON THE OHIO.

CINCINNATI, O., October 28—The best estimates here are that there are but forty days' supply of coal in the city. The river is still falling and the yards are being drawn on. A rise in the river is not figured on before the middle of November.

TWO INTO TWELVE, SIX.

Cupid Tries His Hand at Short Division.

The Sly Little Rogue Makes an Object Lesson of Brooklyn Lovers, and the Whole Dozen Are Married Now—Walling-Boyd, Putnam-Nugent, Stevens-Hubbard, Russ-Corrigan, Oakley-Frankland and Chandler-Wardell.

Army and navy circles in Brooklyn and Washington have been deeply interested in the wedding of Miss Wilhelmina Boyd, the daughter of Robert Boyd of this city, to Lieutenant Burns-Tracy Walling of the United States navy, which occurred last night. Both of the contracting parties are widely known in the two cities and Grace church was filled with hundreds of well known society people. An interesting and picturesque feature of the wedding was the fact that the ushers, best man and groom all appeared in full dress naval uniforms. The ceremony took place at 8 o'clock. The bridal party presented a very brilliant appearance as it entered the church, headed by the ushers. The latter were Lieutenants Paul Murphy, Prince, Lansdale and Dodd of the marine corps, Paymasters Simpson and Hicks, Ensigns E. P. Preston and Assistant Ensign Alderdice. The maid of honor, Miss Isabelle Walling of Ohio, followed the ushers, there being no bridesmaids. Miss Walling's gown was a charming affair of pink mousseline de soie draped over pink silk. She carried a large bunch of chrysanthemums tied with long pink ribbons. Miss Boyd, the bride, approached the chancel on the arm of her brother, Dr. Robert Boyd, assistant surgeon of the man of war Philadelphia. The bride looked charming in an empire gown of the traditional white satin, trimmed with point lace. A wreath of orange blossoms confined the tulle vail, the filmy folds of which enveloped her entire figure. The bridal bouquet consisted of lilies of the valley. At the chancel steps the groom, attended by his best man, Lieutenant Reynolds, received the bride. The ceremony was performed by the assistant rector of Grace church, the Rev. Mr. Kirkus, who was assisted by the Rev. Mr. R. H. Tighe, in charge of Grace chapel. The grouping at the altar was very effective. The gold epaulets and scabbards of the officers scintillating in the bright lights formed a fitting frame for the bridal picture and lent a martial aspect to the scene. The mother of the bride, Mrs. Boyd, wore a black crape gown, trimmed with dull jet. Following the ceremony the immediate friends of the bride were entertained at her home, at the Pierrepont, on Willow street. The happy couple left for an extended tour West late in the evening. The list of invited guests included the Misses Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nash, Mrs. Annie M. Abbott, Mrs. H. N. Alden, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold, Lieutenant and Mrs. C. Ayres, Lieutenant and Mrs. H. PUTNAM—NUGENT.

The American flag was a feature of the wedding of Miss Mary Elizabeth Nugent to Samuel Putnam, at 332 McDonough street, on Wednesday evening. The bride is the daughter of General and Mrs. Robert Nugent of this city and the groom is a New Yorker. The couple were married under a canopy of Stars and Stripes and the general appeared in full dress military uniform when he gave his daughter in marriage. Dr. A. W. Halsey of the Spring street Presbyterian church of New York City performed the ceremony at 8 o'clock. The bride wore a gown of cream satin duchess trimmed with Irish point lace, with a tulle vail, orange blossoms and diamonds. She carried white chrysanthemums. The maid of honor, Miss Prudentia P. Nugent, her sister, appeared in blue faille and carried pink chrysanthemums. There were two bridesmaids, Miss Bessie Putnam, the groom's sister, and Miss Florence Ward. Each wore a costume of white china silk and bore a pink chrysanthemum bouquet. The Misses Leslie and Emma Nugent were flower girls and carried huge bunches of chrysanthemums, their dresses being of white china silk. The ushers were Robert Nugent, a cousin of the bride; Charles Putnam, Mr. McKenna and R. W. Murray. Charles D. Lithgow officiated as groomsman. The bride's mother appeared in mauve colored faille with Irish point lace trimming, and the mother of the groom, Mrs. Samuel Putnam, was dressed in black faille with duchess lace. The newly married pair will live in Brooklyn after their wedding trip. Among those present at the ceremony were Colonel and Mrs. Hough, Mr. and Mrs. Putnam, Mr. and Mrs. McManus, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick F. Nugent, Mr. and Mrs. McAllister, M. J. Newman, J. M. Newman, Captain and Mrs. Howe, Mr. Howe, the Misses Howe, Mr. Smith, Captain and Mrs. John C. Foley, Captain Olmerslaw, Mr. and Mrs. Gedney, Mr. Schaeffer, the Misses Schaeffer, Mrs. McKay, Mr. Parke, Mr. Fletcher, the Misses Fletcher and Surgeon William O'Mara.

STEVENS—HUBBARD.

Samuel Ross Stevens of Chicago came to Brooklyn yesterday in the role of Lochinvar, for he carried away with him to his Western home Miss Ellen Welles Hubbard as his bride. The two were united in marriage at 6 o'clock in the evening at the residence of the bride's mother, 1,116 Jefferson avenue, by the Rev. Robert Harris, rector of St. Luke's church in Gastonbury, Conn. The bride is the daughter of the late John Welles Hubbard of Gastonbury. A number of friends saw the couple married at an altar covered with white satin and festooned with yellow roses and smilax. The grouping was effective and the Episcopal service was rendered impressively. The two ushers, Messrs. Romney and Coester, led the bridal procession, followed by Mrs. Hubbard and her son, Charles Carroll Knowles, who gave the bride away. The bride's mother wore a dress of pearl gray silk with crystal brocade and trimmed with old point lace. Her ornaments were pearls. Miss Francis of South Norwalk, Conn., as bridesmaid, was gowned in pale yellow crepe, with trimming of chiffon and carried Marechal Neil roses. The bride and groom followed, stepping to the music of the "Lohengrin" march. Miss Hubbard's costume was of ivory satin en traine, with sleeves of mousseline de soie trimmed with rare point applique lace. She wore a star shaped pin, set with pearls and diamonds, in her hair, a gift of the groom, and carried a bouquet of bridal roses, with sprays of rosebuds and orange blossoms. H. S. Stevens acted as best man. The supper was served by Swain after the ceremony and a reception followed. Mr. and Mrs. Stevens left on the midnight express for Chicago, where they will be at home on December 1 and 15 at the Cleveland. The Illinois metropolis will be their future home.

RUSS—CORRIGAN.

At St. Patrick's church, at the corner of Kent and Willoughby avenues, on Wednesday morning Joseph F. Russ was married to Miss Mary Corrigan by the Rev. Thomas Taaffe, the pastor. A nuptial mass was celebrated and Father Taaffe was assisted by the Revs. James Taaffe and McGrath. J. Frank Brower acted as best man. The bride, who was attired in a pretty costume of white crepe, was given away by Mr. Charles E. McGuire. The ushers were Frank Keenan, E. McGuire, J. N. Rafferty and M. Keenan. After the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the residence of the bride's mother, 242 Vernon avenue, where a wedding breakfast was served. On account of a recent death in the groom's family only the immediate friends of the contracting parties were present. The young couple received many beautiful presents and left for an extended wedding tour, going as far as Chicago. Among the guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Julius Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. OAKLEY—FRANKLAND.

Just before the entrance of the Walling-Boyd bridal procession in Grace church last night the guests were surprised at seeing a small wedding party enter from the vestry and quietly take their places before the chancel, where they were forthwith married by the Rev. Mr. Kirkus. The bride was Miss Kate Frankland of London, England. She was attended by Miss Margaret Murphy as maid of honor, and was given away by her father, Thomas Frankland of London. The groom was John Oakley of Hicks street and the best man Henry Care. The bride wore a pretty dress of gray faille and carried a large bunch of white roses. Miss Murphy wore plum colored silk and carried pink roses. The new couple will reside on Hicks street upon their return from their wedding tour.

CHANDLER—WARDELL.

One of the prettiest weddings which ever took place at Bay Ridge occurred on Wednesday evening at the residence of Mrs. Margaret A. Wardell, on the Shore road, the bride being Miss Rittie M. Wardell and the groom Mr. Edward H. Chandler of this city. The parlors were a mass of cut flowers, plants and palms. Rev. Bishop Falkner of Christ church officiated. The bride looked very handsome in a Worth gown of ondine bengaline with rose point lace trimmings, her only ornament being a diamond crescent pin, the gift of the groom. She carried a prayer book and was given away by her brother. The maid of honor was Miss May Booth, who wore a very pretty costume of robin egg blue brocaded crape, trimmed with duchess lace, and carried pink roses, and Mr. Frank Tompkins was best man. Each received diamond pins, gifts of the groom. Mr. Joseph N. Gaus, Mr. Charles H. Frost, Mr. Walter Johnson and Mr. Edward Salt were the ushers. DIRECTORS OBJECT TO LIQUIDATION.

LONDON, October 28—Considerable sensation has been caused in financial circles by the action of the official receiver, acting in the matter of the liquidation of the London and General bank, who has presented a petition to wind up the lands and allotment company, limited, without having consulted the directors of the company and in opposition to their wishes, and to their strenuous assertion that the company is both solvent and profitable. The directors have issued a circular appealing to the shareholders to prevent the threatened dissolution and to make a united effort in that behalf. They state that the company has paid 8 per cent. for the past eighteen years on its authorized capital of $1,000,000 and that there is nothing whatever in its condition to justify an allegation of unsoundness. Spencer Balfour, M. P., is one of the directors.

MARGARET MATHER ILL FROM OVERWORK.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., October 28—Sensational reports have been sent out concerning the condition of Margaret Mather, the well known actress, who is playing an engagement here. Tuesday night she fainted on the stage and since then has been unable to appear. Her manager states that her condition is not serious and that she is suffering from overwork only. She will resume playing Saturday night, as she is rapidly recovering, and her physician says she will be in condition to resume then.

BIRMINGHAM SEES A METEOR.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., October 28—A remarkable meteor passed over Birmingham about 5 o'clock this afternoon. It passed from northeast to southwest, was intensely bright and seemingly about 3 feet wide. The track it left was serpentine in shape and remained bright for fully five minutes. At the spot where it disappeared in the southwest a bright line in the shape of the letter L remained for several minutes.

THE CHOLERA SITUATION IN RUSSIA.

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 28—The state department has been informed by our consul at Odessa, Russia, that the cholera situation in that country had much improved. The great heat had passed away, and the temperature was both mild and pleasant. The United States consul at Cairo has informed the department that all vessels from Mediterranean ports, except Turkey and Greece, are subjected to an inspection by the quarantine board at Alexandria.

CHOKED TO DEATH AT THE FREE LUNCH.

LAPORTE, Ind., October 28—Charles Schonover, a farmer living near this city, was in a saloon yesterday drinking and attempted to swallow a piece of liver taken from the lunch counter, which lodged in his throat and choked him to death before medical assistance could be summoned.

THERE WAS NO CASE AGAINST FLANNIGAN.

EL PASO, Tex., October 28—In the Federal court yesterday Customs Collector Webster Flannigan was put on trial charged with aiding the illegal importation of Chinese cheap labor. The district attorney failed to make out a case or in any way to connect Flannigan with an effort to smuggle Chinamen.

THE LOCOMOTIVE'S UNKNOWN VICTIM.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., October 28—Last night the mutilated body of an unknown man was found on the track of the Hudson river railroad half a mile north of Staatsburgh. He was apparently about 20 years old, 5 feet 8 inches high, dark hair, light mustache, light built and well dressed. Coroner Frost brought the remains to this city.

THEY'LL TALK UNTIL MAY

A Desperate Verbal Battle Between Jackson and Corbett.

President Noel of the Olympics is Coming North to See the Choynski-Godfrey Fight—Likely to Bring Some Glittering Offers With Him. The Heavy Weight Champion's Escapade.

When the fuss and feather to which Peter Jackson's return has given rise, finally subsides, it will be found that his return to this country is significant of principally nothing. He is under first rate management and he is only in search of glory to the extent that it may add to his attractions as a drawing card. In personal characteristics Jackson compares more than favorably with many of the fighters. He is not a brute out of the ring and he is a straightforward, honest fighter in it. But it is quite apparent that just now he doesn't happen to be looking for a match. He bears something of a resemblance to the melancholy Dane. Hamlet spoke daggers, but used none; Jackson is talking fists, but will use none; Corbett's situation is in no small degree his own. He can make a great deal of money on the stage and his policy manifestly is to talk fight with the champion because he thoroughly understands that Corbett will not go into the ring before next May. Until then both men can keep the verbal pot boiling merrily. Those who want to know just what the colored fighter looks like had better see him for themselves. Newspaper descriptions will give them no satisfaction whatever. According to one high authority he is almost a complete wreck; according to another he was never in such superb condition. Take your choice between these inharmonious sentences:

"The colored giant's appearance did not create a favorable impression to the critical observers. He did not look like the Jackson of old. His eyes were somewhat sunken and had deep circles around them that extended almost to his prominent cheek bones."

"Fighter Peter Jackson, smiling and happy and looking the picture of healthy, robust, manhood, arrived on the steamship Teutonic, of the White Star line, yesterday."

Among the first to greet the pugilist was the press representative of the Coney Island Athletic club, Johnny Eckhardt, who promptly proceeded to announce that that organization had authorized him to offer a purse of $25,000 as an inducement for a fight with Corbett. All Jackson could be persuaded to say was that this offer would receive due consideration. He would, he intimated, think it over, the probabilities being in favor of its acceptance, providing a more liberal offer did not happen to be forthcoming when Corbett was ready to step into the ring with him. As to the prospects of a fight between the champion and Mitchell, Jackson observed:

"Mitchell Hill never fight Corbett. His hands are in poor shape and could not stand a severe test. If the Englishman is really so anxious to enter the ring as he claims to be, why didn't he challenge me? I certainly gave him lots of chances to make a match with me. No; Mitchell will never engage in a finish contest again. He is merely bluffing."

Almost every fighter is in the habit of showering praise upon the man he has defeated. It makes his own luster as a conqueror all the more brilliant. This probably explains why Jackson says of Slavin:

"Frank gave me a hard struggle to beat him. He fought very pluckily and much better than I thought he could. He is a good man, and anybody who thinks he is easy game will find out what a big mistake he has made when he meets Slavin in the ring. I hurt my right hand very badly on Slavin's head and was under treatment for some time. It is all right now, however, and can do just as effective execution as ever."

It will interest the friends of Jack McAuliffe to know that Jackson thinks Burge good enough to meet and possibly to defeat the great lightweight. He also regards Hall as a promising candidate for the middleweight championship though he will not go so far as to venture the opinion that in a fight with Fitzsimmons he would prove to be the victor. Jackson will be at the Coney Island casino next Monday evening, but he will not be in the ring as one of the seconds. The probabilities are, however, that he will be formally introduced to the audience, so that the spectators will at least have an opportunity of looking at him.

A dispatch from New Orleans announces that President Noel of the Olympic club of New Orleans will start from the Crescent city with a party of friends to-day. He proposes to attend the Godfrey-Choynski fight and to see a good many pugilists before he returns. He is one of the most energetic men in the country and the other clubs will do well to keep a close eye on his movements. He is already credited with the purpose of making a bigger offer than has so far tempted Fitzsimmons. The first purse offered for a fight between the middleweight champion and Hall was one of $15,000. Then the Coney Island Athletic club offered $16,000 and Noel comes North, it is said, with power to go as high as $20,000. Without doubt he leaves the Crescent city under virtually no restrictions. He is not likely to stand on financial ceremony and the club which successfully competes with him will not only have to be exceedingly wide awake but exceedingly liberal also.

The indications are that Choynski's benefit to-morrow evening will be quite a notable affair. It is to take place in the Opera house at Red Bank and among those to appear are Buffalo Costello, who is to meet Alex Greggains next month, Peter Maher, Joe McGrath, Joe Walcott, Tom O'Rourke's colored light weight, and other well known pugilists. Peter Jackson will referee the bouts.

Martain Murphy, the trainer of Greggains, the Californian middle weight pugilist who is to meet Martin Costello at the Coney Island club next month, formally arranged matters yesterday so that Greggains and Joe Goddard could do their work together and help each other in getting into condition for their matches.

Goddard says that he has decided to train over in New Jersey, in place of Mechanicsville, this state, as has been his intention right along. He and Greggains have selected desirable quarters in Paterson.

The New York Athletic club will find itself very much indebted to its boxing committee to-morrow night. This is a list of the talent secured by the committee: Jim McReavy, Philadelphia; Jo John, New York; 125 pounds, six rounds. W. Ross, New York; E. Hays, New York; 118 pounds, six rounds. M. J. Kearney, New England; Jim Daly, Philadelphia; 135 pounds, six rounds. John Hannigan, New York; Joe Harmon, New York; 135 pounds, six rounds. D. Butler, New York; Jack Green, Amsterdam, N. Y.; 145 pounds, four rounds. C. C. Smith, Washington; Mike Brennan, New York; heavy weight, six rounds.

There are, it will be seen, six bouts, and the fight embraces all classes but one—bantam weights. It will unquestionably be an evening of hard fighting.

Corbett was given a banquet at the house of Dr. DeJohns, a dentist, on Ninth street, Cincinnati, last night at which fifteen persons were present. After the banquet he was met at his hotel by a reporter of the Associated Press, where the following conversation was had:

"It appears that that little affair in Chicago has excited considerable talk in New York about you."

"Yes; so it seems. But I telegraphed Mrs. Corbett all about it and she believes what I say."

As he uttered the last words he unconsciously pointed his index finger to his breast. Then he went on and said: "It's all false about that man and woman, either or both following me to Cincinnati. There is not a word of truth in that. I have not spoken a word to that woman for over seven months. She has all this while been following me in various ways. I have never given her any encouragement. On the night of the affair in Chicago the doorkeeper told me a lady outside wanted to see me. There is always a crowd around the door, and I rushed through it into my carriage. I got into the carriage and drove direct to the hotel. The woman was in it. When I got out the man pointed a revolver at me and charged me with talking to his girl. I told him to take her, I did not want her, never did want her, that I would be glad to be rid of the annoyance she had given me. The man got in the carriage and drove away. If the man is getting any glory out of pointing a pistol at Jim Corbett he is welcome to it. Jim Corbett can afford to let him have it. As for Mrs. Corbett, she trusts me and I've promised to tell her all about when I see her."

In all this talk Corbett never mentioned a name, but spoke of the people as that man and that woman.

Nearly all the seats for the Choynski-Godfrey and Lyons-Hogan fights have been sold. Excursion parties are being formed in Boston to carry the New England sports, also in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Chicago and Newark. The betting on the contest has been very light up to date. This is owing to the fact that Choynski is a stranger to most of the sports, who are always ready to bet on a good fight. The people who are willing to bet that Godfrey will win are holding off, as they do not care to bet against a man who they have never seen fight. At present the colored man is a slight favorite at odds of 100 to 90, but it looks as if by Monday night the odds would be even money. Reports from the training quarters of the men are most favorable. Both are doing their utmost to get into the best possible condition, as they realize they have big contracts before them. Defeat for either means retirement from the ring forever. Choyaskis ambition to win is to get another chance at Joe Goddard, the harrier champion, who defeated the Californian twice, but only after desperate battles. The last time they met Choynski had the fight within his grasp when he received a knock out blow from the big Australian. The preliminary fight between Dolly Lyons, the New York boy, and Kid Hogan of Brooklyn is going to be a red hot affair from start to finish. Both lads are training with a will, Hogan at Bath Beach, under the care of Jack Sheenan, and Lyons on a farm on Long Island. They will fight ten rounds and both are anxious for the claim of victory, as the winner will, in all probability, meet Billy Plimmer, the bantam champion of the world. The comfort of the guests will be an important feature of the club on nights during the fall and winter season. The house will be well heated and ventilated. One of the rules of the club that will be strictly enforced on October 31 is the absolute check that will be placed on betting, or loud or boisterous conduct of any kind. The officials of the club mean to carry their rule into effect with an iron hand, and all persons attending this or any future event will be free from the objectionable feature so frequently seen at affairs of this kind held elsewhere. The club expects to have the largest crowd ever gathered at any of its affairs, and in view of this they are making ample preparations. The house will be well manned by officers and ushers, who will see that those attending will receive every comfort the club can afford. Special trains will be put on by all roads running to the island, and nothing but closed coaches will be used. For the benefit of those residing uptown the Long Island railroad will run trains from Long Island City at short intervals. The Sea Beach and Culver roads will run boats from foot of Whitehall street every half hour, beginning at 6 o'clock. From Brooklyn trains will run from Union depot, according to the demand.

When Joe Goddard was told recently that one of John L. Sullivan's swings, if it landed on a vulnerable spot, would certainly knock him out, he replied:

"I can lick Sullivan without getting a black eye. As for him knocking me out with his right hand I'll tell you what I will do: I'll put up $500 right now, or any other time, against the same amount, that I can, with my hands down, let Sullivan hit me with his right with all his force, and he'll not knock me out. He may knock me down, but he can't knock me out."

A large crowd assembled at the California Athletic club house last evening to witness the fight between Robert Dobbs of Ogden and Charles Johnson of Minneapolis, for a purse of $2,000. Both men weighed under 138 pounds. The betting was even. The fighting was lively from the start. Johnson was knocked out in the forty-first round.

HERE'S A GAME OF BLUFF.

Chicago Players Threaten to Quit Rather Than Cut Salaries.

CHICAGO, Ill., October 28—The Chicago base ball club is experiencing some difficulty in signing three of last season's players—Ryan, Hutchison and Kittridge—and it is still a question if these three cracks will wear Anson's uniforms next year. Schriver is now the only player of the old crew signed, and he had to submit to a reduction of 33 per cent. before President Hart would affix his name to next year's roster. Schriver was cut from $2,400 to $1,600, and without much of a murmur. The same proportionate cut was suggested to Ryan, but the star center fielder could not reconcile himself to the divorcement of a cool thousand from his salary. Hutchison will in all likelihood be asked to stand a slight cut. It is rumored that Hutch, despite his inborn docility, will interpose a very vigorous kick, and may abandon the diamond if pressed too hard. Kittridge, who was recently married, contends that he cannot and will not accept a reduction. He says that he can earn more money in commercial life than the Chicago club contemplates paying. Walter Wilmot announces positively that he will go into business outside of base ball before he signs a reduction. Parrot, Dahlen and Dungan have already signed. And so the outlook is not a pleasant one for either the club or the players.

W. C. T. U OF KINGS COUNTY.

The ninth annual convention of the Kings county Women's Christian Temperance union opened yesterday morning at the Janes M. E. church, Reid avenue and Monroe street. The convention was called to order by the president, Mrs. Louise Vanderhoef. After sacred exercises and the seating of delegates the pastor of the church, the Rev. THE ROADSTERS OF BROOKLYN ORGANIZE.

A meeting was held last evening at the residence of Professor Howard Cadmus, 558 Quincy street, at which the formal organization of a new cycling club was effected, to be known as the Roadsters of Brooklyn. There were present the charter members as follows: G. A. Boettner, Henry DeWitt, J. F. Cameron, F. L. Miller, G. H. Konecke, F. O. Porter, J. Newkirk, H. Cadmus, G. B. Osterhout, H. Stiengester, W. V. A. Newkirk, Moses G. Young, F. B. Muench and Lincoln Righter. The object of the organization is to obtain from wheeling its best good and the pleasures of cross country riding in the vicinity of New York and Brooklyn. A feature is that Sunday cycling, as a club, is to be discontinued. Officers were elected as follows: M. G. Young, president; Howard Cadmus, vice president; Lincoln Righter, secretary and treasurer; G. A. Boettner, captain. Several members were elected last evening, among them Rev. David Junor.

BALL PLAYERS GET A WATER PITCHER.

The Kelly base ball club wound up its season with a reception last Tuesday evening at Daniel J. Kelly's hall, 50 Hudson avenue. Songs and recitations were numerous. During the evening the Kellys who made a fine record on the diamond, were presented with a handsome silver water pitcher by the Bridge association. A collation brought the entertainment to a close.

A RECEPTION TO JOE JEFFERSON.

Mr. Eugene Berri of the Lincoln club will have Mr. Joe Jefferson as his special guest to-night at a reception given him at the Lincoln club. Members of the club have made up a theater party to go to the Park to-night to see the veteran actor in his familiar character of Rip Van Winkle. After the performance carriages will convey the members and their guest to the Lincoln club, on Putnam avenue, where a feast of reason and a flow of soul will prevail until the midnight bell is tolled.

THE HARLEM ROAD'S WINTER TIME TABLE.

The winter time table will be put in effect on the Harlem division of the New York Central next Sunday although the changes from the present schedule are comparatively slight. The most important features of the new time table are the extension of the Croton Falls special, leaving Grand Central station at 6:43 P. M. through to Brewsters, and the extension of the 9:05 P. M. train through to Lake Mahopac. South bound, an additional train has been scheduled to leave Lake Mahopac at 7:10 A. M., arriving Grand Central station at 8:55 A. M.

CHAMPIONSHIPS BEGIN

In the Union and Intercollegiate Foot Ball Series.

To-morrow Will Mark the Opening of Both Seasons—The Prospects of Brooklyn Organized With a Strong Team for Local Contests—Heffelfinger and Riggs Out of the Hunt—General News of the Players.

As is usual with the Crescents, it is hard to say who will line up for the contest with Orange at Orange oval to-morrow until Captain Beecher leads his men on the field at the call of time. The provisional team with that of Orange, however, is given below. John Lamarche is given as one of the ends. He was so announced last Saturday, but did not play. Fish taking the position and Wingate the other end. It is more than likely that Wingate will play at right end to-morrow. If Sheldon is not fit for the fray the arrangement of the last game will also probably be made behind the line, namely Stockton at full back and Patterson and Bush in the halves. The Crescents have got a hard game before them if all reports of the Oranges' vigorous practice for the past week are true. There should be a big representation of the Crescents' friends from Brooklyn at Orange oval, to show the Jerseyites what Brooklyn thinks of its champion players. The way to get to Orange oval is by way of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad trains leaving Barclay and Christopher street ferries, New York, at 1:30, 2:20, 2:30 and 2:40 o'clock. The railroad station is only a stone's throw from the foot ball grounds. The teams as named are:

ORANGE.	Position.	CRESCENT.
Kyle	Left end	J. Lamarche
Thorp	Left tackle	Byrne
Webb	Center	M. Lamarche
Mackenzie	Right guard	Baldwin
Benedick	Right tackle	Brown
Coyne	Right end	Notman
De Hart	Quarter back	Beecher
Vanderkleft	Right half back	Sheldon
Bonner	Left half back	Stockton
Marshall	Full back	Bush

The game between Princeton and Wesleyan at Manhattan field, at 3 o'clock to-morrow afternoon, will be first championship foot ball game in the intercollegiate series. It is anticipated that there will be a big attendance. The elevens will line up as follows:

WESLEYAN.	Positions.	PRINCETON
Cobb	Center	Balliot
North	Left guard	Wheeler
Newton	Right guard	Hall
Fuller	Left tackle	Holly
Singer	Right tackle	Lea
Smith	Left end	Trenchard
Pomeroy	Right end	Vincent
Stark	Quarter	Morse
Pago	Left half	Poe
Fordyce	Right half	King
Gordon	Full back	Homans

The full list of Princeton substitutes includes Barnett, Taylor, Fulper, Fiscous, McCaulay, Anderson, Symmes, Randolph.

The Prospect Foot Ball club of this city has its season pretty well mapped out. Several games not yet definitely arranged will be added to its programme a little later on, but it will have a good deal to do in November, as will be seen by the following schedule:

November 5, Prospect vs. Englewood.
November 8 (election day), Prospect vs. Bedford.
November 12, Prospect vs. Columbia (consolidated).
November 19, Prospect vs. Ten akill.
November 29, Prospect vs. Staten Island.

The Prospects have some fine material at their disposal. They owe their existence as a club to the banding together of a team to represent the Boys' High school in 1888. After their graduation a number of the young men, its members, organized the Prospect team. Since that time it has competed in a number of matches with strong clubs. Prominent among these were the Columbia college eleven, which it held down without scoring in 1888; Yale freshmen, against whom it made a creditable showing in 1889, and the N. Y. C. A., which it held down to four touchdowns in a single game. Irrespective of the Crescent games in the last few years, the most interesting foot ball fights hereabouts have been those between the Bedfords and Prospects. These two teams have battled with each other for supremacy since 1889 and, though the Bedford team leads in victories, 2 to 1, they received such overwhelming drubbing last year at the hands of the Prospects, that they will probably organize this year, if only for the purpose of trying to turn the tables. Prominent among the ex-members of Prospect team are Loud, now playing full back with Rutgers; A. Gill, an old Princeton half back; Atkinson, now substitute quarter back on Cornell; Paterson, Couren, Walsh and George Wingate, now with the Crescents. Of the present members Morgan, the captain, is probably one of the best half backs for his weight in the country; at getting around the ends and with coaching could match any man on the college teams. Bodine, the full back, is also good at going around the ends. Victor and Wingate excel at breaking the line. Of the two Victor probably will take the precedence, as Wingate is neither a strong tackler nor a good catcher of punts. On the line Griffin, the center, plays a strong game, holds his man up well, but might be a little livelier in getting after the ball. May is the best of the guards, Elkins and Phillips not interfering enough for the runner. Underhill is a sure tackler and good ground gainer on his signal. R. Leo and Rodman are also candidates for this position, but the latter probably has the call, being pluckier and stronger than his competitors. Pilcher makes a good end, gets down the field quickly and interferes well. J. Herbert is probably the best man for the other end. His main fault is being careless in letting his man through, but in other points he excels Beecham and Cohen, the other candidates. Aldridge, the quarter, played on the Stevens line in its palmy foot ball days. He is a brainy man at signaling, interferes well and is a sure tackle.

Here is a list of the candidates for the different positions on the field:

Name.	Position.	Weight, pounds.
Griffin	center	186
Chay	guard	175
Elkins	guard	170
Phillips	guard	190
Sofio	tackle	160
R. Leo	tackle	155
Rodman	tackle	170
J. Herbert	end	148
Beecham	end	143
Underhill	end	149
Victor	half back	160
Mongan	half back	146
Wingate	half back	155
Bodine	full back	155
Aldridge	quarter back	153
Clark	substitute	150
Nolan	substitute	160
Cohen	substitute	148
Bloomehust	substitute	155

The most formidable eleven at the disposal of the Prospects would probably include Griffin, May, Phillips, Sofio, Rodman, Herbert, Underhill, Victor, Morgan, Bodine and Aldridge. They would average about 163 pounds in weight, and there are few teams other than those hailing from colleges against which they would fail to give a good account of themselves.

Heffelfinger sent a thrill of delight through the entire community at Yale yesterday by appearing on the foot ball field in working uniform. The boys thought he had come to stay, in accordance with the wild rumors that have been flying around of late. He stated emphatically, however, that there was no truth in the rumor, and that when his leave of absence was up he should return to his position in the West. This settles the possibility, it is to be hoped, for good and all. There is no need of a college man devoting half his life to college foot ball. After five or six years of it he should give up to the younger generation. Riggs of Princeton says emphatically that he will not play on the Princeton team, whether Heffelfinger plays or not. Thus these two big possibilities are disposed of, and it is for the best interests of foot ball that such should be the case.

Heffelfinger made the following statement regarding Harvards' play in an interview yesterday: "Harvard has a mighty good team. Their team play is away ahead of last year and their individual playing seems about as good. They are taking right hold of the interference ideas and are playing as nearly the Yale game as they possibly can. The Harvard team is playing a stronger game than I expected. I thought that the Chicagoes would score against them." This estimate may be taken with a grain of salt, for it is a rule of the Yale old timers to give their opponents the best of the argument until the contest actually comes.

At the present time the Yale foot ball team seems to have the best of the other 'varsity elevens in the progress made in practice. The Yale boys have settled down remarkably in the last two weeks and are in a strong position in all the departments of the game except a slight weakness still observable in the center. The team play is almost perfect, according to the testimony of those who have watched the practice of the last few days. The interference has been fine throughout the year. In running and tackling the candidates have lost the unsteadiness which at first characterized their play and the work is sharp and effective all along the line.

Contrasted with this is the condition of Princeton, whose players seem to have been too zealous for their own good, so that now several of the best men are laid off with injuries which promise to cripple the team to the end of the season. Princeton got its playing form more quickly than Yale this year, but over enthusiasm seems to have worked harm in consequence. Princeton is stronger in team play now than Yale, but it would be hard to say how long that condition will last at the rate Princeton is killing off its good men. The Princeton team seems to be especially brittle, a peculiarity of the team which was noted in the game with the Crescents last Saturday, and appeared again in the contest with the Manhattans Wednesday. Neither of these teams should have subjected Princeton to such severe accidents as they did unless there was some fatal lack of training in the team or a faulty method in the team work. The Crescents and the Manhattans are both infants in comparison with Yale, and if bucking them is fraught with such dire results to Princeton there is no calculating the harm of Yale onslaughts.

Harvard is playing with practically an old team. And yet the coaches have confined their work entirely to defensive play in practice, giving as a reason that it is useless to teach fancy foot ball until the rudiments are completely mastered. The result has been a one sided development so far and, with a rush line that is well nigh impregnable, the wearers of the crimson are still deficient in handling the ball, in interference, and lack steadiness in offensive rush line play. They are not as good in work behind the line as either Yale or Princeton. The remedy may come with time, however, and the Harvard boys may be in the hunt when they meet Yale at Springfield on November 19.

The Chicago athletic club, whose representatives are touring the East and playing games with all the colleges and big athletic clubs, is a split from the University club of that city. It is a new enterprise, but is made up from the live members of the older organization, and from the character of the delegation sent on East it has all the elements of get there which would naturally be expected in younger Chicago. The old club and the new have already raised a dispute between themselves and the Chicago base ball club as a party of the third part. The dispute is about the possession of the base ball grounds for a Thanksgiving day game. The new club has the call at present and will play a game with some strong Eastern club on that date.

Donnelly, the left end of the Chicagos, made a great hit with the crowd at Cambridge by his brilliant play. His superb tackling was one of the features of the game. When the Chicagos started out on their trip they expected to have the assistance of Dudley, Dean and Vic Harding, the old Harvard players, but they could not get away. Billy Bull will probably play full back when the Chicagos appear in Brooklyn.

The Yale Princeton game at New York on Thanksgiving day will be managed by the University club of New York. There will be no auction sale of tickets and every effort will be made to keep the valued pasteboards out of the hands of speculators. The share of tickets for Princeton and Yale respectively will be 1,500 grand stand and 500 bleacheries seats. All the rest will be sold unreservedly. There will be no free seats and standing room will be $1.

SECOND SEASON BATTING AND FIELDING.

Brooklyn Ranked Sixth in the First and Second in the Other.

The official batting and fielding averages for the second league season have not yet been announced, but the following tables will not come far from being correct. The Brooklyns, which led the first season's teams in batting, fell off considerably during the second half, finishing sixth on the list, although they probably lead for the full season. Following is the table of hits and runs:

MARRIED FIFTY YEARS.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos G. Hull Celebrate Their Golden Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos G. Hull last evening celebrated at their residence, 247 Clermont avenue, the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. They were married on October 27, 1842, at Fulton, Oswego county, N. Y., the bride being the youngest daughter of Jonathan Case, one of the early settlers in Oswego county. The groom was a graduate of Union college and had just been admitted to the practice of the law. Mr. Hull subsequently held the office of surrogate of Oswego county for eight years, during which time he published a legal work on the laws relating to the duties of town and county officers. About 1862 Mr. Hull removed to New York city, where he formed a partnership with the late Benjamin V. Abbott, the author of many legal publications. In 1868 he took up his residence in this city, where he has since lived, and continued the practice of his profession in the city of New York. The happy couple have usually enjoyed excellent health, but owing to the recent illness of Mr. Hull, the gathering last night was limited to the members of the immediate family and a few friends. They were the recipients of numerous letters of congratulation from their friends and old acquaintances. Three children, Herbert G. Hull of this city, Mrs. A. J. Foster of Boston and Mrs. John W. Harbison of Duluth, Minn., and ten grandchildren, united in the celebration.

CAUGHT THE CONVICT IN A CELLAR.

He Was Three Days Out of Auburn When Arrested for a New Crime.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., October 28—James Lee, colored, who was convicted of assault and sentenced to ten years at Auburn prison on Tuesday last, escaped from the county jail yesterday afternoon by prying open a door leading into the jail yard with a pickax. From the yard he managed to reach a 20 foot wall and quickly disappeared among the houses behind the jail. About dark the officers in pursuit located him in a cellar, but he refused to come out, and, as the officers were afraid to go inside, he was fired upon by the officers who stood about eight feet away. He refused to surrender and the officers finally went inside after him. He fought desperately, even at the point of a revolver, but he was overpowered after a hard struggle. Lee is a desperate criminal, having just finished a five years' sentence at Auburn, three days before he was arrested for attempting to shoot an officer.

STABBED BY A CONVICT.

SUNBURY, Pa., October 28—Armed with a big knife, James Langdon, a desperate convict, attacked Patrick Lynch, an employe at the county jail, yesterday. Both are of powerful physique and a desperate battle was fought. Lynch was stabbed half a dozen times and will die.

ITS SECOND SEASON.

Inter Club Bowling League Begins the Annual Tournament.

Games on the Alleys of the Hanover, Union League, Montauk and Midwood Clubs—Comparison of Last Year's Opening With the Present One—Detailed Scores and Records.

The second championship tournament of the inter club bowling league of this city was inaugurated last night at the alleys of the Union League, Oxford, Hanover and Midwood clubs, and it was a most auspicious opening of the season, inasmuch as it was an even fight with six of the eight contesting clubs on the occasion, the games being even in victories and defeats at the alleys of the Union League, Hanover and Oxford clubs. Moreover the high scores bowled, in a majority of the games, showed that all of the teams of the original eight clubs had been materially strengthened. It will be remembered that at the close of the tourney of 1891 and 1892 the Lincoln and Carleton clubs were tied for the first prize, and on the playing off of the tie the Lincolns carried off the honor; and yet, in a club contest following the tourney and independent of it, the Oxford polished off the victorious Lincolns. In the opening games of October 15, 1891, the record of the inaugural night of the league's first season stood as follows:

TOURNEY OPENING GAMES, 1891.

Carleton vs. Midwood, first game	676	to	704
Carleton vs. Midwood, second game	772	to	663
Total	1,448	to	1,367
Hanover vs. Union League, first game	787	to	721
Hanover vs. Union League, second game	776	to	730
Total	1,563	to	1,451
Lincoln vs. Oxford, first game	784	to	731
Lincoln vs. Oxford, second game	844	to	759
Total	1,628	to	1,490
Knickerbocker vs. Montauk, first game	743	to	711
Knickerbocker vs. Montauk, second game	752	to	764
Total	1,495	to	1,475

It will be seen that in but one game was a single game score of over eight hundred made.

TOURNEY OPENING GAMES OF 1892.

Hanover vs. Lincoln, first game	815	to	825
Hanover vs. Lincoln, second game	793	to	775
Total	1,608	to	1,600
Union League vs. Carleton, first game	766	to	712
Union League vs. Carleton, second game	799	to	823
Total	1,565	to	1,555
Oxford vs. Montauk, first game	755	to	830
Oxford vs. Montauk, second game	832	to	748
Total	1,587	to	1,578
Midwood vs. Aurora Grata, first game	872	to	675
Midwood vs. Aurora Grata, second game	812	to	690
Total	1,684	to	1,365

The highest single game score last year on the opening night was 844, scored by the Lincolns in their second game with the Oxfords, no other single game score reaching 800. Last night the Midwoods led with 872 and 812 in single games; the Oxfords scored 832 in their second game; the Montauks 830 in their first game; the Lincolns 825 in their first game; the Hanovers 815 in their first game, and the Carletons 823 in their second game. This shows great strengthening of the respective teams, and it promises a hotly contested tourney.

The most noteworthy gathering of last night was that at the alleys of the Union league, the Carletons being the visiting players. Both teams presented new faces on the occasion, the Carletons having Messrs Van Siclen, Brose and Schenck, in the places of Messrs. Theo Dollard, Degraw and Masters, while the Union league's new bowlers were Messrs. Territt and James in the place of Hamlin and Warner. In 1891 in the first game the Union league team scored 721 and in the second 730. Last night the new team scored 766 and 799, showing an increased total. In 1891 the Carleton team scored 676 and 772 against 712 and 823 last night, the new team showing up stronger, as the totals show.

In the contest at the Union league's alleys last night the home team ended the first frame with a score of 68 to 64, but in the second frame the visitors went to the front by 134 to 124, and they not only remained there up to the end of the eighth frame, but ended that frame with the score at 582 to 576 in their favor. Then it was that the leaguers rallied in brilliant style, Messrs. Squires and Gaines getting in strikes and the other three good spares, which sent them to the front by 681 to 664. In the tenth frame the Carletons fell off badly, not one of them escaping a break, and as Territt got in a strike and Squires a spare on the other side, the home team came in victors by 766 to 712. Here is the frame score of the game:

Union League..68 124 193 269 363 420 497 576 681 776—776.
Carleton........64 134 278 302 369 430 505 582 664 712—712.

In this game Mr. Brose led the Carleton score with 161, Dr. Wilde being second with 156 and Mr. Van Sicklen third with 133. On the other side Mr. Squires led the score with 165, Mr. Christmas being second with 154, and Mr. James third with 152. A fine spare from a split was a feature of Mr. Brose's score.

The table showing the strikes, spares, breaks and total scores made by each player in the game is as follows:

FIRST GAME.

UNION LEAGUE.	S.	S.	B.	Score.	CARLETON.	S.	S.	B.	Score.
T. Christmas	1	6	3	154	F. Wild	1	6	3	156

I. N. James	3	3	4	152	W. C. Brose	3	2	5	161
D. Terrett	0	3	7	118	C. Wheeler	3	4	7	130
T. L. Wells	3	5	2	177	M. Schenck	0	5	5	132
Total	11	19	20	177	Total	10	19	25	712

Encouraged by winning the first game the home team opened the second contest in lively style, they scoring 107 to Carleton's 58, and the advantageous lead thus obtained was maintained up to the end of the fifth frame, at which time the score stood at 400 to 389 in favor of the leaguers. Then the Carletons rallied a little and ended the sixth frame with the score of 479 to 468, and improving their position each frame they ended the ninth frame with a score of 748 to 724 in their favor. Then came the tenth, with the most brilliant spurt of the night's contests, Mr. Wheeler giving the home team a regular knock out blow as he ended the frame record with five successive strikes, three being scored in the tenth frame, he topping the score of the match with the record of 204 points to his credit. Here is the frame score of the second game, by which it will be seen that the Carletons won the second game by 823 to 799, a lead of 24 points:

Carleton....... 58 156 232 315 389 479 552 639 748 823—823.
Union League.107 205 273 319 400 468 533 628 724 799—799.

The score of strikes, spares and breaks with total follows:

SECOND GAME.

UNION LEAGUE.	S.	S.	B.	Score.	CARLETON.	S.	S.	B.	Score.
T. Christmas	0	7	3	150	F. Wild	1	7	2	160

T. L. Wells	3	4	3	161	M. Schenck	1	3	6	130
Total	13	22	16	799	Total	15	21	19	823

At the end of the contest cheers for each team were given, with a special hurrah for Mr. Wheeler's fine score, he winning the prize watch offered by Mr. Warner for the highest total score of the match. Then adjournment was had to the supper table, where a delightful social time was had, with considerable comparing of notes. During this a discussion arose on the subject of the scoring of strikes made in the tenth frame. The rule of scoring requires that the score of the strikes, spares and breaks made in the game should foot up a total of 50 points, regardless of extra strikes and spares made in the game. Under this rule Mr. Wheeler's record of seven strikes would necessarily be reduced to five, the two extra strikes not being counted. Dr. Wilde took exception to this rule, while Mr. Crosby of the Lincolns, who was present, argued that the rules prohibited the counting of the extra strikes in the record of strikes, spares and breaks. Until the league settles the question the EAGLE will count the extra strikes and spares made in the record.

The next interesting contest of last night was that between the Lincolns and Hanovers, which took place on the alleys of the Hanover club in the eastern district, the Lincolns being given a surprise party on the occasion, as they fully anticipated scoring a double victory against their Williamsburgh adversaries. Both teams had new bowlers, Messrs. Fetterhalf and Sands replacing Messrs. Barry and Pearce on the Lincoln team, while Messrs. Evans, Lyon and Piper were substituted for Messrs. Dick, Conrad and Pelaskin of last year's Hanover team.

In the first game the Lincolns jumped into a winning lead at the start, and though at times the Hanovers got pretty close to them they failed to overhaul them, and they finally came in victors by 825 to 815, a lead of but ten points. Here is the score of the ten frames:

Frame score	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
Lincoln	102	168	243	321	412	492	564	650	738	825
Hanover	69	152	229	320	386	467	551	647	732	815

The score of strikes, spares and breaks, with the totals, follows:

In the second game the Lincolns were well up in front until the sixth frame, when the Hanovers got the lead and finally came in victors by 793 to 775, a lead of 38 points. Appended is the score of the strikes, spares, breaks and totals:

AN INTERNATIONAL RACE LIKELY.

The New York Yacht Club Answers Lord Dunraven's Challenge.

The New York Yacht club, through its racing committee, is taking a thoroughly American stand regarding Lord Dunraven's challenge for the America's cup. At a meeting last night the following letter, granting several concessions, was read and will be forwarded to the royal challenger:

67 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK, October 20, 1892.

To the Earl of Dunraven:

MY LORD—Your letter of the 16th of September was submitted to the New York Yacht club at a meeting held October 18.

The club appointed a committee of five, with power to arrange a match for the America's cup with any qualified yacht club, upon the terms of the new deed of gift, with the exception that no dimension, except the length of the load water line, need be given by the challenger, and the addition that neither yacht shall exceed by more than 2 per cent. the length upon the load water line named by the challenger, and any excess over the length upon the load water line named by the challenger on the part of either yacht shall be counted double in calculating time allowance, provided that no yacht of the specified rig, either now existing or under construction and known to be available for the use of this club in defending the cup shall be debarred or penalized.

This committee cannot, of course, say what yachts excepted by the above proviso exceed by 2 per cent. the load water line of your vessel until they are informed of the intended length.

We note that the above terms seem to imply the time allowance of the New York Yacht club, which we, therefore, consider part of the proposition.

We would further add that as to the details of sailing the match, alluded to in your letter, we think they can be easily arranged after a challenge has been made in proper form by a qualified yacht club. Regarding your lordship's proposition, "that it is to be understood and agreed that should I win the cup, the club obtaining custody of it shall hold it open to a challenge on the same conditions as those under which I challenged," we are instructed by the New York Yacht club to reply: "That while the trust deed obliges the club having the custody of the cup to accept the conditions therein prescribed if so elected by the challenger, as it also permits such club to accept any conditions mutually agreed on, this club regards any further understandings or agreements as unnecessary, and will make no agreement that in the event of becoming a challenger it will adopt said terms in its challenge."

This committee heartily concur with your lordship in expressing the hope that next year may be productive of a most interesting international contest. I have the honor to remain, very respectfully,

CHARLES J. PAINE,
Chairman for the Committee.

Under these conditions it is more than likely that a match will be made for 1893. The racing committee of the club is composed of Charles J. Paine, James D. Smith, Archibald Rogers, A. C. Canfield and Latham A. Fish.

A nominating committee was appointed to select candidates for the coming election of officers. Thirteen new members were elected.

THE SEIDL SOCIETY'S WORK.

First Saturday Evening Concert For the Working People.

To-morrow, Saturday evening, the Seidl society gives the first concert of the series for the working people in the Academy of Music, with Anton Seidl as conductor and the full Metropolitan orchestra. Knowing that music is a good thing and anxious that as many people as possible should share its benefits, the women of the Seidl society have arranged this series of concerts and have placed the price of admission within the reach of everyone. Through various channels tickets on white cardboard have been distributed. The holders must present them at the box office on Saturday night, and upon payment of 10 cents will receive the admission ticket. There are no reserved seats.

The soloists for Saturday night are Mme. Lillian Blauvelt, the well known soprano, and Victor Herbert, the violoncello soloist. The programme is a charming one, full of delightful music. It includes, for the orchestra, the overture from "Tannhauser," the ballet music from "Boabdil," a bouquet of beautiful waltzes, the prize song from "Der Meistersinger," the "March du Synode" from Saint Saens' "Henry VIII" and other notable selections. Mme. Blauvelt will sing the romanza from Thomas' "Mignon" and other selections, and Victor Herbert will play, among other things, a new solo. A better programme could not be asked for.

THE DISORDERS IN HOMESTEAD.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., October 28—The result of the appointment of new deputies is that up to a late hour last night all attempts at disorder were subdued. A meeting of business men was held to protest against the riotous actions of late. The meeting was largely attended. J. T. Milliken, borough solicitor, said that he thought the time had arrived when the people should take a determined stand. He favored resolutions against the existing "reign of thugism." Numbers of Homestead's business and professional men spoke in a similar strain. A resolution was then adopted deprecating the recent disturbances of the peace and calling upon the sheriff to appeal to the governor if necessary for sufficient force to preserve good order.

TENTH WARD DEMOCRACY

Parades in Strong Numbers, With Banners and Torches.

Columns of Well Dressed and Enthusiastic Voters Who Are Followers of Cleveland. Demonstrations All Along the Line of March. Reviewed by Hugh McLaughlin.

The Democracy of the Tenth ward turned out in strong numbers last night, when their first parade in this campaign took place. For some weeks back preparations have been going on, and nearly every young voter had signified his willingness to be assigned a place in the line. As a consequence the streets were ablaze with bonfires which burned on every corner, and lanterns and flags flaunted in the breeze beneath windows and from the roofs of the houses. Crowds of people were congregated along the line of march and the roads were filled with hundreds of well dressed young men, the crowning feature of whose attire was a nobby silk hat. Every one of them carried a bamboo stick, from the end of which sprouted a bunch of red, white and blue ribbons. Marshal John M. Gray, mounted on a coal black charger, stood at the head of the forces ready to give the command at which 2,000 feet would be lifted from the ground and the first step in the much talked of parade taken. Conterno's band, in a becoming uniform, blew out a long, harmonious blast a few minutes after 8 o'clock, at which Marshal Gray's charger pranced a bit and then settled down to the manners of a well bred horse. A second later the marshal's hand appeared in the air, the captains shouted the order to march, the band rattled off the opening notes in the "Star Spangled Banner" and away went the troops over the cobbles for a walk of two hours or more.

The rendezvous from which the start was made, was the rooms of the Young Men's club on Nevin street. From Nevins the ranks turned into Union as far as Fourth avenue. The remainder of the line of march was as follows: Wyckoff street to Third avenue, to Warren street, to Nevins, to Wyckoff, to Bond, to Third, to Hoyt, to Union, to Smith, to Degraw, to Hoyt, to Bergen, to Smith, to Third, to Court, to city hall, to Remsen, to Clinton, to Warren, to Nevins, to club house.

There were demonstrations all along the line. The residence of Alderman McGarry on Nevins street was brilliantly illuminated. The stoop was filled with men and women for a background. In the center stood Alderman McGarry and Judge Tighe, who bowed to the salutes of the passing men. In Union street, near Hoyt, where John McGarry lives, the marching men were well received. Scores of lanterns burned in his courtyard and illumination appeared in every window in the house. Crowds who were gathered there indulged in some extensive cheering which was lustily returned. Some of the other residences which were decorated for the occasion were those of Patrick Corcoran, Fourth avenue and Baltic street; Peter McNamara, Fourth avenue and Union street; George Fisher, Fourth avenue and St. Marks place; Bart I. Schneider, Wyckoff street; John Bray, Wyckoff street; Joseph McGarry, Bond and Wyckoff streets, M. McCarren, Warren and Bond streets; Hugh Mulligan, First street, near Bond, William H. McCann, Degraw street; Supervisor John Donohue, Hoyt street; Jefferson club, Hoyt street; James Milland, Hoyt street; Robert Lambert, Smith and Bergen streets; Joseph Kenney, Smith street; Union Democratic club and Hugh McLaughlin, on Remsen street.

Larney, Harry Martin, Daniel Kearns, Morris Michaels, John Gentleman, John Moehr, Thomas McGee, George Mills, Conrad Mess, George F. TO BE BURIED ON SUNDAY.

All Arrangements Made for Peter Sutter's Funeral.

Many friends and relatives of the late Peter Sutter called last evening at his late home on Wyona street, near Liberty avenue, to express their sympathy to the bereaved widow and daughter. The funeral arrangements are in charge of County Treasurer Harry Adams and Herman Schluchtner. The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The rector of St. Clement's Protestant Episcopal church, at the corner of Pennsylvania and Liberty avenues, will conduct the services. The interment will be in the Lutheran cemetery in Middle Village.

WILL BE MARRIED ON MONDAY.

Colonel J. Kennedy Stout to Wed Miss Homan.

The eastern district has grown weary with waiting and watching for the predicted triple wedding in the Homan family at 65 Hooper street. Colonel J. Kennedy Stout of Spokane Falls is still in the city, and he told an EAGLE reporter this morning that he should be married to Miss Ida Homan on Monday afternoon next, and that he would start at once for Spokane with his bride.

POLITICS IN OTHER STATES

Knute Nelson is in an Unpleasant Predicament.

Minnesota's Republican Candidate for Governor Hustled Out of Town to Avoid a Warrant for Assault—The San Francisco Vigilance Committee Summoned to Meet.

St. Paul, Minn., October 28—Candidate Knute Nelson is not under arrest at Elbow lake, as stated Wednesday, for assault upon Tobias Sauby. The warrant was issued, but Nelson was hustled out of the town on a freight train to prevent it being served and the spectacle is now presented of a Republican candidate for governor of Minnesota an actual fugitive from justice. The affair created a great stir over the state.

Omaha, Neb., October 28—C. H. Van Wyck, candidate for governor, and Chairman Blake and Secretary Pierce of the state committee, representative of the people's party, met at a conference with the Democratic state committee, which lasted until midnight last night. Several propositions looking to fusion were discussed and rejected. The Democrats in secret conference decided that they would not pull off the Cleveland electors, but left it to the local committeemen to instruct the Democrats to vote for the Weaver electors.

San Francisco, Cal., October 28—The people of this city were startled last night by the reading of the following advertisement in an evening paper: "Attention, the executive committee of the committee of public safety will meet Saturday evening at 8 o'clock punctual, and prompt attention is requested. By order." This is the same committee of safety which subdued the Kearney and lot riots in 1877 and it is thought the meeting has been called to take some action in regard to the election frauds which it is thought may be attempted on election day. The members of the committee are sworn to secrecy and nothing definite can be learned as to the cause of the meeting.

WILL FORM A CONSISTORY COURT

To Settle Disputes Between Bishops and Priests in This Country.

Philadelphia, Pa., October 28—It is announced that one of the principal reasons for the visit to this country of the papal legate, Archbishop Satolli, and Mgr. O'Connell, president of the American college at Rome, is the establishment here of a consistory court to try and to settle disputes arising between bishops and priests without their appealing to Rome, as is now done in such cases. The legate is vested with ample authority by the pope in the manner in which the court shall be established, and Mgr. O'Connell is to be its secretary. The consistory, when established, will hold its sittings at the Catholic university at Washington and it is expected that the first case to come before it will be the matters now under dispute between Bishop Brennan of Texas and a number of the priests of his diocese. Archbishop Satolli is now traveling about the country, studying the phases of one of the questions for which he was sent here by the pope and in which the holy father takes the greatest interest, the education of the children of the Roman Catholics. On November 21 a conference of the Catholic prelates of America and the pope's envoys will be held at the archiepiscopal residence in New York and the personal and general details of the business of the consistory court will be discussed and decided upon. At this conference Cardinal Gibbons will preside. When the case before the court is of a very grave character the court may at its discretion order the contestants to Rome for a settlement of their differences.

NEWS OF THE EXCHANGES

The "Takamine" and the "Take a' Your" Processes.

Grog is a Mixture of Whisky and Water—A Large Dose Inebriates the Speculators Who Swallow It—New England Matters—A Strong Morning.

WALL STREET, October 28—A bubble burst on the stock market yesterday afternoon, playing havoc with values for a few moments and causing an irregular closing. Whisky was this bubble. It has recently been inflated on a story that the dividend will be increased, and from time to time the street has been fed with remarkably good statements concerning the financial condition of the trust. It is suspected that these reports, which came from insiders, were circulated for the purpose of enabling those parties to unload stock bought at lower figures, for, as is well known, managers of such enterprises make more money by manipulating their stocks than they do by manufacturing their product. The presumption is that the managers not only sold their long stock, but also went short, and yesterday afternoon the report came that not more than 1 per cent. dividend would be declared and that the declaration of the one-half of 1 per cent. extra dividend would not be made until the Takamine process of manufacturing whisky had been more thoroughly tested. Meanwhile the managers will probably continue to use the "take a' your" process of making money out of the stock by again inflating the bubble.

There are no new developments in New England, but it is probable that the day will not pass without something fresh, even if untrue. It is likely that Mr. Parsons will resign if he finds that the Reading people have a controlling interest in the stock, as is claimed, and in that case Mr. A. A. McLeod will probably take his place.

Incidental to the Reading-Boston and Maine New England deal was a jump in Boston yesterday in the price of Central Massachusetts preferred and common. The company is one of the Reading's links in the new combine. Mr. McLeod has really become the president of the Central Massachusetts, which is leased to the Boston and Maine. A glance at the map will show that if necessary the Reading could dispense with the New England alliance, as the Central Massachusetts has been surveyed across to a connection with the Reading recently acquired Central New England and Western railroad company (Poughkeepsie bridge system). Eventually the Central of Massachusetts will be the short cut for the Reading to Boston. The road has great possibilities, as the entire amount of common and preferred is only $7,000,000. The biggest bulls on the property are the Boston people, who advanced Eastern from 60 to 195. An official of the Reading said to-day: "It is plain to be seen that the public do not realize the full importance of Mr. McLeod's latest move. They do not grasp the fact that the Reading has been converted from a simple 'coal road' to a powerful and influential trunk line. They simply see the opening of new markets for our coal, but do not understand that we now have a through route from Canada to the Gulf and from the Atlantic to the Pacific. "The arrangements which have been and which will be made in the future all tend toward the establishment of another great trunk line. It is necessary to do this, although that necessity does not exist to the extent that it will sixty years hence, when the anthracite coal fields of Pennsylvania shall have become exhausted. This is a problem which the Reading must face some time, and President McLeod is preparing for the inevitable—the loss of anthracite coal tonnage. This may sound like an exaggerated statement, but it is true nevertheless."

Covering of short contracts in the bubble whisky brought about a sharp rise in it at the opening, but when the demand was satisfied the stock feverishly declined. New England was much less of a favorite with speculators and it moved within a narrow range. Reading appeared to be well held. Lead improved on the statement that if Linseed Oil is taken in the terms will be advantageous to the Lead. Atchison and the grangers were in fairly good request and the tone of the market was generally strong, whisky being about the most unsettled property, for the first half hour. Toward 10:30 the market grew less active, but the tendency was gradually upward for the next half hour with New England, Reading, Atchison, the grangers and Erie leading. The latter was affected by reports of a new alliance with the Reading. St. Paul officials are pleased over steady increase in its earnings, which for the past nine months have been larger than any other road in the country. It is thought that the October net earnings will be the largest of any month in the history of the road.

The market was active and higher after 11 for half an hour, with good buying of New England, Reading, Sugar, Lead, the grangers, Atchison and Erie, and the business was well distributed. Toward 11:30 the market grew dull and soon after it began to yield to the pressure of realizing sales. The weakest were Cordage, New York, Susquehanna and Western, General Electric, Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, Reading and Missouri Pacific, while the other stocks were heavy. The speculation became tame about noon. There is a feeling that money will continue to work closely and this will make it difficult for speculators to carry the dynamite stocks, in which the trading is largest. The facts about the New England deal are out and the business in the stocks of the roads embraced in the combination will most likely be limited. The blockade of grain on Western roads will in all probability continue for some time, and this will affect earnings of all the grangers. But while the indications point to a limited speculation something may occur at any moment to change the situation.

Judge Campbell, the Reading's legal advisor, says that the results of the acquisition of the Boston and Maine by the Reading will be for Reading. He believes that it is the best thing the Reading could have done to supplement the acquisition of the Lehigh Valley system. The Reading now has a complete sytem extending from the lakes to the New England coast. The judge in reply to a question confessed that Wall street's failure to grasp the significance of the deal was somewhat surprising. Mr. McLeod has accepted the presidency of the Boston and Maine for the benefit of the Reading and the position of that road will be strengthened by the change as to New England. There will be no exchange of stock for Boston and Maine and no guarantee of dividends. "We told right along," said Judge Campbell, "that we were not guaranteeing dividends."

Toward 12:30 the market grew a shade more active, with first a fall and then a recovery in whisky and good buying of New England and Atchison. The September report of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, showing an increase of $105,323 in net earnings seemed to have been discounted. The trading grew tame again toward 1.

Latest.

Soon after 1 the market improved all around, but the speculation was not active. A Philadelphia dispatch, which revived interest in New England, was to the following effect: "It can be stated on good authority that the deal with New England has not yet been announced, but its details may be looked for at any moment. When they are announced, the full import of President McLeod's master stroke will be understood." A Boston despatch quotes Mr. Parsons as saying that he has not resigned and that he is as much in the dark as ever about the plans of the Reading people and the actual control of the road. A man once very conspicuous in the New England company says: "I have just returned from Boston. The deal with New England and Boston and Maine has raised a storm of opposition down East. While the Reading people may have control of New England they have not got control of Boston and Maine. I understand they have only about 60,000 out of the 187,000 shares of Boston and Maine stock. They had great difficulty in getting resignations from the Boston & Maine board. They only got one and wanted more. The one they got made some of their Boston and Maine holdings cost them a price far above the market. The Morgan, Vanderbilt and Rockefeller interests are much opposed to the change in Boston and Maine affairs. I am told that Mr. Morgan started for Boston in his private car on the day Mr. McLeod was elected, with a view of heading off what took place. It is thought that if Mr. Morgan had been there Mr. Hart would not have resigned from the Boston and Maine board. Mr. Morgan, however, got only as far as Middletown, when he heard of the change and turned back. There may yet be some scrambling for control of Boston and Maine.

Soon after 1:30 o'clock the market grew heavy with apparently liberal selling of St. Paul, Rock Island, Chicago Gas and Northern Pacific preferred. The decline in St. Paul was caused by a decrease of $214,950 in the September net earnings. After the delivery hour the whole list fell off on a moderately large volume of business and sugar was then among the weak stocks. There was good selling of whiskey. Toward 2:30 the market grew dull and steady.

Stocks were irregular in the late trade and at the close.

Money loaned at 6 per cent. and at 5, and closed about 5.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Paragraphs About the Railroads, the Crops and the Markets.

The hearing in the so called Sugar trust cases, which was to have been continued yesterday in the office of the United States district attorney at Philadelphia, was postponed on account of the absence of important witnesses, no definite date being decided upon for its continuance.

A bank president says: "I have lately made it my business to ascertain the feeling among other houses with regard to movements of gold in the near future, and I find them all of one mind as regards the chances of importing gold from England. They say that there is not the slightest chance of our being able to draw gold against our exports of cereals and cotton this fall. Moreover, they go further and say that gold exports will commence early in January. Now if it costs 15 cents per $1,000 to send money West and it costs 75 cents per $1,000 to bring it back, it stands to reason that there will be no hurry in the return of money. Moreover, until the cotton crop is moved money will continue to go South and I see no diminution of demand likely for some time yet. Therefore, I can see no reason for anticipating anything but a strong and active money market right along. What the effect will be of a demand for gold next January, seeing that there is no return of that already shipped away, everyone can judge for himself. It can scarcely be ease in the money market.

Dow, Jones & Co. have the following: "Almost every office yesterday was discussing the effects of the election upon the so called trust stocks. We interviewed several people identified with the ex-trusts, because the former trusts are now corporations, the majority of them incorporated in New Jersey. The results of these interviews are briefly: The Sherman anti trust law is obligatory in its provisions. Attorney General Miller carefully investigated several of the combinations and the result was that suits were brought in Boston against Distillers and Cattle Feeders' and in Philadelphia against the American Sugar company. Equally careful investigation was made in the case of Cordage and the treasury agents reported that there was no ground for suit and Attorney General Miller brought no suit, because the Cordage company was not a monopoly, but was pursuing legitimate business. In the whisky trust suits the indictments were defective and had to be amended. In the sugar case hearings are going on before a master, the sugar people being absolutely confident that their position is unassailable. What Mr. Cleveland's attorney general would do, in case Mr. Cleveland is elected, no one can say. Mr. Harrison's attorney general has brought suits against certain of the ex-trusts. Under either king the ex-trust people are perfectly satisfied that their position is impregnable except perhaps where an absolute monopoly exists, and such a case among listed industrials will be extremely hard to find. The managers of the so called industrials were confident that the election will have no effect whatever upon speculation in this group of stocks and profess absolute indifference as to the result."

Secretary Searles of the American Sugar company says that the Jersey City fire last night burned the company's cooperage which manufactured barrels for the Jersey refinery. A large stock of barrels is carried at the Brooklyn cooperage. This will be drawn upon until the burned establishment is rebuilt. The company will not be embarrassed in any way by the fire. The loss is covered by insurance.

A despatch from Boston says President Parsons of the New York and New England is there to-day. He says that he has not resigned and is as much in the dark as ever about the plans of the Reading people and the actual control of the road. He says that all he knows is what he has seen in the papers. He knows of no midnight meeting and he sees no reason at present why he should resign. There will be no meeting of the New York and New England directors in either New York or Boston to-day.

A special from the Boston News bureau says: "The Chicago Burlington and Quincy Railroad company has made a contract with the Adams Express company by which the latter will occupy all the lines in the system on and after January 1. The Burlington lines have been occupied heretofore by the American Express company east of the Missouri river, and by Wells, Fargo & Co. west of the Missouri river. Both of these companies also do the express of parallel and competing lines, and the directors of the Burlington company, believing it to be for its interest to have its lines occupied by an express company without conflicting or competing interests, have entered into an arrangement with the Adams company, which is now on only one line in any way competing with the Burlington, namely, between Chicago and St. Paul, where it is understood the Burlington has never had any considerable share of the express traffic. It looks as if the plan which the Burlington company has had in contemplation of running its own express, as is now done by the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and some other large roads, had been abandoned, at all events for the present."

Advices from Concord, N. H., say: "Interviews obtained with several of the directors of the Concord and Montreal railroad prove that there is no foundation whatever for the report that the Concord and Montreal has entered into an alliance with the Old Colony. The report probably arose from the fact that very close business relations exist between these two corporations." General Manager Kendrick of the Old Colony says: "I never heard of it, and if such a thing had been contemplated it would pretty certainly have come to my knowledge. There is not a word of truth in it, and President Choate or any other officer of this road would tell you the same thing."

There was a panic in Whisky stock yesterday at Cincinnati, and it all occurred in half an hour's time. Traders started it down after it had advanced to 68¼ in the early market, and on the way down it caught a lot of stop orders, accelerating the decline. Then outsiders became panic stricken and in their rush to get from under came near bringing about the very crash that they feared. Their sales forced it lower. At 65⅜ the clique of brokers began to buy, and they continued to buy until the decline was not only checked, but the stock started upward again and continued upward without a break until nearly two points of the loss were recovered. The panic ceased.

At the Atchison annual meeting at Topeka yesterday, Robert Harris of New York, formerly president of the Northern Pacific; George R. Peck, the general solicitor of the company, and George A. Nickerson of Boston, a nephew of Thomas Nickerson, were chosen directors in place of Edwin H. Abbot, Oliver W. Peabody and Warren Sawyer, all of Boston. The former officers were re-elected by the board.

The securities which were distinctly the features yesterday in Boston were the Central Massachusetts stocks, the common rising two points to 19¾, closing offered at 18, and the preferred rose 5 per cent. to 48, closing at 46¼. It is believed that some benefit will be derived by this road from the alliance of the Reading and Boston and Maine, for it is proposed to use the Central Massachusetts as a connecting link between Boston and the New England at Springfield and thence to the Poughkeepsie bridge over the New England. This plan will necessitate the building of about seventeen miles of road.

The United States sub treasury shipped yesterday $225,000 to New Orleans, $23,000 to other Southern points in notes of small denominations. Total, $248,000.

THE PRODUCE MARKET.

Grains and Provisions at New York and Chicago.

The wheat market opened with a fair amount of dealings. The price, however, was not strong. Such fluctuations as occurred exposed a lower tendency. Later this cereal became weak. In the early trade the decline amounted to ⅝a¾ cents.

At the opening in Chicago Armour sold 500 January pork at 35, and he continued to sell in the early trade. There was some buying of wheat by a large operator, but liberal offerings brought about a decline.

Receipts show that old corn is running out. Farmers generally find the yield of new corn disappointing and the bulls on corn are taking advantage of the falling off in receipts, but it is claimed that this is due mainly to the inability of the roads to handle the stuff. It is asserted that there are 20,000 loaded cars in and around Chicago and the inspectors have inspected for miles down some of the lines. The Wabash elevator was so full yesterday as to be compelled to refuse grain.

Spot wheat was fairly active here for export. The posting of 216,000 bushels in the New York Central elevators as out of condition had a depressing effect upon cash stuff, as this grain will have to be removed immediately. Millers bought freely at the decline. Sales to arrive, 371,000 bushels, of which 282,000 went to shippers. Spot corn was moderately active for export, while the trade demand was light. Sales to arrive, 170,000 bushels, of which 132,000 went to shippers. Steamer freight less active. Engagements, 126,000 bushels.

Hogs at Chicago 26,000, at Kansas City 10,000 and at Omaha 6,000.

Private Liverpool cables say that sellers of wheat seem disposed to meet buyers views.'

Minneapolis gets 604 cars of wheat.

Boston clears 20,463 barrels flour.

Winter wheat receipts, 261,721 bushels against 244,473 at the same time last year. Shipments, 105,280.

Car lots of Chicago—Wheat, 386, of which 27 were No. 2; corn, 392, of which 266 were No. 2; oats, 150, of which 11 were No. 2.

Schwartz, Dupee & Co. say that this year's crop of wheat will pan out 550,000,000 bushels, with enough of old wheat left over to make it equal to 575,000,000.

Car lots expected at Chicago to-morrow: Wheat, 370; corn, 430, and oats, 190.

New York clearings, 8,293 bushels wheat, 16,411 corn, 80 oats and 17,366 barrels flour.

The Chicago and all Western markets closed at noon (Chicago time) to-day in consequence of the funeral of Mrs. Harrison.

The Pennsylvania elevators in this city have only 75,000 bushels of wheat in store and they have a capacity of 1,500,000. The New York Central and West Shore have been cutting storage rates, which has filled up their storage rooms, and they have been endeavoring to arrange with the Pennsylvania to take the wheat on storage.

Clapp & Co.'s world's crop letter says: "Primary receipts to October 31 will be 140,000,000 bushels, against 117,000,000 last year and 47,000,000 in 1890, and an average of 64,000,000 for the past seven years; that primary receipts never fall off enough to prevent the visible increasing weekly until December 19 or later; that the movement from first hands must soon cease from necessity. Ocean freights have doubled the past month. Lake charters are few, because the East lacks storage room; farmers and their friends hold the key to prices; Europe wants our wheat, and is taking it as fast as ships can move it. They have 20,000,000 less in the visible and prices are 30 per cent. lower than last year, and lower in Liverpool and New York than ever; also that 100 pounds of good flour costs but $1.60. Our exports of rye have been 10,000,000 less than last year and the crop but 1,000,000 less. Indian shipments have been but two-thirds as much as last year, and Russia is out of the race, making large exports and depressing the prices. The circular says that the oat crop will not weigh out within 100,000,000 as much as reported, and that the cotton crop will be about 7,300,000 bales, as against 9,018,000 last year."

London—Cargoes off coast: Wheat very quiet; corn nothing offering. On passage and for shipment: Wheat and corn easier. Mark Lane: English and foreign wheat a turn easier; American and Danubian corn steady. French country markets unchanged. Liverpool—Wheat at opening quiet, but steady; corn upward tendency. Weather in United Kingdom unchanged.

Roads at Chicago have agreed to keep freight houses open one hour longer than usual for the next two weeks, on account of a large quantity of accumulated freight.

CHICAGO, Ill., October 28—Rumors were numerous to-day of somebody in the grain trade being in trouble. The reports, it was said, emanated from the settling room. Wheat started easier on the talk of large accumulations on the railroad tracks. Pardridge was a buyer of May wheat, which was less weak than December. The latter opened ¼c. lower at 72¾c., touched 72⅝c., and fell to 71⅝c. afterward, reacting a trifle. May declined ¾ to 77⅛c., and reacted to 77⅜c.

In corn November and December were very weak, dropping from 3 cents discount to 5¼ cents. Logan took a good deal of December and, contrary to expectations, did not sell any November. May opened ⅛a¼ lower, at 45¾ cents, touched 45⅞ cents, declined to 45⅜ cents and reacted to 45⅜a45½ cents.

Armour sold January pork. There was hardly any other feature in provisions. January pork opened 7½ cents lower at $13.33, reacted to $13.40 and declined to $13.10.

Vessel rates are nominally unchanged.

The Chicago special to L. G. Quinlan & Co. says: Wheat—Not a particle of comfort is in sight for owners of wheat. The market has been weak since the opening. Holders have unloaded freely and the losses made to-day have been large. Lower prices are predicted. Cables were lower. State reports all point to a crop larger than previously expected. Clearances are light. The visible supply is growing rapidly, in fact it is a day of general liquidation. The only feature opposed to all these influences is, for the moment the low price.

Corn opened easy in symphthy with wheat. It all depends on receipts. Should they keep up we will see some lower prices yet. Cash trade nothing doing.

Oats were dull and easier. The carrying charges that are being paid is in no sense a bullish feature.

Provisions—The market opened easier and has ruled weak most of the day. The principal feature in the trade has been Armour & Co., Wright, Cudahy, who early sold 5,000 January pork and have sold more since the opening. There is no doubt that there is a very heavy long interest in provisions held by the Wright-Cudahy combination, and they will take every opportunity to lift the market and to try and market their stuff.

A Huron, S. D., dispatch says: "Another wheat blockade and car famine exists in South Dakota. The railroads operating in the state are sorely pressed for cars and unable to supply more than one-tenth of the number desired. All warehouses and elevators are full and some buyers have suspended business because no storage capacity or shipping facilities can be secured. On the Dakota Central division of the Chicago and Northwestern the daily receipts average over one hundred thousand bushels. Other roads report correspondingly heavy receipts."

The New York Central railroad sent notice to the Produce exchange yesterday that it has 216,000 bushels of wheat standing in its cars for which there is no room in the elevators. The owners of the wheat are notified that unless they took care of it and released the cars promptly the wheat would be put afloat, which means that it would be transferred by the company on floats on the river. This will mean an expense to the owners of a quarter to half a cent a bushel a day. If the wheat is not put afloat the owners must put it in storage at a cost of three-quarters of a cent a bushel, beside the cost of keeping it. On the strength of this notice wheat droped ¾. It has dropped 8¾ cents in the last two months, from 86 to 77⅛. The trouble is the glut of wheat in the West and very light export business.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Great Prosperity in the Fall River Spinning Industry.

Cotton contracts opened steady at 4 points advance and gained 5a6 points on bad crop reports, with frost, and with higher Liverpool. Trading was moderate and the port receipts were estimated for the day at 46,000 bales. Prices at noon were 5a6 points above yesterday.

New York Cotton exchange—First round: November, 7.86c.; December, 8.07c.; January, 8.20c.; February, 8.32c.; March, 8.43c.; April, 8.54c.; May, 8.64c.; June, 8.74c.; July, 8.82c.; August, 8.94c. Sales, 88,200. Market firm.

Hubbard, Price & Co. say: "Liverpool opens this morning with a steady tone, but with a comparatively small volume of business. Futures are steady, and in response to the somewhat better feeling here at yesterday's close, and evidently giving a little more credence to reports of damage by frost, are 2-64 higher."

A dispatch from Fall River, Mass., says: "A year has made a great change in the condition and prospects of the cotton trade as shown by the quarterly returns from local mills given out to-day. It was expected that a reduction in wages of 10 per cent. would be made on October 5, 1891. To-day the reports show the most extraordinary mill earnings over published, despite the fact that the mills have been running 58 hours per week instead of 60, and paying an advance of 3 1-3 per cent. in wages. Twenty-eight corporations operating 49 mills capitalized at $15,778,000, have paid out in dividends $398,180, or a little more than 2.35 per cent. In the corresponding quarter of last year twenty-four corporations operating forty-one mills, paid an average of only 1.72 per cent. and there are yet some prosperous corporations to pay this quarter. These dividends represent only the comparative prosperity of the mills, as much of the earnings are being turned into a depreciation or a surplus fund. Nearly all of the mills have expended considerable sums in improvements and few of them have burdensome debts.

COFFEE AND SUGAR.

A Decline in the Former Due to Lower Prices at Havre.

The market for coffee contracts was weaker at the opening with no bids on October, which was offered at 15.00c. The other months were offered 10 to 20 points down. There were sales of 7,000 bags on the call. Havre was the main influence, prices there declining 1a1½ franc. Hamburg was quiet at ½ pfennig advance.

Receipts at Brazil ports were 24,000 bags. Exchange's quoted 14⅛d. Prices at noon were: October, 15.80c.; November, 15.50c.; December, 15.20c.; January, 15.05c.; February, 14.90c.; March, 14.90c.; April, 14.80c.; May, 14.75c. Rio, quiet, firm; No. 7, on the spot 16⅛c.

Cables from London quote: Sugar, 15s 6d per cwt for Cuba centrifugal polarizing 96 degrees test and 13s 9d for Cuba Muscovado fair refining.

Willett & Gray, in their weekly circular, say: "Raws and refined unchanged except small transaction in Muscovados at 1-16c. decline. Receipts, 35,997 tons. Meltings, 28,000 tons. Total stock in four ports, 117,427 tons, against 109,520 tons last week and 70,180 tons at same time last year.

"One, or virtually two, holidays, followed by the speculative advance in raw sugars in Europe, caused buyers to abandon all expectations of a further decline in refined sugars, and orders came in pretty freely, making it a little difficult to give prompt deliveries with the smaller meltings of the week. As no sufficient cause for an advance in raws appeared upon this side, and in fact no advance occurred, the prices for refined were kept unchanged and all orders taken. At the close there is a fair demand for the necessary requirements of the season, but no more."

Refined sugars were quiet and steady.

IN THE HOME CHURCH.

Last Rites Paid to the Late Wife of the President.

Old Friends and Neighbors Gather to Do Honor to Her Memory in the Sacred Edifice Where She Had Worshiped for Years—Simple and Impressive Services.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., October 28—The early morning resembled that of Sunday. There was an almost complete cessation of business and the quiet of the hours succeeding daybreak was unbroken by the tramp of the laborers on their way to work. The evidence of sorrow in the form of mourning drapings had been considerably added to during the night and the route selected for the passing of the cortege might be said to be fringed without a break, save for the intersections of the streets, with somber black and spotless white, a mute expression of the sorrow of the community at the close of the pure and lovable life of one of its sisters.

People began to gather in the neighborhood of the depot soon after 8 o'clock, but it was not until an hour later that they appeared in any number and even then the crowd was not a large one. Most of those composing it, men and women alike, wore either black or dark apparel. Some of the men had encircled their arm with a band of crape. The police had been instructed to refuse admission to the depot to all who had no actual business within, but there was little occasion for the exercise of their authority, for the crowd was impressed with the solemnity of the occasion and made no effort to get within.

Ex-President Hayes was one of the first of the visitors of note that arrived yesterday to reach the depot, and he was soon after followed by General Schofield and wife, Secretary Foster and Mrs. Foster, Charles L. and Mrs. Saunders of Omaha, brother and mother of Russell Harrison's wife; Thomas Scott Harrison of Kansas City, brother of the President, and Captain William Meredith of the bureau of engraving and printing. These either took seats in the depot or paced up and down the platform. A little later a delegation from Chicago, comprising Mayor Washburne, Commissioner of Works Aldrich, Controller May, Corporation Counsel Miller, Aldermen Bidwell, Mann and Martin and City Clerk Van Cleve, reached the depot and were passed inside. For the next twenty minutes or so the arrivals of those intending to be a part of the funeral procession were numerous and the waiting room was well filled. Outside in the roadway was a line of carriages four abreast and extending for a couple of blocks. The waiting throng had also increased and it lined the sidewalk on Illinois street as far as the eye could reach.

At 9:40 the shrill whistle of a locomotive, followed by commotion on the part of the employes of the depot, gave evidence that the funeral train was in the yards, and a couple of moments later it rolled in and came to a full stop immediately in front of the main gate dividing the depot proper from the tracks. Vice President Morton was the first to alight, and he was closely followed by Postmaster General Wanamaker and Attorney General and Mrs. Miller. Behind the latter came the President, with Mrs. McKee leaning on his arm. He had a careworn and grief stricken appearance, and his features seemed to be so pinched and wan that there were many ejaculations of surprise and regret from those of his old neighbors that were in waiting.

After the President, Russell B. Harrison and his wife, Dr. Scott and Mrs. Dimmick alighted, while in the meantime the remainder of the funeral party had gotten off at the further end of the cars. The President shook hands with his brother and Mr. and Mrs. Saunders in a kind of mechanical way. By this time the casket had been taken from the observation car, and after the friends who had been admitted to the depot had formed in double line it was borne to the hearse. The pall bearers were Dr. H. R. Allen, John B. Elam, H. Hanna, E. B. Martindale, General Lew Wallace, Colonel M. G. McLane, John R. Elder, Theodore F. Haughey, Judge William A. Woods, W. P. Fishback and Thomas S. Sharpe. The President and his daughter walked immediately behind the casket, with the members of the family following and the members of the cabinet next and the remainder of the party in the rear.

After the casket had been placed in the hearse—everyone in sight meanwhile standing with bare heads—some little time was occupied in assigning the mourners to the carriages and it was nearly an hour before the cortege moved. A detail of thirty police officers led the way and was followed by carriages containing the officiating divines, Rev. Dr. Haines and Rev. Dr. Hyde. The carriages containing the pall bearers preceded the hearse. Then came the President's carriage and those of members of the family and the members of the cabinet and their wives. Governor Chase and the state officials, the supreme and appellate court judges, the ladies' board of managers of the orphans' home, the delegation from Chicago, Mayor Sullivan of this city and city officials and friends of the family. It was a long line of vehicles, for the head of the cortege had traversed nearly half of the long route to the church, when the last of the procession was leaving the depot. The route was north on Illinois street to Ohio, thence east to Pennsylvania. Men and women packed the sidewalk for the entire distance from the depot to the church in an almost unbroken mass, and as the hearse came into view the men, as though moved by one common impulse, removed their hats and stood bareheaded until the President's carriage had passed by. From Ohio street to the church the roadway was lined with the members of the various local posts of the Grand Army, standing in open order and uncovered. About five thousand of the veterans thus evidenced their sympathy for their comrade in his affliction.

The services at the church commenced immediately upon the seating of the congregation. The interior of the sacred edifice had been elaborately draped and there was a profusion of flowers and plants. On either side of the pulpit were magnificent pyramids of white chrysanthemums, surrounded by majestic palms. Baskets of cut flowers depended from the side lights around the interior. The organ was entirely covered, from the cornice to the top, in front and on the sides, with plaited radiating streams of black and white. At either end of the gallery was an American flag, the stars being covered with crape set with white stars. Heavy folds and draping ran the entire length of the edifice on either side above the windows of stained glass. Smilax in profusion was stretched between the panels of walls, while the base of the organ and of the pulpit were banked with towering palms and rare exotics. Beautiful indeed had the sanctuary been made by loving and skillful hands for the last sad services for the much loved member.

Long before the arrival of the funeral train a concourse of men and women had assembled about the First Presbyterian church in anticipation of being enabled to secure admittance. But the capacity of the edifice was limited, and hence it was found necessary to discriminate in favor of old local friends and neighbors of the bereaved family. These were admitted as fast as they arrived by the northern entrance and shown to the pews in the center and rear of the edifice. The seats immediately in front of the pulpit and extending clear across the edifice were reserved for the relatives and those accompanying the cortege from the depot. In the northern aisle seats had been reserved for fifty members of the Seventieth (General Harrison's regiment) and the veterans filed in with bowed heads and slow and steady tread. The throng on the avenue decorously fell back as the head of the cortege approached, heads were bared and tongues were stilled. Gently the casket, with its wealth of floral tributes, was lifted from the hearse by Judge Woods, General Wallace and Messrs. Elam, Allen, Haughey and Martindale, and borne through the canopied doors of the southern entrance. Here it was met by the officiating divines and the procession moved slowly down the main aisle, while the muffled tones of the organ reverberated through the edifice in a mournful dirge. The casket was placed immediately in front of the pulpit and surrounded with palms and plants, while a vase filled with white chrysanthemums towering above the surrounding foliage was placed at the head. Meanwhile Dr. Haines was repeating or rather intoning, so mournful was the cadence, the passage of some scripture. The congregation remained standing while the mourners were being seated. The pew reserved for the bereaved husband, Mr. and Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Dimick and Russell and Mrs. McKee was directly in front of the family pew. By the time that the funeral party had been finally seated the edifice was crowded to overflowing, the doors were closed and the simple but touching service was inaugurated with the singing of Mrs. Harrison's beautiful favorite, "Lead, Kindly Light," by a quartet composed of Mr. and Mrs. S. Morrison, Mrs. W. C. Lynn and Frank Ketcham. As the voices of the singers died away Dr. Haines stepped to the front of the platform and with uplifted hands pronounced the invocation. The congregation joined fervently in the closing "Amen" and the pastor continued the service by reading a number of brief selections from the New Testament having reference to immortality and the reward of the righteous. The closing passage of the last selection was from Revelations vii. This was taken as an appropriate subject for his discourse.

A stillness as of death pervaded the sacred edifice while the minister dwelt upon the beauties and happiness of a Christian life, but when in low and trembling tones he eulogized and touchingly spoke directly of her who had passed away and recounted her manifold virtues many of his hearers were moved to tears and sounds of subdued sobbing pervaded the church. The president sat with head bowed upon his breast, but his careworn and pallid face told the storm of grief that was raging within and several times the twitching of the muscles indicated how difficult was his effort to retain his composure in the sad and solemn surroundings. There was a momentary pause after the pastor had concluded his discourse and his place was then taken by Rev. Dr. N. A. Hyde of the Congregationalist denomination who addressed the throne of Grace.

Once again the voices of the singers broke the silence. By the President's especial desire another favorite selection of the deceased "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" had been chosen with which to close the service; softly from amid the shrubbery came the melodious strains.

The singers retired, the benediction was pronounced by Dr. Hyde and the service was at an end.

Little time was occupied in reforming the procession. When the last of the funeral party had been escorted to their carriages the cortege moved slowly to Crown hill cemetery. With but few exceptions all of the private residences along the boulevard displayed emblems of mourning. The cemetery was reached shortly before 1 o'clock. Once again, and for the last time the casket was lifted from the hearse. The mourners gathered around the grave, and the spectators, of whom there were less than a thousand, massed themselves in the rear. A passage of scripture was read by Dr. Hyde, a final prayer and benediction pronounced by Pastor Haines, and all that is mortal of Caroline Scott Harrison was lowered to its resting place. For a moment the executive of the nation looked down into the open grave where he was about to leave the dearest treasure of his life. Then with moist eyes and bowed head he slowly turned away.

PARIS, October 28—A meeting of the Americans residing in this city was held to-day to take action upon the death of Mrs. Harrison. The meeting was held at the American legation and was presided over by T. Jefferson Coolidge, the American minister. Mr. King, the American consul general, made a motion that the members of the American colony, irrespective of party, request Minister Coolidge to convey to President Harrison their sincere sympathy with him in the great loss he has sustained. The motion was adopted unanimously.

ACTORS AT THE PRESS CLUB.

Plenty of Fun at an Informal Entertainment.

After the show last night several members of the Bostonian Opera company, now playing at the Columbia, and part of "The Two Sisters" troupe, from the Grand Opera house, assembled in the rooms of the Brooklyn Press club, on State street, near Court. The club rooms were well filled by 11 o'clock, and a general jolly good time was had by everybody during the ensuing couple of hours. The affair was perfectly informal. It is safe to say that the guests in this instance were the entertainers and the hosts the entertained. The visitors were made to feel entirely at home by the Brooklyn boys, and unless they dissembled and are as good actors at short range as they are at long, they enjoyed the evening fully as much as the clubmen. William B. Green was master of ceremonies. The Bostonians present included the jovial armorer with the musical bass, Eugene Combs, Friar George B. Frothingham, Harry Hall, John Walsh, Harry Dale and F. P. Emerson. Those from "The Two Sisters" company were George W. Ryer, the author of the piece; John Barker, Reno Thomas, James B. Martin, John P. Brann, Ramon Shaw and Eddie Fox.

THE RECEIVER MUST REFUSE FIRST.

Another Chapter in the Ridgewood Ice Company Litigation.

The almost endless litigation over the affairs of the Ridgewood Ice company came up again this morning in the supreme court, when Henry Daily, jr., asked Justice Bartlett for an order allowing George V. Brower, as referee, to sell the company's property. The application was opposed by J. R. Cody, representing creditors to the amount of $70,000. Counsel said that there were two mortgages on the property, one by the Brooklyn Trust company for $100,000 and the other by W. A. Husted for $126,000. The mortgages had been declared void, but one for $167,000, held by James R. Downer as trustee for creditors, had been adjudged valid. Creditors claim that to sell the property would endanger their claims under the existing state of affairs. Counsel maintained that the receiver did not join in the petition before the court.

Judge Bartlett, after some further argument on this point, said the application could not be made by anyone unless the receiver had first refused to do so himself. Then counsel for other creditors asked the court to direct payment of their claims. His honor then told counsel to apply to the attorney general and set the trial in the Husted suit down for November 19. Motion before the court was adjourned pending the outcome of that trial.

AN UNAPPRECIATIVE PEOPLE.

President Lewis Thinks Flatbush Does Not Understand the Situation.

President Lewis of the Brooklyn City Railroad company said this morning, regarding the refusal of the town of Flatbush to grant a franchise for the establishment of a trolley road through the town: "We have simply withdrawn our application and the executive committee of the company has not yet taken any further action in the matter. There seems to be a misunderstanding, but I hope it will eventually be settled. The people of Flatbush do not seem to appreciate that this company is willing to give them three roads through their town. There is no other company which will give them the facilities that the Brooklyn City company offers and I doubt if they can carry out the threat to find a road which will extend its lines through Flatbush and establish a regular five cent fare."

THE NEW EAST RIVER BRIDGES.

Mayor Boody's Opinion Wanted About the Height of the Structures.

Mayor Boody received this morning, a communication from the United States Board of Engineers asking for his views on the bridges proposed to be built over the East river. Applications for permits for their construction have been made to the secretary of war, and they were by him referred to the engineer department for an opinion. In their investigations, the board of engineers received communications from the shipping interests that the bridges should be at a higher elevation than that contemplated and it was on that point that they wanted the mayor's opinion. Mayor Boody said he saw no reason why the new bridges should be higher than the present bridge, but he informed the board that Corporation Counsel Jenks would appear before them to-morrow at the armory building in Whitehall street, to express his views on the subject in detail.

MR. RHEAD CAME FROM YONKERS.

And He is Charged With Attempting to Swindle People.

Andie Rhead, a boss carpenter who recently came from Yonkers, was arrested last night at his residence, 1,501 Myrtle avenue, charged with having swindled two saloonkeepers out of $65 by means of worthless checks on the First National bank of Yonkers. Rhead secured $35 from Peter Mehling of 290 Knickerbocker avenue and $30 from John Vornlocker of 1,446 Myrtle avenue, each of whom swore to complaints against him in Justice Walsh's court. The checks were drawn by Edward Thompson, a relative of Rhead to the order of the accused, but Thompson admits that he had no money in the bank at the time and simply drew the checks because Rhead asked him to do so. Rhead intimates that Thompson owed him money and the checks were given in payment. The accused pleaded not guilty in Justice Walsh's court and was remanded for hearing on the 3d prox.

A RUMOR ABOUT SETH LOW.

There was a rumor about the city hall to-day that the anti snappers, who have been dormant of late, had captured Seth Low, and that the ex-mayor and president of Columbia college was coming over to this city to be the principal speaker at a mass meeting to be held next week. When Edward M. Shepard, one of the pillars of the anti snappers, was spoken to on the subject he said it was news to him, and none of the other lights of the organization professed to know anything about it. No one knows where the rumor originated.

SENATOR HILL'S RETURN.

Well Pleased With His Trip to Lynchburg, Va.

May Make One or Two More Speeches in New York State—He Will Be in Washington for the Winter Early in December—Tanner Denies the Minneapolis Story—Not Many Clerks Going Home to Vote.

[Special to the Eagle.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 28—Senator David B. Hill arrived in Washington this morning from Lynchburg, Va., much delighted with his Southern trip and the magnificent reception accorded him there. The senator finds some fault with the manner in which the Associated Press handled his speech. To the correspondent of the EAGLE this morning, who found him in his room at the Arlington hotel reading the morning papers, the senator said with a somewhat tired expression: "I find that it is invariably the case that when any part of my public speeches are left out in the press reports, the most important portions are always sacrificed. This, of course, may be an accident, but it is nevertheless the fact. No one but the speaker himself knows the political importance of an exact report of what he says or how fatal to his intent may be the omission of an apparently unimportant sentence."

Senator Hill will not speak in Brooklyn or New York again during the present campaign. He has come to a final conclusion in this regard and believes that any short addresses that he might deliver would not signify much. In his long speeches he has already said what he thinks. This decision of the senator's will probably be a disappointment to a number of his friends in New York city belonging to the Business Men's association, as the members of that organization have been particularly desirous to get him to address them. However, with his usual fidelity to his friends, the senator has promised to make one or two speeches in New York state in districts where reside men who have for years faithfully followed his political leadership.

Senator Hill expects to return to Washington early in December, and he has made his arrangements to remain here almost continually during the session of congress. He has decided to become more a part and parcel of Washington life than he was last year.

Although suffering from a severe cold and fatigued after his journey and long speech Senator Hill is looking remarkably well. He left for New York on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at noon.

Corporal James Tanner was shown this morning by the EAGLE correspondent a dispatch from Minneapolis in which it was stated that he had written to Albert Schaeffer, president of the Commercial bank of St. Paul, stating that the Republican national committee had given up New York and Indiana and was bending its energies to keeping the Northwest in line and to turning Connecticut and West Virginia to the Republican column. The ex-commissioner had not seen the dispatch before and was very hot without it. He said that it was a pure fabrication, and that he had never written to Mr. Schaeffer anything of the sort.

Senator Hill, before leaving Washington, informed the EAGLE correspondent that the alleged remarks of his published in the Philadelphia Inquirer and copied in the New York Herald, in which he is made to attack Wayne MacVeagh, were never uttered by him. "The interview," he said, "was a bogus one. I have seen no newspaper men while in Washington this time, except a representative of the Post of this city, to whom I said I did not care to talk politics, and the correspondent of the EAGLE."

There appears to be, up to the present time, but little evidence about the departments of an approaching election. The forces in the pay of the government, aggregating an army that will compare very favorably with the standing army of the United States, seem to be under the command of General Apathy, and are maintaining a condition of masterly inactivity. However, it may be that the time is still early, and those who want to vote may yet take advantage of the reduced rates and display their party fealty. Inquiry at the several departments yesterday developed the fact that an unusually small number of clerks have, so far at least, applied for leaves of absence. It is the custom when election times come around to grant clerks sufficient time to reach their homes. Many of them arrange their annual leave of thirty days so as to take in the election period, but such as do not do this are granted a furlough without pay, which enables them to go home and cast their ballot. A head of a bureau said yesterday: "We ask no questions, but take it for granted a man wants to leave for voting purposes and he always gets it. The right of casting a vote belongs to him; it is his duty as a citizen, and all the departments arrange their matters so that no obstacle will be put in his path."

The treasury department, which is the greatest political department of the government, shows the general laxity that seems to prevail. Here are thousands of men from all parts of the country employed in the various bureaus, and yet of all that great number, but 281 have, since October 1, applied for leaves of absence, and the man in charge of the books thinks if 400 apply they will be a very large percentage. There are less than three hundred and fifty clerks in the navy department and it is thought that less than fifty will go home, while in the state department, where the total number of clerks employed is far below two hundred, the proportion of those leaving will be less even than in the navy department.

THEIR AIMS ARE ALIKE,

And so the Art Association and the Institute Will Consolidate.

Negotiations are being carried on between the board of directors of the Brooklyn Institute and the stockholders in the Brooklyn Art association aiming at consolidation. Some time next week all the papers will probably be signed, and then a much talked of project will have been consummated. The EAGLE last winter, when the People's Trust company bought the Art association stock left by Gordon L. Ford, announced the plan to eventually consolidate the two interests. At that time ninety-one shares were secured. Since then friends of the association have offered to exchange their stock for a life membership in the institute, and at present 170 shares, out of a total of 275 shares, have been offered to the institute. There is no doubt that nearly all of the remainder will be transferred on the same terms. There are, however, a few of the stockholders who do not seem to be just willing to join hands in the movement. A reporter this morning called upon Professor Franklin W. Hooper in the office of the institute and questioned him regarding the proposed consolidation. He said in reply:

"Three years ago this coming January, when the citizens' movement was inaugurated by the old Brooklyn Institute in Washington street, for the purpose of establishing museums of art and science for the city of Brooklyn, there was appointed by that meeting a committee of citizens who were charged with the duty of looking over the ground and making a report on the possibility or feasibility of attempting to establish museums of art and science in Brooklyn. That committee reported in February, 1889, a plan of action which, if followed, it was hoped would result in the establishment of such museums, and the plan submitted by the committee was adopted by a second meeting of citizens who were interested specially in the museum movement. At this second meeting a special committee was appointed to confer with the trustees of the Brooklyn Art association and the boards of directors of several other organizations interested in art or science for the purpose of securing their cooperation in the establishment of a museum, or at least an approval, on the part of the several art organizations, of the plans proposed. This committee, with the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Hall as chairman, laid the museum plans before a meeting of the trustees of the Brooklyn Art association, in March of that year. The trustees listened with interest to the plans as outlined by Dr. Hall and a special committee of the board was appointed, to report at a future meeting what action, if any, the Art association might take. Subsequently some opposition to cooperation on the part of the Art association in the museum plans was expressed, and it was thought best on the part of all in the Art association that no attempt should be made at that time to aid in the museum movement. When this matter was decided the citizens' committee advised the directors of the Brooklyn institute, that in its judgment it would be best for the Brooklyn institute alone to become the basis of the museum movement, and so modify its charter as to enable it to assume the responsibility for the establishment of the museums. The subsequent history of the museum movement is fully known by the public. The legislature authorized the reserve of a portion of the east side lands, bounded by the Eastern parkway and Washington avenue and Flatbush avenue, for sites for the museum building. The legislature of the state incorporated the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences with ample power to establish the museums and to conduct them in the interests of the public. The old Brooklyn institute was authorized also by act of legislation to transfer its property to the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences. The mayor and park commissioner have designated sites for the museum buildings on the east side lands. Provision has been made for the erection of the first section of a museum building, and an endowment fund of $200,000 and upward has been brought together to support the institute in its conduct of the museums and the other work delegated to it by its charter. The work of the institute is that of instruction in the arts and sciences, through collections of art and science; through its library of reference, and its courses of lectures. The museums are to be on Prospect hill, on the most advantageous site in the city. The courses of lectures require a building near the great thoroughfares of travel in the city, and easy of access to people from every section of it. The board of trustees have for some time been considering the desirability of securing a suitable building for lectures and meetings of the deparments, and it is only a question of time when such a building will be a part of the property of the institute. Last winter, a considerable portion of the stock of the Brooklyn Art association was on the market, and for sale, and at that time an arrangement was made by the officers and committee of ways and means of the institute which it was hoped would lead to the purchase of this marketable stock by the institute. It was evident to those interested in the Art association that so long as any considerable portion of the shares of stock of that association were on the market and for sale they would constitute a temptation to speculators to purchase them for speculative purposes, and that there was danger that a large block of the stock would fall into the hands of people who are not interested in promoting the interests of art and in insuring that the Art association should be conducted in the interests of its stockholders and the general public. A large number of the stockholders of the Art association, shared the same feeling, and these stockholders have assured the officers of the Brooklyn institute that they will transfer their stock to the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, on condition that the institute shall purchase the block of stock referred to. These stockholders of the Art association have offered to transfer their stock to the Brooklyn institute in exchange for life memberships in the institute, and already about seventy shares have been pledged. These, together with others that have been promised to the institute, though not yet surrendered, together with the ninety-one shares which have been held by the People's Trust company since last spring, in the interests of the friends of the art Association who are also the friends of the Brooklyn institute, make the total number of shares of stock offered to the institute about 170, out of the total of 275 shares. The majority of the directors of the Brooklyn Art association and the largest individual holders of stock are among those whose stock is offered to the institute, and who have urged the institute to purchase the shares of stock that have been for sale and temporarily in the hands of the People's Trust company. Inasmuch as the institute will henceforth be the owner of a majority of the stock of the Art association, the continuance of the property of the art association for the promotion of art in the city of Brooklyn is assured. The purposes of the incorporation of the Brooklyn Art association are included within the purposes for which the Brookly Institute of Arts and Sciences was established. The Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences will, accordingly, so far as its views may be expressed in the selection of trustees of the Art association, and in the direction of the affairs of that association, be in the interest of the public in the broadest sense of the word. Indeed, the men who are officers and directors in the Brooklyn Art association are the very men who are officers, stockholders or members of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences. They constitute public spirited citizens of Brooklyn, who have been active in promoting the interests of each and all of our great public educational institutions, like the Brooklyn library, the Long Island Historical society, the Brooklyn Art association, the Brooklyn institute, the Polytechnic institute, the Packer Collegiate institute, the Long Island College hospital and so on. It is predicted by some that the time will come when all the stockholders in the Art association will transfer their stock to the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, in exchange for life memberships in the same, and in that case, at some distant day, it is possible that the two institutions may become one in fact, as they are now one in purpose and in membership. The Art association, as a corporation, will continue its courses of lectures, its Brooklyn Art school, its semi annual exhibitions and receptions, and will, even more completely than ever before, fulfill the purposes of its incorporation. The public may expect, and will have a right to expect, that the association will be conducted in the interests of the public more than ever before. The property of the association, whose real estate is valued at $150,000, is exempt from taxation and, accordingly, it is the bounden duty of the trustees of the Art association to conduct the association in the interests of art. Its exhibitions have always been free and will, of course, continue to be free to every citizen of Brooklyn. The Brooklyn Institute will be able, it is believed, to rent the art gallery of the association, when it is not needed for the purposes of the association, for those courses of lectures on art, architecture, music and painting, which are now given at the Young Men's Christian Association building. The stockholders of the Art association, who have offered their stock to the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, have, therefore, by their simple act, insured the continuance of the Art association as a public educational institution, and to them belongs the credit of securing for all time to come a most valuable property for public educational purposes to the city of Brooklyn. If, in the distant future, the two institutions should become really one, or, in other words, the institute should absorb the Art association, the interests of all will be conserved, for the institute, in accepting the shares of stock, thereby places itself under a definite obligation to administer the property and revenue of the association in accordance with its charter and for the promotion of art."

Among those who have offered their shares of stock to the institute are Mr. J. S. T. Stranahan, A. M. White, Samuel W. Boocock, George M. Olcott, Eugene G. Blackford, Henry K. Sheldon, Edwin Beers, Henry D. Polhemus, E. H. R. Lyman, William Cary Sanger, William H. Male, John W. Frothingham, H. W. Wheeler, Mrs. J. S. T. Stranahan, S. V. White, S. H. Herriman, Carll H. De Silver, Henry W. Maxwell, Spencer Trask, John W. Mason, Michael Snow, Henry T. Cox, Lyman S. Burnham, Judah B. Voorhees, Frank Squier, Mary S. Croxson, Lillian Sanger, Franklin W. Hooper, William Potts, Camden C. Dike, Josiah O. Low and John S. James.

The directors of the People's Trust company, who hold stock in the Art association on behalf of the company, which is offered to the institute, are: Felix Campbell, Eugene G. Blackford, Horace L. Morse, J. G. Dettmer, Robert J. Kimball.

The trustees of the Brooklyn Art association are John S. James, Carll H. DeSilver, Edwin Beers, Henry K. Sheldon, Eugene G. Blackford, Colonel Henry T. Chapman, William Potts, George M. Olcott, Henry W. Maxwell, S. V. White, William H. Male, Samuel W. Boocock, Franklin W. Hooper, Thomas E. Stillman, J. Spencer Turner, Whitman W. Kenyon, Horace L. Morse, Felix Campbell, Robert J. Kimball, Jacob G. Dettmer, Henry D. Polhemus, Alexander E. Orr, Henry Sheldon, Walter T. Hatch.

The officers of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences are General John B. Woodward, president; Rev. Dr. Richard S. Storrs, Mr. James S. T. Stranahan, Edwin Beers, vice presidents; Dr. Robert Foster, secretary; Franklin W. Hooper, director; Eugene G. Blackford, treasurer.

TERRIBLE EXPLOSION NITRO GLYCERINE.

An Ohio Factory Blown Up—Three Persons Killed—Others Missing.

LIMA, O., October 28—At precisely 10 o'clock this morning the nitro glycerine factory two miles south of this city exploded with a terrific report that was heard for twenty miles. Buildings shook and windows were smashed all over the city. Three persons are known to be dead, two probably fatally injured and two teamsters missing.

The farm house of Wm. Hooker, 500 yards from the scene was totally wrecked and a servant girl injured by falling debris. The farm house of Thomas Placer, a half mile above the Hooker homestead was also badly damaged.

A great gaping hole marks the spot where the magazine stood. The cause of the explosion is a mystery, but it is supposed that the glycerine was in some manner set on fire. A $1,000 plate glass front in the Metropolitan bank, fully three miles from the scene, was shattered.

KILLED BY A RUNAWAY CAR.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., October 28—A runaway car on the incline plane at the Phillips Glass works at Mapleton last night, ran into a crowd of passengers at the Pennsylvania railroad station, killing Archie Dill, William Temple and John Barclay instantly. Miss Merva Wilson and Daisy Banks were seriously injured.

DETECTIVES ARE IN LINE

Waiting for a Chance to Rearrest Miss Martin.

The Young Woman Will Be Prosecuted for Larceny by Mrs. Frank Leslie-Wilde, and Helena Kelly Has Also Caused a Warrant to Be Issued on a Charge of Theft—The Prisoner Got an Adjournment in the Butler Street Court To-day.

Mary H. Martin, the young woman who was arrested on Wednesday for passing two bogus checks on Grocer Bernhard Bischoff of 400 Court street, was arraigned before Justice Tighe in the Butler street court to-day and at her request the examination was set down for Monday. "Don't you think you had better go before the grand jury," asked Justice Tighe.

"No;" she replied. "I want an examination here. I have not had time to consult my friends or have I engaged counsel."

"You are only wasting your ammunition here," said Justice Tighe, "but I will give you an examination Monday and you must be prepared to go on then."

The charges against the woman are multiplying. Detective Sergeant Sheridan of Superintendent Byrnes' staff, New York, was in court with a warrant ready to arrest her in case of her possible discharge for the alleged theft of a $250 diamond pin and a check for $30 from Mrs. Frank Leslie Wilde. So was Detective Sergeant Bedell of the Ninth precinct, this city, on hand ready to arrest her on the complaint of Miss Helena Kelly of 440 Kosciusko street, from whom she is alleged to have taken $30 in cash and an indorsed check check for $30 more. Three women with whom Miss Martin had dealings were in court and told Justice Tighe how they had been duped by her. One of them is Miss Barnard of 142 Henry street, with whom she lived up to two months ago. She says Miss Martin owes her $25 for board and borrowed money. Miss Stanley of 91 Clark street also says she had the young woman as a boarder for some time and that there is still a balance due of $23. A woman who declined to give her name said she had been engaged by the young woman to paint three pictures, of her mother, sister and brother and that $40 was still due for the work. The police have been engaged looking up Miss Martin's record and are satisfied that she is an adventuress. It is said that she was convicted for passing a check in New Jersey. The pin which was taken from Mrs. Leslie-Wilde's apartments in the Gerlach in New York was recovered yesterday afternoon from Freel's pawn shop on Grand street, where it had been pledged for $40. Grocer Bischoff is determined to press the complaint. He was in court to-day and told Justice Tighe that he had learned enough about Miss Martin's career to satisfy him that she is not a novice at the business and that the community would be better off without her presence.

An EAGLE reporter saw Miss Martin at the jail but she declined to make a statement other than that she expected some friends who, she hoped, would make a settlement with her creditors. Concerning the charges of the two women who claimed she owed them for board, she said it was true she owed them a small balance, but not as much as they alleged.

SEVEN HUNDRED WIREMEN ON STRIKE.

They Are Unwilling To Work With Non Unionists.

And now the members of the Electrical union are on strike for the first time in their history, and they have chosen the Regent hotel as the place to begin operations in this city. The cause is the employment by the contractors of non union men on some of the work to be done by them. The Electrical union men went out and a conference was held late yesterday afternoon at the Metropolitan hotel, at which there were present Edward S. Keefer, president of the Electrical Contractors' association, and Messrs. A. Noll, J. Strong and P. J. Hall, representing the association. Electrical union No. 5,468 was represented by H. Gourdlay, William Bloomfield, Joshua Nun, Thomas McGonigle, David Ingraham and C. W. Hoadley, with William Irony, walking delegate. After a heated discussion, occupying several hours, the contractors decided unanimously that hereafter they would employ such help as they needed, without considering whether the men were in a union or not. This they gave as an ultimatum, and the union delegates then declared that they would immediately ask that a sympathetic strike be ordered on all buildings where electrical work is being done.

The 700 wiremen who belong to the Electrical Wiremen's union No. 5,468 are to-day out on strike because the electrical manufacturers and contractors have determined to employ only good men whether they belong to the union or not, and to pay the same wages to non union as to union men. Mr. August Noll, who has charge of the wiremen employed by the New York Electrical Equipment company, said this morning: "There are 700 union men in this city. Of this number about 200 are expert workmen, the remainder ranging from good to bad. Then there are about 300 non union men, 250 of whom are experts.

"We contend that we have the right to employ the best men obtainable, and personally I will hire a good non union man as soon as a union man. The wages and hours for both are the same, nine hours' work and the pay from $3 to $4 per day. As a matter of fact there are not enough good men in the union, and we are obliged to hire non union men to do the work we have on hand.

"So far as our trying to break with the union is concerned there is no truth in it. We have no objection to the union, as such, and there is no complaint by the union of either the wages or hours of work. The meeting yesterday between the manufacturers and contractors and Mr. Florence F. Donovan of the board of arbitration was in consequence of a letter from Mr. Donovan, requesting such a meeting. As we had no grievance with the union we declined to meet the men.

"As things now stand, many of the union men are returning to work already with the understanding that we shall hire whom we please. The question now at issue is, Shall we hire whom we please or shall we hire an incompetent union man and refuse work to a good non union man?"

JOSIAH J. WHITE'S CASE.

He Claims He Was Swindled in a Purchase of Railroad Bonds.

Josiah J. White's case against Samuel D. Dairs and Cornelius D. Wood to recover $10,000 damages for alleged fraud in the sale of $6,000 in bonds of the Chattoroi road, continues on hearing before Justice Brown and a jury in circuit. The plaintiff alleges that he was induced to purchase the bonds by fraudulent representation.

The road, according to the testimony, is but fifty miles long. The first mortgage on it was for $500,000. The plaintiff claims that the defendants, who were brokers in New York, falsely represented to him that the road was fully and properly equipped for operation before he bought his bonds and was earning good dividends.

Henry J. Atwater was called to show that the same false representations had been made to him as those complained of by Mr. White. John L. Hill, for the plaintiff, called him, but Wheeler H. Peckham, for the defendant, objected to his testimony. It was admitted and the witness said that it was after George C. Wood had been over the road that the defendants put the stock on the market for sale. Mr. Atwater bought some of the bonds because he knew the defendants and had perfect confidence in them as business men.

Then Mr. Hill called Mr. Swan, who was the bookkeeper for the defendants before they dissolved partnership. He swore that the entire issue of bonds was purchased by the defendants from one John Carlisle of Cincinnati, who controlled the affairs of the Chattoroi road. When sales of the bonds were made checks were sent right on to Carlisle himself.

Mr. Hill put in evidence a contract between Carlisle and the defendant firm dated February 12, 1881. Under it the defendants agreed to take $100,000 worth of the bonds at 85, $100,000 at 87½ and $300,000 at 90.

FATAL FIRE IN CLEVELAND.

CLEVELAND, O., October 28—An incendiary fire in the Cleveland window glass warehouse destroyed $40,000 worth of sash doors and blinds this afternoon. M. F. Sullivan, an ornamental glass cutter, and Kate Nolan were overcome by smoke and unable to get out. They were removed by the firemen, but the girl died half an hour later, and Sullivan is not expected to recover. While this fire was raging flames broke out in the large sash and door works of A. Teachout & Co., at the corner of Michigan and Seneca streets, two blocks away. An explosion in the building slightly injured half a dozen people. Loss, $100,000.

THE CRISIS IN ENGLAND'S COTTON TRADE.

It is Thought That a Great Strike May be Averted.

LONDON, October 28—The impression is growing in Lancashire that the threatened strike of the cotton spinners will be averted. It is asserted that the negotiations looking to the arbitration of the questions in dispute between the employers and employes were instigated by the Federation of Master Cotton spinners, upon finding that there was little disposition among the members of the federation to adopt a lockout in view of the improved condition of the cotton market. This view of the situation appears likely, judging from the fact that Mr. Mawdsley, secretary of the Amalgamated Association of Operative spinners, has declined to call a special meeting of the association to discuss the question of arbitration. The next regular meeting will be held on the date fixed for the strike to commence.

A cotton authority, in discussing the situation in Lancashire, says that the main cause of the trouble is to be found by looking, not to India, nor yet to countries who have hostile tariffs, but to Lancashire itself. The productive capacity of the British mills far exceeds the legitimate demands of trade. For the twenty years between 1850 and 1870 Lancashire held the position of unquestioned supremacy in the manufacture of cotton goods and the manufacturers there believed that they would always hold this position. In this they were mistaken, for their great success invited competition from other places. In 1891 in the United States alone there were about 15,497,300 cotton spindles in operation, the increase for a number of years being a steady 500,000 a year. In India there were in 1890 as many as 137 mills, with about £12,000,000 capital. 3,274,000 spindles and 28,412 looms operated by about 102,000 natives at a cost of 99d per pound of yarn, as compared with 1s 11d, the cost in Oldham; Japan even, can now boast of 34—or, according to one report, 38 mills, just double the number it possessed in 1888; and though in this instance the dividends are not in every case satisfactory, this fact makes little difference in regard to the influence the mills exercise on British exports to that country. The vast expansion of the German and French cotton trades has also had great effect upon the British trade. England has nearly enough spindles to supply the world's demand for yarn, but more than half of this demand is met by other than English manufacturers. Consequently when only a proportion, a large proportion, it is true, of these British spindles are run, the inevitable result is to flood the market with their product. Prices naturally fall and to partly recoup themselves manufacturers propose to reduce the wages of their spinners. The latter, however, decline to accept a reduction and suggest that the working hours be reduced to eight a day, which would lessen the output.

This authority declares that the ultimate salvation of Lancashire as a cotton producing center is to be found in new markets and emphatically not in the attempts to get back the old, which are gone or are rapidly going beyond British control. He suggests China as the field for the expansion of British trade and says that once communication is opened with the interior of that country British manufacturers can dispose of ten times as much of their goods as are now sold there, beside leaving a good margin for American competition which is making itself felt there.

MR. GLADSTONE'S LIEUTENANT.

The British Cabinet Council and the Liberal Leadership.

LONDON, October 28—Semi official denials have been issued as to the steps reported to have been taken by the cabinet at its meeting yesterday to decide upon a successor to Sir William Vernon Harcourt in the event of the latter's eye trouble preventing him from filling the position as government leader in the house of commons, which position devolves upon him in consequence of Mr. Gladstone's decision not to take the leadership except upon occasions when important measures are before the house. These denials, however, fail to reassure the liberals who know the truth of the statements made regarding Sir William's condition. An occulist whose name is not mentioned affirms that Sir William's sight is improving, but this statement conflicts with the opinion of the well known experts on the continent who Sir William recently consulted.

Although Sir William's eyesight is threatened he is an active worker through secretaries. He will be able to cope with business so long as it can be conducted through this means, but it will be otherwise during the diversified work inside the house of commons.

Among the varying rumors concerning the proceedings at yesterday's cabinet council the Times seems to have a report that approaches nearest the facts. It says that Gladstone keeps the main question of home rule out of the consultation of his colleagues altogether. He keeps the measure up his sleeve and leaves it doubtful whether the present measure is anything more than the bill he presented in 1886 with some illogical variations regarding the release of Fenian convicts. The cabinet, the Times adds, is trying to take a middle course between satisfying its Irish masters by releasing all the Fenians and satisfying the bulk of its supporters, who oppose any interference with the course of the law.

HEAVY WEATHER IN BRITISH SEAS.

Transatlantic Steamships Had Rough Experiences off the Coast.

LONDON, October 28—The gale that has prevailed on the south west coast of Ireland for the past three days is now greatly abated. Among the vessels that have suffered through stress of weather is the Dutch steamer Schiedam, from Baltimore for Rotterdam. Her voyage was soprolonged that her coal ran short and she was obliged to call at Queenstown to replenish her bunkers. She reports the weather as having been terrific. The Associated Press dispatches of yesterday reported the fact that the Inman line steamship City of New York was unable to call at Queenstown, because of the heavy weather. The Liverpool pilot is aboard of her and will have to make the passage to New York unless he is placed on board some incoming steamship. Last night when the company's pilot reported from the signal station that the City of New York was off the port there was a very high sea running. A thick fog was spreading and the conditions were such as not to admit of the pilot going alongside the steamer. The fog threatened to cause considerable delay before the steamer could make the harbor in safety. It was this reason doubtless that prompted Captain Lewis to continue the passage direct to New York. The tender from Queenstown with passengers and mails on board remained outside for two hours and a half and then returned without getting alongside the City of New York. This incident is without precedent in the history of Atlantic mail steamers.

ERICKSON GETS $7,500 FOR HIS LEG.

A jury before Justice Pratt in circuit court, this morning, returned a verdict of $7,500 to Charles Erickson, in his suit for damages for personal injuries brought against the Twenty-third street Railroad company of New York. Erickson lives at 495 Atlantic avenue. On September 26, 1890, he was injured by being run over by a car of the defendant company and one leg was amputated.

GRACIOUS, MR. MC GINNIS,

What Do All These Financial Troubles Mean?

John Y. McKane of Gravesend Brings Suit Against the Assembly Candidate for $250. McG. Says It's Persecution, but McK. Insists That It's a Case of Lacking Dollars.

John J. McGinnis, the Republican candidate for member of assembly and the editor of the Brooklyn Leader, is in a peck of trouble. Yesterday he was sued in Justice Neu's court by Michael Shields, who charged him with giving him a worthless check for $33. To-day Supervisor John Y. McKane of Gravesend instituted a suit to recover $250, the amount of a promissory note which is three months overdue. Another suit has also been brought by J. D. Cordes, a Bridge street grocer, who holds a check for $57 which was given to him in payment for goods and which he claims was protested at the bank when presented. According to the way the suits are coming in Mr. McGinnis will not have much time to devote to his canvass. The note on which Supervisor McKane is suing was cashed by him six months ago and was payable in three months. Mr. McKane did not present it at the time nor did he bother with it until two months after its maturity. A week ago he turned it over to his counsel, Marcus B. Campbell, who notified McGinnis to make arrangements for its payment. Not hearing from him he applied to-day for a summons and complaint.

Candidate McGinnis was seen at his office today by an EAGLE reporter. In answer to questions he said: "The note, while made personally by me, is an obligation of the paper which is owned by a joint stock company. It will be paid the same as all other obligations. The reason why I did not attend to it is that I was very busy, and, besides, I saw Chief McKane and he did not say anything about it."

Mr. McGinnis thinks the suit that have been brought against him is political persecution. "If it is the desire of the Democratic party to drive me out of Brooklyn by hunting up all my business obligations and pressing them at this time, let them go ahead."

TWO WIVES HAVE A RATTLING FIGHT.

Mrs. Ahreites Hears That Her Husband and Mrs. Bensky are Too Frisky.

Mrs. Mamie Bensky of 295 Kent avenue was a complainant in the Lee avenue police court this morning against Mrs. Joseph Ahreites of the same address, charging her with assault in the second degree. Both of the young woman as they appeared before the clerk might have been considered good looking had not their faces been badly bruised. They looked as though they had just finished a foot ball game. The two women had lived in the same apartment house for some time and were supposed to be on the best of terms, because every night and often during the day they would pass the time together in company with their husbands. The friendship, perhaps, would not have been broken yet had not the gossips of the neighborhood began to talk about them. Not a word of it reached any of those interested until yesterday. Then one of the neighbors, it is said, told Mrs. Ahreites that her husband had been carrying on a serious flirtation with Mrs. Bensky and behaving in an unseemly manner. Mrs. Ahreites did not wait to conduct an investigation or to question her husband, but proceeded in the order of punching and gave Mrs. Bensky a beating, getting at the same time some neat upper cuts and swinging right handers. But things were uneven at best for Mrs. Bensky and taking an old saber which had been hanging on the wall of her kitchen, like a relic of feudal times, she chased Mrs. Ahreites around the room, slashing her whenever she could get within reach. After two or three turns around the room, with rather disastrous results to Mrs. Ahreites, the latter succeeded in making her escape. Fortunately the saber which Mrs. Bensky wielded was not very sharp and the arm which swung it, although willing, was neither expert nor strong, so Mrs. Ahreites escaped with but few cuts, which were doctored with court plaster. Mrs. Bensky's eyes were both discolored and there were also black marks upon her throat where she had been choked. A little cut upon the head was the only result of a blow with a fire shovel in the hands of her adversary. After the complaint had been received and the papers made out, Justice Goetting called the case. Mrs. Ahreites entered a plea of not guilty and the case was adjourned for examination.

SCANDAL ON BEDLOE'S ISLAND.

Sergeant Van, Who Was Shot, Charged With Serving Cheap Supplies.

Since Sergeant Van of the United States Army, who is stationed on Bedloe's island, was shot by Private Miller a few weeks ago, an investigation into his accounts as caterer has been made, it is said, and some of the soldiers there declare that it has been found that he had been making from $40 to $60 a month by serving them with the cheapest food he could get and charging for the dearest.

His method as explained by a soldier at the barge office this morning was to go to various provision stores, borrow money from the proprietor and have it charged to groceries, while the quality of food he purchased enabled him to keep his expenditures within the appropriation.

The sergeant is still in the hospital on Governor's island, with Private King, who was hit with the same bullet after it had passed through Van's right shoulder. It is thought that an official investigation will now be ordered.

THE MOVEMENT AGAINST HIPPOLYTE.

LONDON, October 28—Efforts have been made by friends of the revolutionary party in Hayti to raise funds for the purpose of organizing a movement against Hippolyte. What success has been met is not known. The British merchants in the West India trade are dissatisfied with the oppressive manner in which the Haytian custom house has been conducted under Hippolyte and the discrimination shown in some respects against British trade, but they are not inclined to risk money in attempting to inaugurate a revolution against a man of Hippolyte's resolute and vindictive character. The latest information from Hayti confirms the report that an outbreak may be looked for at an early date, as much discontent prevails in the republic itself with Hippolyte's government.
